Senators Argue Hotly On Draft as Committee Reports Out Bill, 13-3

Sheppard Predicts Hitler Will Raid U. S. If He Wins; Wheeler Retorts 'Propaganda'

By Hedley Donovan,
Post Staff Writer

The Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday approved by a 13-3 vote the amended Burke-Wadsworth bill, requiring registration for compulsory military training of 12,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 31.

A preview of the bitter debate the measure is expected to touch off on the floor was given the Senate yesterday as Senator Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, asserted his "firm conviction" that a victorious Hitler would attempt to attack the United States.

Sheppard, pressed by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, and other isolationist leaders, to "tell the country the real facts about this emergency that requires conscription," replied angrily:

"If you can't see any emergency in the world situation, I certainly can't persuade you of it."

Wheeler Blames Propaganda

"The only emergency," Wheeler observed, "is the one created by propagandists who are trying to frighten Congress and the country."

Sheppard answered that "the emergency is the well-known intention of the dictatorships to destroy democracy everywhere."

"You mean you think Hitler is going to come over here and attack the United States?" Wheeler demanded.

"He will try," said Sheppard. "That is my firm conviction or I wouldn't be here."

The clash over the conscription bill came as the Senate opened debate on a closely related measure—the resolution empowering President Roosevelt to order out the National Guard and Army Reserve personnel for a year's training.

The Senate is expected to give overwhelming approval to the Guard plan today or tomorrow, but leaders in the fight against conscription have served notice they are voting for the Guard mobilization on the assumption that it will make the draft bill unnecessary.

Minority Gives Report

Voting against the conscription bill in committee were Senators Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado; Thomas (Republican), of Utah, and Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota. The Westerners issued a minority report declaring:

"Voluntary enlistment should be given a thorough trial before any Hitlerized method of peace-time

Pepper Blasts at Lindbergh As 'Fifth-Column Chief in U. S.'

'Lone Eagle' Takes Severe Lashing On Senate Floor; New Dealer Praises Pershing's Speech Urging Aid to Britain

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was denounced on the Senate floor yesterday as "chief of the Fifth Column in this country."

Senator Pepper (Democrat), leading one of the most violent personal attacks ever heard in Congress, asserted that the airman "has long been an admirer of Nazi Germany and that affection has been reciprocated."

The charges by Pepper, a militant advocate of aid to Britain, were provoked by Col. Lindbergh's speech Sunday before a mass meeting called in Chicago by the Citizens' Keep Out of War Committee.

The attack was followed up last night by Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, in a radio address arranged by the Democratic National Committee as a reply to the colonel.

Declaring he was "shocked" by Lindbergh's "attitude of complacency toward Adolf Hitler," Lucas added:

"If the American people are looking for guidance and counsel in this hour of American uncertainty, I say with all due deference to Col. Lindbergh that you should stop, look and listen before you follow this youthful man who has blossomed overnight into an oracle who instructs the world and his country on such momentous problems as war, statesmanship and diplomacy."

Lindbergh claimed that domestic and foreign "interests" are attempting to lead America into war. He called the present war a struggle for land and wealth and indicated that the United States could live at peace and do business with a victorious Germany.

Pepper declared that Col. Lindbergh "has utterly missed the point of this whole war," citing Mussolini's statement that the present conflict is only one phase of a world revolution.

"I don't suppose Col. Lindbergh would be alarmed," the Florida New Dealer said, "if he learned that Hitler was at the gates of this country, because he would know that Col. Lindbergh would not be

Willkie Decries 'Candy-Stick' Governments

French Pampered, He Says; Decentration Of Industry Urged

By the Associated Press

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 5.—Wendell Willkie said today that widespread decentralization of industry was one answer to the country's defense problem and then told a luncheon meeting that "candy-stick government" in France had enabled Germany to crush that nation "like an eggshell."

In a day of intense activity, the Republican nominee talked farm problems with Midwestern agriculture leaders and then said to a crowd gathered at the State Capitol:

"In the defense program and in industrial development that must come in connection with that, those who lead the affairs of government must see that many of the plants that will be built will be located in towns like the towns scattered all over the State of Iowa."

Moving downtown to a Press Association meeting, Willkie made an impromptu talk in which he asserted that "The French were just as brave and intelligent as the Germans, and Great Britain and France together had greater resources than the Germans.

"Yet France was crushed like an eggshell. Why? Because they had adopted the candy-stick theory of government. When a child cries you give him a piece of candy and try to quiet him."

The nominee's only elaboration was that France's defense problem was essentially one of production, just as is America's.

At still another meeting during the day, Willkie told a number of Republican county chairmen that—as he did at today's farm conference—he would seek the views of numerous other persons in the so-

G. O. P. Obeys Hatch Act, Fletcher Says

Party Counsel Asks Democrats About Sale Of Convention Books

A sharp attack on activities of the Democratic high command came from Henry P. Fletcher, general counsel of the Republican National Committee, last night as he defended his Hatch Act interpretations from criticism by Attorney General Robert H. Jackson.

The reply to Jackson came after Fletcher's ruling that gifts to the Republican Party might be subdivided to keep within the $5,000 Hatch law limitation had aroused a lively Senate floor debate.

Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, author of the law, termed the ruling one "to evade the principle of the act," but Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, declared that Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, "has given very substantial evidence" of intent to observe the spirit of the law.

Fletcher issued a statement insisting the Republican committee "has no intention of evading or skirting" the law's provisions, but "on the contrary we are leaning backwards to observe its spirit and letter."

Then he asked:

"While on the subject of evasion of the spirit of the Hatch Act, can Mr. Jackson suggest why the President withheld his approval of the act for eight days after its passage by Congress, until the so-called Democratic convention had adjourned? Was it to allow officeholders, covered by the act, to attend the convention and vote for a third term for their chief? Did he, as Attorney General, advise this course?"

"Since Mr. Jackson suddenly has becomes experienced over the enforcement of election laws, it is

Committee Action Seen On Self-Rule

Kennedy Predicts Consideration of Bill For D. C. Franchise Without Amendment

A majority of the House District Committee will approve consideration at this session of Congress of legislation to give Washington self - government without amending the Constitution, Representative Ambrose Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, predicted last night.

Referring to a poll of committee sentiment by Chairman Jennings Randolph, Kennedy, long an advocate of home rule for the Capital, forecast victory for the self-government bloc by "a slim margin of probably two votes."

Randolph yesterday was canvassing committee members to determine if the sentiment for consideration of suffrage legislation by the committee is sufficient to warrant calling the group together for this purpose.

Of 13 members of the 20-man committee polled, seven said they were willing to consider a home-rule bill before Congress adjourns. Six committeemen expressed themselves as opposed to the proposal.

Asked Only to Debate

Randolph emphasized that committee members were not being asked how they stood on self-rule, but merely to indicate willingness to debate whether a bill should be drafted.

Kennedy is the author of the only self-government bill pending before the committee. It would vest the legislative power of the District in a municipal assembly of 21 members which, concurrently with Congress, would be authorized to enact laws and regulations for governing the city.

Authority of the assembly would embrace taxation and appropriation for municipal purposes, the exercise of powers now held by the District Commissioners and control of all branches of government with the exception of the Board of Education.

Kennedy said that while new legislation might be substituted by the committee, should it decide to act, he presumed his bill would at least form the basis for consideration.

"Pushing" Suffrage

He added that he had been "pushing" District suffrage "right along" and was cooperating with Randolph in canvassing committee sentiment. He agreed with Randolph that hearings on a suffrage bill should not be necessary in view of the wealth of background material produced during hearings on proposed legislation for reorganization of the District Government of which the Kennedy

Italians Open Drive For Suez

Camels Replace Tanks for Desert Advance in 140-Degree Heat

By the United Press

Rome, Aug. 5.—Italian desert troops tonight were reported advancing against British positions in North and East Africa.

Speeding up land operations, presumably for a big drive toward the Suez Canal, Italian white troops and native Dubats and Askaris were said to be pushing forward their lines in the Kenya, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Egyptian sectors.

Aerial activity apparently was keeping pace with land operations. The high command reported ten British planes were shot down in a single engagement when British bombers and fighters attempted to bomb Italian troops marching along the Libya-Egypt frontier.

Use Camel Corps

The Italians were said to be using Libyan camel corps instead of tank units in the big advance because of the intense heat—reaching as high as 140 degrees Fahrenheit—which literally turns the steel battle wagons into ovens.

Special balloon tired, air-conditioned trucks carrying cooled water are being used to keep the Italian vanguard fresh. Most of the Italian advances, it was said, are being made from dawn onward, with time out for siestas from 11 a. m. until 4 p. m., when the terrific heat of the sun makes fighting virtually impossible.

The air force, however, was reported active throughout the day.

British attacks on the shores of Lake Rudolf, in Kenya Colony south of Italian-held Ethiopia, which the high command said were repulsed, apparently were aimed at interference with the consolidation of Italian positions.

Since the occupation of Moyale several weeks ago, the Italians have been pushing their [illegible] forward between it and Lake Rudolf, for the purpose of strengthening the captured fortress as well as the Dolo salient to the east which also is occupied by the Italians, it was said.

Constant bombing of the British base of Wajir in Kenya, described in the Italian War Office communique, apparently is connected with the general infantry push in that sector.

Mass on Frontier

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Italian forces were reported massing in great strength today along the Libyan frontier facing Egypt, perhaps for a major drive toward the Suez Canal, after the biggest air battle thus far in the war in Africa.

Six and perhaps nine Italian planes were reported shot down Sunday in two air battles involving at least 100 Italian aircraft over the desert sands of western Egypt in the Bir el Gobi region where the

Streicher, Hitler Aide, Reported Slain After Row With Goering

Anti-Semite Tried, Convicted by Nazis, London Hears

By International News Service

London (Tuesday), Aug. 6.—Julius Streicher, famous anti-Semitic Nazi editor, has been executed or committed suicide after being condemned by the highest Nazi tribunal, a Reuters dispatch "from the German frontier" said early today.

Reuters cited a "well-informed source across the frontier" for the statement that Streicher came into conflict with Marshal Goering, who ordered an inquiry into Streicher's conduct on party affairs.

Streicher was brought before the supreme Nazi court, confronted by overwhelming evidence of anti-party crimes, Reuters said, and was summarily condemned.

Whether he was executed or died by his own hand is not known, said the British news agency.

Germans Silence Radio for Six Hours As Is Custom In Blitzkriegs

By the Associated Press

A sudden and mysterious movement of 19 British warships from Gibraltar toward the Atlantic Ocean and the silencing of the entire German radio system for approximately six hours fanned the possibility of blitzkrieg to new storm proportions early today.

Whether the long-threatened but long-withheld German attempt to invade Britain was at hand was a matter for speculation, but the juxtaposition of events made it an ominous possibility.

The shutdown of the German wireless for "technical alterations" was carried in a terse English-language announcement heard by the National Broadcasting Co. at 10:22 p. m. (E. S. T.) Monday, to be effective until 4:15 a. m. (E. S. T.) today.

The announced reason might be entirely accurate, but wartime observers recalled that every previous blitzkrieg has been preceded and accompanied by clamps on communication facilities.

Turn Course

The British warship movements were reported from Algeciras, Spain. These reports said the ships first headed Monday morning, toward the Mediterranean, where they have gone before, but then circled about and headed toward the Atlantic.

From Gibraltar to Southampton, England, is 1,142 miles, roughly three days' steaming time by a large squadron, possibly less by faster individual units. The report took more than 12 hours to reach New York via Lisbon.

This move, too, might be merely a British feint; might be an exaggeration from Algeciras—many of whose residents have been expelled from Gibraltar for various reasons over a period of many years; or it might mean a sudden sharpening of the comparatively quiet war of the last six weeks.

High Tide Period

Britain's shores today and through Friday are being laved by the highest tides of August, and the long-range weather forecast calls for fogs and calm seas—good omens for a would-be invader.

But German's Fuehrer Adolf Hitler has been known to cross up all prognosticators.

Reports reaching La Linea, close to Gibraltar, said the 29,150-ton British battleship Resolution was damaged in an air-sea battle last

Sabath Offers Bill to Combat Trojan Horses

$5,000 Fine, 21 Years In Prison Provided For 5th Columnists

A bill carrying maximum penalties of 21 years in prison and a $5,000 fine for engaging in either Fifth Column of un-American activities was introduced in Congress yesterday as President Roosevelt called on the States to unite with the Federal Government in suppressing espionage and sabotage.

The measure, which was introduced by Chairman Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois, of the Rules Committee, defined both Fifth Column activities and un-Americanism, hitting at:

Actions aimed at overthrow of the Government, such as sabotage, unlawful and treasonous acts of force or violence, or means of terrorism; inciting to riot or inciting racial or religious prejudice; aiding or comforting any foreign government to the injury of the United States; promoting internal discord within the United States or causing others to commit acts injurious to the Government, or engaging in any military activities not sanctioned by the Federal or State governments.

Hoover Tells of Sabotage

Though Sabath said the bill was his own and not Administration sponsored, it was introduced coincident with the start of a conference of Federal-State law enforcement officials at the Justice Department which heard J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI catalogue a list of acts of espionage and sabotage which his agency has discovered.

With the assertion that "the time is rapidly approaching when, as a Nation, we must choose betwen the welfare of the great masses of Americans and a few interlopers who hid behind the Bill of Rights while they undermine our Nation," Hoover told the conferees of the

Roosevelt Set for New Defense Tour

May Leave Wednesday To Inspect Buffalo Aircraft Plants

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt may leave Wednesday on his second tour of inspection of national defense operations.

Rumors circulated tonight that he might go to Buffalo to inspect aircraft plants which supply a large portion of the Nation's fighting planes.

On the way to Buffalo, the President could see the arsenal at Watervliet, N. Y., where the Army constructs some of its heaviest guns.

Before returning to Washington early next week, Mr. Roosevelt was expected to inspect defense installations around New York City and perhaps the Navy's submarine base at New London, Conn.

A week ago, he spent a day at Norfolk viewing the navy yard, fleet operating base, Fort Monroe, Langley Field and the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co.

The President will give a luncheon tomorrow for heads of delegations of other American nations to the recent Havana Conference. White House officials did not say how many would attend but probably Dr. Leopoldo Melo, of Argentina, and Pedro Manini Rios, of Uruguay, would be among them.

The luncheon would offer the President an opportunity to explore generally the methods for following up Havana agreements to strengthen military and economic positions of the Pan American republics.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Mauricio Nabuco, Brazilian minister of foreign affairs, arrived here today feeling that accomplishments of the recent Havana conference had established something of an insurance policy for future inter-American political solidarity.

Nabuco took a train for Washington, where he will confer with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and Brazilian Ambassador Carlos Martins.

4 Die in Gas-Filled Well, 3 Trying To Effect Rescue

Bristol, N. H., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Four men—three of them firemen attempting rescues—died today at the bottom of a 50-foot well as they were overcome by gas fumes and toppled into 7 feet of water.

First of the victims was a workman engaged in pumping out the well water with a gasoline pump. The three firemen, one of them a bridegroom of a week, were overcome, one by one, as each descended when he saw the other topple over.

The dead were Martin Kease, 43, the workman; Earl R. Wells, 22, who was married a week ago; Forest H. Martin, 40, Wells' brother-in-law, and Verne A. Tilton, 45.

A fourth fireman, Albert Paddleford, 50, of Bristol, also was overcome in the rescue attempt, but was revived later at a hospital.

2 Women Rescued From Ledges High On Mountain

Glacier Ranger Station, Wash., Aug. 5 (A.P.).—Two thinly clad women who were marooned high on Mount Shuksan 24 hours, were rescued today.

A mountaineer who brought word of the rescue said one of the women, Anne Cedarquist, of Shelton, Wash., had a broken arm and possibly some broken ribs.

The other woman, Miss Faye Plank, 36, Bremerton, Wash., high school librarian, was unhurt.

The returning rescue party has reached "comparatively safe territory, with the worst part of the trail now behind them."

Two different parties, totaling 24 men, went up the 9,000-foot mountain to bring back the women after they became marooned on different ledges near the 8,000-foot elevation about noon yesterday while climbing with H. Karl Boyer, 28, of Seattle.

Boyer, who unsuccessfully tried to rescue the women, returned to the station here to obtain aid. He said the three were climbing roped together about noon yesterday when Miss Cedarquist somehow broke loose from the safety rope and fell about 40 feet down a rocky wall to a ledge. She was hurt in the fall.

Italy, Germany Request Turkey To Define Position

Rome, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Italy and Germany were reported tonight to have asked the Turkish government, in connection with an Axis plan to establish a new order in southeastern Europe in the near future, to define the Turkish position with relation to European matters.

Usually well-informed sources said the joint request was delivered within the last two days. Reports current here were that it was predicated on the Axis expectation of a general Balkan-Danubian settlement to assure the peace of southeastern Europe.

Details of the purported request were lacking. Both Italy and Germany were represented as feeling that the position of Turkey—particularly in view of Turkey's alliance with England—must be clarified.

House to Study Bill For Wire-Tapping In Spy Inquiries

A bill which would give the Federal Bureau of Investigation authority to tap telephone wires in counter-espionage investigations is scheduled for consideration by the House today.

Under certain circumstances the measure would permit FBI agents to listen in on conversations along Washington's Embassy Row.

The purpose of the bill, sponsored by Representative Emanuel Celler (Democrat), of New York, is to permit wire-tapping in connection with FBI investigations of spies, saboteurs and other offenders threatening to National defense.

Senate Confirms Judge Bentley's Renomination

By unanimous consent the Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of Fay Bentley to be judge of the District Juvenile Court for another six-year term.

Judge Bentley's nomination was sent to the Senate by President Roosevelt last May 6. Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, headed a Judiciary subcommittee which held hearings on the nomination late in June.

Witnesses before the subcommittee attacked some phases of Judge Bentley's administration, several contending that in some cases here sentences had been too severe. Supporting her, several officials, including McCarran, pointed out the need for separation of the juvenile delinquency and domestic relations functions of the court.

D. C. Clerk Drowns in River; Two Sink Selves, Find Body

A 26-year-old Mount Rainier drug clerk, James Holmes, was drowned in the Potomac above Key Bridge yesterday as he attempted to swim to shore in a race with two companions in a rowboat.

Two Washington youths, who were swimming nearby, recovered his body from the riverbottom in 25 feet of water by sinking themselves with a 20-pound boulder.

The youths were Francis Crampton, 20, a sheet metal worker, of 3291 M street northwest, and Walter Saylor, 21, a landscape gardener, of 3622 O street northwest.

Aided by several river dwellers, and later the Fire Rescue Squad and Emergency Hospital ambulance surgeons, they applied first aid in vain for more than an hour on an overturned rowboat, drawn up to the riverbank. Holmes was pronounced dead at 4:04 p. m.

Employed at the cigar counter in the People's drug store at Fifteenth and G streets northwest, Holmes rented a rowboat yesterday for a day of fishing and swimming. It was his day off.

With him were Harry Grossman,

Tempest at Tea

Sen. King Snaps at Snackers Who Eat on Taxpayers' Time

Government workers who take time out during working hours for a snack at a lunch stand drew the wrath yesterday of Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the District Committee.

The Senator, with an eye for the public purse, was entering the Treasury Building shortly before 4 o'clock for a tax conference when he saw about a dozen Treasury employes clustered around the lunch stand in the southeast corner of the basement.

"Why aren't all these people at work?" the Senator inquired.

"They should be wasting time [illegible] should be at their desks," he said within earshot of the munching, sipping group.

The Government workers looked up somewhat startled at this interruption of their tea-time snack, but continued munching and sipping as if nothing had happened.

The stand is operated by the Vocational Rehabilitation Service of the District and is sponsored by the District Society of the Blind.

Joint Hearing Set On Tax Changes

Leaders to Study Excess Profit Levy With Amortization

Manufacturers, seeking an immediate law allowing them to charge off the cost of new national defense plants in five years, appeared last night to have lost their fight to divorce the provision from the proposed tax on excess profits.

A Treasury conference of top Congressional and Executive tax leaders, summoned apparently at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, decided to rush joint hearings on the forthcoming tax bill, but balked at giving first consideration to a separate measure coping with the amortization issue.

The National Association of Manufacturers called for immediate action on amortization Sunday, saying it would remove a "serious bottleneck now holding back progress of the national defense program."

Boeing Hesitant

Similarly, War Department officials said yesterday that a $31,871,349 contract for four-motor bombers for the Army had been slowed by the unwillingness of the Boeing Aircraft Co. of Seattle to expand its plant until Congress authorized amortization of the cost over a short period for tax purposes.

The apparent outcome of the hour-long Treasury conference, summoned by Secretary Morgenthau, was in line with statements by President Roosevelt and a decision by a House tax subcommittee which decreed that five-year amortization and the long-sought removal of Vinson-Trammell Act limits on warship and airplane profits must be coupled with a tax on excess profits.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, who attended the conference in Morgenthau's office, said it had been decided to begin hearings Thursday on the complicated omnibus bill and that the House and Senate committees concerned with the matter would hold joint hearings, a procedure reserved for matters requiring utmost speed.

Morgenthau Met President

Secretary Morgenthau, explaining to newsmen how he happened to call the conference, said he had had a long chat Sunday with the President on the back porch of his Hyde Park, N. Y., cottage.

"What I am doing today is a result of my meeting with him yesterday afternoon," Morgenthau said.

Any formula agreed upon by defense officials and Congressional leaders would get his approval, the Secretary stated.

He expressed hope for quick agreement on a tax program, adding, "if we can get this through Congress we can sign every American manufacturer up for every dollar."

Doughton, Knudsen Present

"If the conferees will tell me what is needed to get the contracts signed I will give it a friendly push," Morgenthau said prior to yesterday's conference.

Attending the parley were Morgenthau, Doughton, Secretary of War Stimson, Defense Commissioner William S. Knudsen, Chairman Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, of the Senate Finance Committee; Senators George (Democrat), of Georgia, and King (Democrat), of Utah, and Representatives Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee, and McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts. The Treasury was represented, in addition, by Assistant Secretary John L. Sullivan, Undersecretary Daniel W. Bell and Edward Foley, jr., general counsel.

Willkie Gives Views to Iowans

lution of "all the problems I shall approach in the next four years, the next eight years, but not the next 12 years.

"Someone Who Understands"

"One of our real problems," Willkie told the crowd assembled at the State House, "is the decentralization of industry so that prosperity and plants may be brought back to the medium-sized city.

"The type of man who can bring that about," he continued, "is the type of man who understands the practical problems of industry—the type of man who understands your problems.

"If I am elected President, you will have someone who understands your problems."

Willkie Frowns at Boos

There was applause and scattered boos at Willkie's remark. The candidate shook his head and frowned slightly.

In his talk with farm leaders, Willkie said at a press conference, he listened to widely diverse views on farm problems and gained much information which would aid him in writing the farm section of his acceptance address and a later formal farm speech, somewhere in the Middle eWst.

He said he had advised a group of about 70 Midwestern farm leaders that " as a candidate for President and as the next President" he wanted to obtain the viewpoint of men who actually were farmers.

The conferees, who came from ten States and included a group of Governors and candidates for Governor, was held in the office of Gov. George A. Wilson.

Pledges He Won't Seek Third Term

Willkie, seated in the Governor's own chair at the head of his desk, was reported to have suggested at one point that a solution of the farm problem had nothing to do with "political feasibility or expediency." He told his press conference that politics had not been discussed at the conference and that he believed such meetings should be free from partisanship.

The nominee said he had expressed no views of his own at the farm meeting.

Appearing at a luncheon of Republican county chairmen, the nominee was loudly applauded when he said that he would seek the viewpoints of many others "in the solution of all the problems I shall approach in the next four years, the next eight years, but not the next 12 years."

Willkie reiterated that his drive for the Presidency "is not a campaign, but a crusade, which must be approached with all the moral fervor of a crusade."

Continues Talk at Urging

In his capitol appearance, Willkie was cheered when he walked down the Statehouse steps to a speakers' stand. A bright sun brought perspiration to most foreheads. The nominee stood with his stiff straw hat in his hand and waved to the crowd as he left.

At one point, the nominee appeared to have concluded his address, but a listener close to him shouted "More, more," and Willkie continued his talk.

The nominee recalled that he had made a speech in Des Moines less than three months ago and that it was one of the few of his brief preconvention campaign for the Republican nomination.

"So you people are halfway responsible for all the troubles I now am in," the nominee added amid laughter.

After referring to Wallace as a "gentleman and scholar," Willkie said he wanted to run his campaign "on issues—not personalities."

Prefers Not to Sling Mud

"I will make no remark about either of the other gentlemen opposing me unless they first make an ill remark about me," he declared.

Willkie added that he would find himself in frequent disagreement with Wallace regarding issues when the campaign gets under way.

The nominee then swung into his discussion of industry and defense.

"One of the problems," he said, "is that in the development of the United States industrial plants have been concentrated in a few big cities.

"One of our real problems is the decentralization of industry."

After adding that he would like to see industry," including armament plants, scattered among many medium-sized towns, Willkie asked his listeners to "vote for the ticket of Willkie and McNary in November in order to elect men who understand your problems."

In his press conference, Willkie said: "I have had a most interesting and stimulating discussion with farm leaders of the Midwest. They have been very helpful to me. Every one felt free to talk perfectly frankly. I was interested as a candidate for President and as the next President."

"Get Their Viewpoint"

In response to reporters' questions, Willkie said that his conferees had advised him that one of the chief criticisms of the New Deal farm program was that local administrative boards were subject to too much control from Washington.

There was no effort to arrive at any general agreement but that he merely had wanted "to sit down with a group of men and get their viewpoint."

Asked what most of his advisers had seemed to want, the nominee responded that "they are all reaching out to see that the farmer gets his adequate and fair share of the national income."

Roosevelt Names Forrestal Undersecretary of the Navy

Former Investment Executive Chosen As Knox Assistant

James V. Forrestal, New York investment executive, was nominated to the emergency post of Undersecretary of the Navy yesterday by President Roosevelt.

Forrestal, former president of Dillon, Read & Co., has been serving as a $10,000-a-year special executive assistant to the President since June 26.

The post of Undersecretary, next in line to that of Secretary, held by Col. Frank Knox, was created recently by a naval reorganization act authorizing the President to name an Undersecretary during a national or limited emergency.

When Forrestal joined the White House official family, it was believed he would handle problems of Latin-American trade.

Forrestal joined Dillon, Read in 1919. He is a native of New York and was graduated from Princeton in 1915. He served in the Navy Aviation Corps during the World War.

12-Yr.-Old Son, Ill, Father Learns At Guard Camp

Things began to brighten yesterday for Mrs. William B. Shanahan, whose anxiety over the illness of her 12-year-old son and her inability to get in touch with her husband at the National Guard Camp near Canton, N. Y., was beginning to become serious.

The child, William B., jr., who underwent an operation Sunday night at Providence Hospital for an infected bone in his leg, was still a very sick boy but was "getting along very well," hospital attendants reported. He was taking nourishment intravenously.

And the husband, who left Washington a week ago with part of his outfit, the 104th Quartermaster Corps, to prepare the camp, finally was reached by the War Department and was on his way back. Sergt. Shanahan, in private life a clerk in the Patent Office, is expected at 3 p. m. today.

The Shanahans live at 1109 Staples street northeast.

Political Arena

Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, was "born and baptized" Lewis. Wendell Wilkus, Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, told the Senate yesterday.

GUFFEY

The Senator said he disclosed this information because Willkie has "referred slightingly to the 'Guffey of Pennsylvania'."

Guffey said for more than 200 years "members of the Guffey family have resided in Pennsylvania, and they have never found it necessary, expedient or advisable to change their name, to change their religion, to change their politics or desert the country of their adoption."

Covington, Ky., Aug. 5 (AP).—Attributing his defeat for nomination to Congress to "intimidation and efforts of the State highway machine," Ed. Wimmer, editor and publisher of an anti-chain store publication, today called on Senator Hatch, (Democrat), New Mexico, author of the Hatch "clean politics" bill, to investigate Saturday's Kentucky primary.

Wimmer, defeated by Representative Brent Spence, Democratic incumbent, said he had sent the following telegram to Hatch whose act bans campaign activity on the part of political officeholders:

"Defeated in Congressional race against Brent Spence through intimidation and efforts State highway machine. Highway officials and employes in full support Brent Spence. Also postmasters throughout district. Your chance crack down. This district political cesspool."

Chicago, Aug. 5 (INS).—Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell Willkie today was accorded "a fine chance to win" by Raymond Moley, one time member of the Roosevelt Administration "Brain Trust." Moley, who paused in Chicago between trains from California to New York, said Willkie's chances in November "depend a great deal on what he says in his speech of acceptance, August 17."

Gov. Sam H. Jones, of Louisiana, gave the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket his "complete indorsement" in an interview yesterday.

Jones came here to attend a Governors' conference on defense and to seek Federal relief for Louisiana farmers whose crops had been destroyed by prolonged rains.

The Governor recalled that he told the Louisiana delegation to the Democratic convention at Chicago he was "1,000 per cent against" Secretary Wallace for the Vice Presidential nomination.

"I am a Democrat," Jones said today. "We fight out our fights in the family. I not only am going to support the ticket, but the ticket will be elected."

Private funeral services for William L. Bruckart, newspaper correspondent in Washington since 1917, will be at 11 a. m. tomorrow, at the Gawler funeral home, 1750 Pennsylvania avenue. Interment also will be private.

Mr. Bruckart, who was 48 years old, died at the Congressional Country Club Sunday, suffering a heart attack while playing golf. He lived at 4453 Greenwich parkway northwest.

House Votes Pay Raise For Brig. Gen. Mead

Legislation which would have the effect of increasing by $1,500 annually the retirement pay of Brig. Gen. James J. Mead, U. S. Marine Corps, retired, was approved by the House and sent to the Senate today. Gen. Mead, who lives in Washington, was retired under terms of the Naval Promotion Act of 1938, as a result of an interpretation of that act by the Judge Advocate General of the Navy. Congress contended the interpretation was contrary to the intent of Congress and that Gen. Mead had been done an injustice.

NEEDS THOMAS' HELP

YOUR hair-growing structure is delicate and reacts unfavorably to over exposure of hot rays of the mid-day summer sun. Such exposure may increase your hair-fall, aggravate dandruff, and hasten your scalp along the road to baldness.

Call at a Thomas office today for free advice on the care of your hair during the summer months. A Thomas expert will gladly tell you how to enjoy summer sports without injury to your hair. He will tell you when and how to expose your hair to the sun; when to wear a hat; what to do about excessive perspiration on the scalp—about salt-water bathing and shower baths. He will also explain exactly how Thomas effectively ends dandruff, stops falling hair and re-grows hair on the thin and bald spots. No charge is made for consultation nor for scalp examination. You are always welcome.

Rain, Mud Slow Guard Trek North

260th Coastal Unit Bogs Down for Night At Watkins Glen

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Reporter

Watkins Glen, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Still hours behind their schedule, advance elements of the 260th Coast Artillery (antiaircraft) splashed into this hill-country town today in a blinding rainstorm and made a wet camp where Indians of the Seneca Nation held their councils 200 years ago.

While cooks nursed fires to life and service company crews raised tents in the mud, most of the regiment's men and equipment were miles behind, still on the road, their huge gun trucks out of gas. Finally, at midnight, 12 hours after they left Northumberland, Pa., and six hours behind schedule, the guns and searchlights arrived. Their drivers and crews were completely worn out.

Over at Syracuse, the 104th Quartermaster Regiment, led by Maj. F. F. Bernsdorff, had better luck. Its mile-long convoy intact, the regiment went into camp before dark on ground sprinkled by just enough rain to lay the dust.

D. C. Troops Fortunate

Washington's 121st Engineers, under Col. John W. Oehmann, and the Twenty-Ninth Division Special Troops, commanded by Maj. William T. Roy, were most fortunate of all. They dropped from trains at Huevelton, N. Y., the Twenty-Ninth's rail head in the Plattsburg maneuver area, raised their camps and turned in early.

The antiaircraft regiment's troubles, Col. Walter W. Burns, its commander, said, stemmed from the lack of transportation, which delayed them a half day on the first leg of their journey yesterday from Washington to Fort Ontario, at Oswego, N. Y.

So late were the gunners in reaching their bivouac at Northumberland last night, they were unable to start the guns and searchlights, their heaviest equipment, until noon. Even so, they should have reached here by 6 p. m.

Their delay in starting forced them to miss at Corning, N. Y., home of the world's largest telescope reflector, the tank trucks scheduled to refuel the big prime movers for their guns. All the same, they pushed on, hoping against hope their gas would hold out until they reached Watkins Glen. It didn't.

Twenty miles south of here, the trucks choked to a halt, one by one, their fuel gone. Lieut. Col. LeRoy S. Mann, regimental executive officer went into action, dug up enough fuel somewhere to bring them in and started again for camp, 20 miles north of town.

There they ran into trouble again. The ponderous trucks and guns, to reach their parks, battled inch by inch through a field of mud. Lighter trucks, passenger cars, even motorcycles bogged down crossing the brimming field.

By 1 a. m. the vehicles were in park, shelter tents were up and the men, numb with fatigue, rolled in their blankets in the mud and slept.

The same lack of transportation spoiled plans of Col. Burns to send the regimental band to Cornell University at Ithaca in response to an invitation from the director of Cornell summer school for a concert. By 6 p. m. the bandsmen were assembled, in white caps and white belts, ready to go. They stood in the mud and waited. At 9 they were still waiting.

All of their heavy instruments, the big wrap-around bass horn, the bass drum and suchlike, were in one of the missing prime-movers toiling along the road miles south. At 9, Col. Burns ordered it to give a concert for the bedraggled troops on the field and, under Bandmaster Joseph Berst, it started up, without basses, manfully, if a little thinly. In that fashion is serenaded the troops and townsmen and up-State farmers who surrounded it under the feeble glow of flashlights.

Colonel Entertains Withall

Despite the rain and the missing convoy and the camp site swimming in mud, Col. Mann entertained in his headquarters trailer at dinner. His guests were Maj. Arlington F. McCallum, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church in Washington and regimental chaplain; Mrs. Abbott Greenleaf, of Washington, and Miss Dorothy Emerson, of Cayuga, N. Y., an official of the New York State Assembly.

Maj. McCallum said he has cards printed on which each man may note his proper address when the regiment reaches Fort Ontario tomorrow. These will be distributed and sent to folks back home to make writing easy and to assure prompt delivery of mail.

Tomorrow the 260th will pull out of here on the final leg of its long jaunt to Fort Ontario. There it will remain a week, firing live ammunition at targets on Lake Ontario with the New York Antiaircraft Regiment.

Committee Action For D. C. Self-Rule

self-government bill, introduced in May, 1939, was a phase.

If the committee decides to act on suffrage, a meeting for the purpose probably will be held next week, Randolph said.

Rules Action Delayed

The move to enfranchise the District through constitutional amendment, meanwhile, will be delayed at least a week, it was learned yesterday, because the House Rules Committee will be unable to meet before Monday. Furthermore, before considering the Sumners resolution already favorably reported by the Judiciary Committee, the Rules Committee has a full calendar of other legislation of which it must dispose.

Representative Sabath, Rules Committee chairman, explained four members of his committee are out of the city while a fifth, Representative J. Bayard Clark (Democrat), of North Carolina, is ill.

Chairman King of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee on District suffrage, said a meeting might be held late this week to decide whether to hold hearings on a bill similar to the Sumners resolution or to wait for the House to act.

Tenting Outside Willkie's D. C. Headquarters

Children Storm Willkie Offices (They Also Can Not Vote)

Chevy Chase children, neophyte politicians, swarmed into the Willkie Washington Headquarters yesterday and took the place over on behalf of "the great man," as they called the Republican candidate.

Their elders, who normally run the place but have something in common with the children because they can't vote either, cooperated with the Chevy Chase (Md.) Boys and Girls Club, headed by 14-year-old Leonard Williams.

In all, three Chevy Chase children's Willkie clubs were represented and they have $100 for the Willkie campaign chest. They came with a statement of principles that pledged them "to respect our present opposing candidate because he happens to be the President of the United States at present."

The last two words were not set in italics.

Williams, who founded the Chevy Chase clubs and raised the $100 since July 4, yesterday had a tent up in front of the headquarters, 727 Fifteenth street northwest, for recruiting new members.

Walter Johnson, Republican candidate for Congress in Maryland, autographed a baseball and will give it to the boy getting the most members in a week. Then Williams challenged three Democratic children to debate himself and two other Republican children. There weren't any Democratic children hanging around the Willkie headquarters, so the challenge remained dangling.

Higher Gas Tax Hearings Open Today

Maryland and Virginia Officials to Testify Before Subcommittee

The first of a series of hearings on a bill to increase the District gasoline tax from 2 to 3 cents a gallon will be conducted by a special subcommittee of the House District Committee today.

The first witness will be called by Rep. W. R. Poage (Democrat), of Texas, subcommittee chairman, at 10 a. m. The session will be held in the District committee room in the old House Office Building.

Although District officials and "anyone who wants to be heard" will be given a chance to testify before action on the bill is taken, testimony today will be confined to that of officials of Maryland and Virginia where higher gas taxes have been a competitive handicap to dealers.

Poage said he hoped to get assurances from officials of both States that highways leading into the District will be improved if the District tax is increased.

While the subcommittee had not yet been notified what officials will represent Maryland at the hearing, testimony for Virginia will be presented by Col. Marion S. Battle, director of the division of motor vehicles; C. F. Joyner, the assistant director, and William R. Shands, director of the division of statutory research and drafting.

The tax increase bill was introduced by Representative Jennings Randolph, House District Committee chairman, at the request of several District organizations.

Britain Releases One Japanese

8 Still in Custody; Tokyo Is Reported Drafting New Note

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 5.—Great Britain tonight released one of the two highly-placed Japanese businessmen who were seized in an empire-wide roundup of Japan's nationals and the Churchhill government made ready to lay its difficulties with Tokyo before Commons tomorrow.

The first Japanese arrested last Friday was Satoru Makihara, London agent for the vast Mitsubishi interests, and he was the first released amid growing Japanese protests and demonstrations. Eight other Japanese remained in custody in various parts of the empire.

It was said reliably the Home Office decided "evidence available was insufficient to warrant further detention" of Makihara.

Either Prime Minister Churchill or R. A. Butler, undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, will make the statement on British-Japanese relations, it was said.

Before the release of Makihara, hints that Japan would sever diplomatic relations with Great Britain if necessary to obtain satisfaction widened the breach between Japan and Britain.

Japan has made two strong protests over Friday's seizures and was reported drafting a third and stronger note to include all Japanese taken in custody.

But, to all protests, the British have quietly replied that the arrests were coincidental with the arrests of British citizens by the Japanese in an espionage inquiry and could not be considered reprisals.

The Japanese Embassy said Britain's answer was highly unsatisfactory.

Reports reaching London said the influential Japanese newspaper Nichi Nichi declared that "Japan will, is necessary, break off diplomatic relations with England."

These reports said the highest officials of the Japanese foreign office had decided to demand immediate release of all the Japanese. All but seven British detained by the Japanese have been released.

Mass Meetings Held

(However, Foreign Office spokesman Yakichiro Sumo in Tokyo said bureau chiefs of the Foreign Office thoroughly canvassed the British actions but reached no definite decision pending fuller official reports from London.

(Demands for "energetic measures" were voiced at mass meetings in Tokyo, Osaka and other Japanese cities. At the Osaka meeting, arranged by all Japanese political parties, the elimination of "offensive British influence in Japan" was demanded.)

Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu spent the day preparing the third protest but did not call upon Foreign Secretary Halifax.

heavy Italian troop concentrations were reported.

Fifty Italian planes were said in a Royal Air Force communique here to have attacked a squadron of British reconnaissance planes, escorted by four fighters, in the Bir el Gobi region. Three of the Italian planes were shot down in this battle, the R. A. F. said, and three others in other air clashes.

British leaders believed the Italians were throwing all their strength into an effort to take over control of the eastern Mediterranean, especially the Suez zone which is vital to the task of supplying Italian Ethiopia and Somaliland.

Algeciras, Spain, Aug. 5 (AP)—Thundering explosions and huge columns of black smoke indicated today that raiding warplanes had succeeded in blowing up munitions dumps at Gibraltar, directly opposite this Spanish city.

The planes darted over the British fortress exactly at 5 p. m. and dropped bombs before antiaircraft batteries were able to fire a single volley.

Nazis' Streicher Reported Slain

hall soon after Hitler had departed.

Streicher was the spearhead of the anti-Jewish movement in Germany for years, and founded the National Socialist Party in Franconia where he was district leader.

Like many of Hitler's companions from the old days when the party was struggling to power, he had served several jail terms. He was with the Fuehrer in the abortive Munich putsch in 1923 and was confined to Landsberg Penitentiary with Hitler.

The Nazi Party later made a shrine of the cell he occupied.

Streicher long exercised considerable influence with Hitler. When other Nazis were content to leave the Jews undisturbed in German business, Streicher urged their removal. Streicher won.

Synagogues Razed

When others drew the anti-Semitic line at things religious, Streicher demanded the razing of synagogues. Those at Munich and Nuremburg soon were demolished.

Hitler's close friendship with the bald, heavy-set Streicher was demonstrated on the latter's fiftieth birthday when Hitler appeared in Nuremberg to congratulate his trusted coworker.

Streicher founded the newspaper "Der Stuermer" (The Stormer), soon after his release from prison in the '20's, using it for violent attacks on the Jews.

He exposed "Jewish plots" to murder Hitler. Blamed the Italo-Ethiopian war on the Jews, attacked the United States as a Jewish-ruled nation.

At other times he has likened Adolf Hitler to Christ.

Roosevelt Asks Unity

President Roosevelt's call for Federal-State unity in fighting fifth columnists was embodied in a message to the conference.

Asking for a network of State laws on the subject, the President stressed that "we must not express our activities in the cruel stupidities of the vigilante." He cautioned against the amateur detective who "soon becomes a fussy and malicious busybody."

Hoover joined with the President in urging that the FBI be made the central agency for directing the battle against fifth columnists.

Attorney General Jackson issued a warning at the conference against fifth columnists who try to "soften" a nation by dangling the bait of business orders and profits if peace can be reestablished and business relations resumed with the victor.

Refers to Black Tom

"It is not illegal to dangle this bait before American businessmen," Jackson said. "But it is well that our people recognize it when they see it and that we cease the belief that efforts in this country are confined to the crudities of the Black Tom days." (A reference to dynamiting of an ammunition storehouse by German agents during the last war.)

The Attorney General's remarks were a reference to the case of Dr. Alois Gerhard Westrick, whose interviews with prominent American business men have recently been given wide publicity.

Through Westrick, Jackson said, it had been hoped to expose perhaps the entire ramifications of systematic foreign activity in this country."

Warns of Proselyting

Discussing the Westrick case in detail, without naming it, Jackson said that the Government would have been interested in great secrecy, in order to unravel all details of the foreign agent's activities.

The Cabinet member defined three forms of fifth column activity: proselyting, or attempts to convert Americans "from their traditional, political and economic system to other beliefs," softening, or dividing a people in order to conquer them, creating confusion in order to sabotage morale, discrediting national leaders, and finally attempts to gain sympathy through fear and favor.

Efforts to create a fifth column here, Jackson cautioned, "are frequently directed toward persons who are in high places and who wield great influence."

Jackson echoed the plea of the President and Hoover for keeping law enforcement in regular channels by saying that it must be kept "out of the hands of ruffians and self-constituted groups who seek to take the law into their own hands."

Jackson on Westrick Case

Jackson's reference to the Westrick case follows in full text:

A few days ago there was published in the press a story revealing in detail the activities and associations of a foreign representative. It was good reporting, and its publication was inspired by a desire to serve the public interests. Yet there are certain contrasts to be made and certain lessons to be learned from it. Since, for several reasons, it can hardly now become a law-enforcement matter, I feel free to discuss it.

We can observe the difference between the way a newspaper handles an investigation of this type and the way it should be handled by the Government. The newspaper's aim, and properly so, is the publication of news and the disclosure of facts, and the newspaper breaks its story as soon as it has it. The Government's purpose, on the other hand, would be continuing counterespionage. The newspaper or papers in question had a perfect "fly trap" as long as they did not disturb it. There came into the range of their observation those persons who were sympathetic with the foreign agent. They were in a position to detect the scope and extent of his operations and his influence. When they exposed the agent to the public, they exposed themselves, and they ended the usefulness of that particular agent as a decoy to bring into their observation perhaps the entire ramifications of systematic foreign activity in this country.

Counterespionage

In a case of this type, the Government would have been interested not in disclosure but, on the contrary, in the greatest of secrecy, so that it might get the whole story. I point this out because there are people who believe that the effectiveness of government in dealing with foreign agents can be measured by the number of arrests. As a matter of fact, effective dealing with them lies not in arrests, but rather in the efficency of the counter-espionage.

As soon as we detect a foreign agent and get him under surveillance, he has ceased to be a menace and becomes a source of information to us, and we do not want an arrest in those fields unless the agent is either departing or has ceased to be useful for this purpose. I tell you this also in explanation of our anxiety that there shall not be competition in this field of investigation. It is highly important that there be centralized control of activities of this kind, so that your agents and ours do not become involved in a competitive race for premature disclosures.

We may observe also that what was perfectly permissible newspaper enterprise, namely, to shadow and watch a suspected person and make public the result of its findings although there was no charge of crime, is an activity in which the government could not properly engage. Although the government, for example, in the course of its activities, knows sources of propaganda and methods of propaganda, we do not feel at liberty to publish accusations except as we file charges against individuals in courts of law where they may defend. The exposure of propagandist efforts which do not amount to crime must depend upon private courage and enterprise.

"Softening" Efforts

The newspaper story to which I referred should bring to us some inkling of the kind of activity which is being resorted to in the United States to create a "Fifth Column" as groups of disloyal citizens or of disloyal workmen who are prepared to sabotage industrial plants. To be sure, we face that danger.

But a greater menace for us is the effort being made here now to try to "soften" this country as France was "softened." This effort takes the form of the promise of business orders and of profits if the war can be called off and business relations resumed as usual with the victor. In holding out the allure of business this effort seeks to create a "fifth column" among men of influence and respectability.

The meeting of 165 officials from 45 States was also addressed by John Lord O'Brian, former special assistant to the Attorney General for war work.

The final session of the parley will take place today. The meeting has been arranged by the Governors' Conference, the Association of State Attorneys General, and the Interstate Commission on Crime.

R. A. F. Blasts Nazi Bases Anew

Saturday south of Formentera, one of the Balearic islands off the southeast coast of Spain.

The same reports said a cruiser was hit by a bomb in the same fight and several British sailors were killed and wounded. It and the Resolution were said to have been left behind at Gibraltar when the 19 other warships left.

R. A. F. Continues Raids

Copyright by New York Times

London, Aug. 5.—High officials today were inclined to back up Prime Minister Churchill's warning of last Saturday indicating that an invasion or tremendous air attacks or both may well be expected.

This indication was given on a day of comparative immunity from bad German raids, a day which was also marked by the announcement of heavy attacks by the Royal Air Force on enemy bases.

Nazi raiders came darting singly over the coasts of Britain later in the night, however, unloading salvos indiscriminately when harassed by defending fighters which had a particularly lively time along the northeast and southeast coasts of England.

Residents of a northeast coastal town heard about 16 heavy explosions above the din of an air fight which was taken as an indication that more than one raider was jettisoning its cargo to make a faster climb into the shelter of clouds.

Later some of the "strangers" sneaked through Wales and then it was reported that heavy explosions were heard at a southeastern inland town.

Sea of Preparation

At the same time the air ministry issued comparative figures for a recent month showing that the R. A. F. in the time covered had dropped 33,431 bombs on Germany and German-occupied territories while during the same period only 6,987 bombs had been dropped by Germans here.

Officials naturally are most reticent over their reasons for belief that invasion is imminent. However, reports from many sources, particularly from reconnaissance squadrons of the Royal Air Force, show a sea of preparation to be going on.

Additionally there are rumors of activity in Norway where some Italian troops are said to have been sent. Heavy guns are being mounted along the Channel, coupled with troop movements in France where the Germans keep as many divisions as would be necessary for an initial invasion.

Report Nazi Activity

Reconnaissance aircraft report much activity in French regions where troops are repairing the damage done to communications in the recent fighting. The fact that the Germans have sealed certain French coastal areas is also regarded as significant.

These are all straws in the wind. The overriding consideration in the British official mind seems to be the fact that Hitler has promised his own people that he will invade. It is thought here that he will have a difficult time avoiding that promise.

But there is a school of thought which argues that all these threats are merely cover for something else and look for the next Axis move to be made in the Near East. Perhaps the largest school of thought acknowledges that it does not know, and is busily occupied in preparing for anything.

The British announced today that their bombers had attacked the synthetic oil plant and storage tanks at Sterkdale in the Ruhr. Fourteen tons of high explosives shattered the tanks, and incendiaries finished the job by firing the oil, the British said. The British also claimed a successful attack on the Krefeld airfield.

As for the raids on Britain yesterday they included a few incendiaries and explosives dropped in the midlands of the east with small damage, few casualties, and only one fatality.

Plane Output Equal

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 5.—Britain's aircraft production now equals Germany's it was declared authoritatively today.

Supporting evdience was offered in increasingly violent aerial smashes at potential Continental hopping-off places for the Nazi invasion attempt believed close at hand.

Britons, alertly watching Channel tides favorable for Adolf Hitler's threatened assault, heard that their airplane factories are running "neck and neck" with the German output and that, with United States and Canadian production, their monthly accumulation of planes actually exceeds that of the Nazis.

The Royal Air Force was reported tonight to have registered direct hits in every one of 23 bombing attacks on the German port city of Hamburg since May 10—part of Britain's 48 raids into Germany in the past 56 nights.

The detailed report on the objectives at Hamburg was made by Information Minister Alfred Duff Cooper in reply to German denials of British reports that port facilities, oil refineries and munitions factories at Hamburg were "practically in ruins."

(American correspondents gave a radio account of a German-conducted trip to Hamburg and a visit to a church from which, they said, there was no sign of damage to the port and harbor facilities that they could see.)

The British minister of information commented that in a city as large as Hamburg damage to scattered munitions factories might not be seen from a single observation point, and only a small part of the 20 miles of docks could be observed.

There have been raids in Germany on 48 nights out of the last 56 and British air authorities are very well satisfied with the results. Over 120 separate targets were bombed in one month.

[Continuing its campaign to back its claims that the British bombing of industrial Germany is less effective than London reports said, the German high command allowed foreign correspondents into the high-walled Thyssen oil and steel plant here to see damage resulting from two bombs, a Berlin dispatch said.]

Visit Plant

[The Germans said the British had claimed the Thyssen plant was wrecked. The correspondents were shown extensively about the plant. The Germans said one bomb fell in an open courtyard a few yards from a row of tanks which are part of a distillery making gasoline from coal. The second bomb smashed a laboratory which the Germans said was not part of the operating network.]

The British navy was estimated today to have lost 6,221 officers and men, killed or missing, since the war began.

Royal Air Force casualties in 11 months of fighting were placed at more than 4,000.

Admiralty announcements showed 2,988 sailors and officers killed or fatally wounded, 3,204 missing, and 29 taken prisoner. In addition, 1,849 were wounded.

1,782 Fliers Missing

The air ministry's forty-first casualty list, covering an unspecified period, was released today, showing 150 airmen missing and 22 killed in action.

Added to the previous lists, it gave a total for the war of 1,782 missing, 620 killed and 241 wounded in action; 358 who died, 739 killed and 174 wounded "on active service," and 188 prisoners of war.

"Active service" casualties are those suffered in nonoperational flying duties, or on the ground through enemy action, the air ministry explained.

The admiralty announced tonight that the minesweeping trawler Marsona had been sunk by a mine.

Dr. Cook Dies, Claiming To End He Found North Pole

Declared He Made Arctic Discovery Year Before Peary

By the Associated Press

New Rochelle, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The strange, frustrated career of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who hovered between the roles of misunderstood explorer and spectacular charlatan in the eyes of the twentieth century public, was ended today by death.

The claimant to discovery of the North Pole succumbed at the age of 75 in the New Rochelle Hospital, having survived a cerebral hemorrhage just long enough to achieve a Presidential pardon for an old mail fraud conviction.

Son of German Immigrant

Cook's claim that he had reached the pole a year before Admiral Peary piqued world curiosity and shadowed his activities for 30 years; as recently as 1937 he was still reiterating his claim, vainly suing the Encyclopedia Britannica for saying he had been "universally rejected."

Cook, son of a German immigrant doctor named Koch, took up medicine and got into exploring as surgeon to the first Peary Arctic Expedition in 1891.

He led several subsequent Arctic expeditions, among them an asserted conquest of Mount McKinley, questioned by some authorities.

His controversial trip to the pole in 1908 led to the appointment of a committee which examined his data—and rejected it.

Cook dropped into obscurity, from which he emerged as a vaudeville lecturer. After the World War he went into Texas oil promotion, and in 1923 was convicted of mail fraud, fined $10,000 and sentenced to 14 years in Leavenworth. His wife, whom he had married in 1902, divorced him.

Cook was paroled in 1930 and went into retirement in Toms River, N. J. Recently he spent much time at the home of a friend, Robert van Ahlefeldt, in Larchmont, N. Y., and it was there he was stricken.

Pepper Blasts Lindbergh in Senate

harmed at the hands of the German Fuehrer."

Pepper praised the radio speech Sunday in which Gen. John J. Pershing urged that the United States swiftly make available to Great Britain at least 50 destroyers. "In a few months, or weeks, or perhaps days," Pepper said, the United States must decide whether it will follow the counsel of Gen. Pershing or of "the chief of the Fifth Column in this country, America's ancient hero, Col. Lindbergh."

The proposal of the A. E. F. commander was given guarded approval at the State Department yesterday. Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles told his press conference that the Pershing speech deserves serious thought and study. Welles said he had not read Lindbergh's address.

Senator Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, commenting on the Pershing speech, suggested the Uned States might trade destroyers for British battleships.

Pittman, recalling Lord Lothian's warning in June that a defeated Britain may have to surrender its fleet to Hitler, said:

"That spirit does not encourage the United States to make 50 destroyers available to Great Britain. If such a surrender is possible we had better have our ships on this side of the ocean and under our own control."

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, said "It would be absurd to grant England 50 destroyers and not take the next step of declaring war."

The Pershing proposal is a logical step toward entry into war, Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, told reporters.

Senator Pepper, ignoring the Democratic National Committee's careful preparations for a radio reply to Col. Lindbergh by Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, held the floor half an hour for his assault on the aviator.

The heat of Pepper's charges was matched in sharply phrased questions from several other Senators. Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, asked Pepper:

"Does the Senator think that if Col. Lindbergh perhaps had not earned his German medal when it was presented, he certainly has done so now?"

The Lindbergh speech was packed with "nonsensical premises" and "idiotic conclusions," said Senator Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia.

Lone voice raised on the floor in defense of Lindbergh was that of Senator Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia. Holt said his thoughts went back to 1927, when many of the same charges were hurled against the flier's father, Representative Lindbergh, of Minnesota, who opposed America's war.

Senator Lucas charged, on the radio, that Col. Lindbergh, "along with many others," had attempted to pin "on the shoulders of the President of the United States the ignominious label of war." He followed with numerous quotations from the President to show that he "is a man of peace and not of war."

Rumania, Bulgaria Reported Carrying Out Hitler's Order

By the Associated Press

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 5.—Bulgaria and Rumania, bowing to the will of Adolf Hitler after 27 years of territorial controversy, will reach an agreement by Saturday returning southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, sources close to the Bulgarian government asserted today.

Dobruja went to Rumania in 1913 after Bulgaria's defeat in the second Balkan War.

Following Hitler's instructions to Balkan diplomats at Salzburg last week that they settle their differences peaceably—and soon—preliminary negotiations were ended today, these sources said.

Rumanian and Bulgarian negotiators met Thursday at Craiova, in southwestern Rumania.

Axis Loyalty Expressed

Balkan experts said Bulgaria would receive her reward for leaning toward the Rome-Berlin Axis, a trend Rumania recently copied. German support for Bulgaria was reflected in the newspaper, Slovo. It reported that Premier Philoff and Foreign Minister Popoff last week expressed to Hitler "Bulgaria's loyalty to the Rome-Berlin Axis."

Soviet Russia already has taken back from Rumania the big Province of Bessarabia, to which she never renounced her claim. Rumania faces a third territorial loss, the Province of Transylvania, which Hungary wants back.

Greece Plot Reported

Authoritative sources predicted Bulgaria would get back all of her former territory, remaking the 1913 frontier. Bulgaria will present a bill for $234,000,000 for damages resulting during Rumanian occupation, but this is expected to be more than canceled by a Rumanian bill for public works.

Greece, another Balkan nation, was stirred by a report of a frustrated plot to overthrow the authoritarian regime of Premier General John Metaxas.

The newspaper, Kathimerini, said an anti-Metaxas group was banished after it was found plotting to seize control of Greece.

Senators Clash On Conscription

conscription, with its far-reaching implications of militarism and imperialism, is adopted as a permanent policy in America."

The Senate committee voted down, 10 to 4, a proposal by Johnson that former Secretary of War Woodring be invited to testify on the bill. Woodring indorsed the present system of voluntary enlistment in a letter to Senator Vandenberg (Republican) of Michigan, made public Friday.

Rejected again were two amendments which failed of adoption at an earlier committee session. The amendments would have exempted divinity students in their senior year from registration and would have specifically limited the number of men who could be called up in the first year after the bill's enactment to 900,000.

Those who voted in favor of the Burke-Wadsworth bill were Senators Sheppard, Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina; Thomas (Democrat), of Utah; Minton (Democrat), of Indiana; Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma; Schwartz (Democrat) of Wyoming; Hill (Democrat), of Alabama; Chandler (Democrat), of Kentucky; Smathers (Democrat), of New Jersey; Austin (Republican), of Vermont; Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire; Gurney (Republican), of South Dakota, and Holman (Republican), of Oregon.

Present but not voting was Senator Downey (Democrat), of California. Senator Slattery (Democrat), of Illinois, was absent.

Majority Leader Barkley said yesterday he intends to bring the bill onto the floor Thursday, anticipating favorable action on the Guard bill today or tomorrow.

Urges Pay Increase

An increase in basic Army pay from $21 to $30 a month was advocated by Gen. Marshall. The higher pay rate has been urged by many opponents of the conscription plan as an incentive to voluntary enlistment.

Under the Burke-Wadsworth bill all men between 21 and 31 would register for a year's training. Those with dependents or employed in occupations essential to the defense prgoram would be granted deferments.

Excluding the physically unfit, a reservoir of 4,500,000 men would then be available for training. From this group 400,000 would be selected by lot for immediate training and another 400,000 would be called up next spring. Trainees would receive the regular Army pay rate.

Penalties for Employers

Private employers who failed to restore men to their civilian jobs after the year's training was completed would be liable to prosecution for an unfair labor practice.

The House Military Affairs Committee will take up the Burke-Wadsworth bill in executive session today. Chairman May (Democrat), of Kentucky, said he will ask the committee to approve the Guard bill without hearings, thus permitting House action almost immediately after the anticipated Senate approval.

The conscription bill was denounced yesterday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"A voluntary enlistment program should be launched by the Government designed to create an army of 1,500,000 men," Green said. "American labor would respond to such a program wholeheartedly and enthusiastically."

The federation will support compulsory military training "when such action becomes necessary in order to defend, protect and preserve America," he added.

Youths' Rescue Attempt Fails to Save Drug Clerk

24, a waiter, of Hyattsville, Md.; William Olson, 16, and Louis Rohrbaugh, 16, of Mount Rainier. Holmes was a roomer at Olson's home.

Shortly before 3 p. m., as they rowed downstream, Holmes dived overboard to race the rowers back to Warner's boathouse, in the 3800 block of K street northwest. His foot was cut by a fish hook, and he clambered back to examine the wound.

The cut was slight, and he dived again, coming up alongside the boat to fish his wallet out of his pocket. He handed the billfold to young Olson and said, jokingly:

"There's a hundred dollars in here. If I don't make it, you can pay your mother for my room and board and pay off the rest of my bills."

Grossman followed him. He told police that Holmes sank from sight about 50 feet from shore.

"I dived after him," Grossman said, "and brought him back to the surface. He dragged me under and I swallowed a lot of water. Then I grabbed his hair and started toward shore."

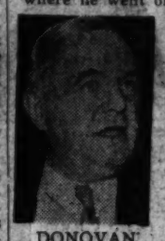
Finally, exhausted, Grossman let go, yelled for help and stroked off toward shore alone. The rowboat was out of sight.

Crampton and Saylor heard Grossman's cries and swam to assist. They dived half a dozen times, but the water was too deep for them to find Holmes' body. Crampton swam back to shore and carried the boulder out into the river. With its aid he reached bottom and found the body.

Col. Donovan Reports to Knox On Secret Mission to London

Copyright by New York Times

Col. William J. Donovan, of New York, who arrived in that city Sunday from England, where he went on a confidential mission for Secretary of the Navy Knox, reported to the Secretary yesterday. Colonel Donovan was closeted with Secretary Knox for more than an hour and following the conference said he was not in a position to say anything regarding his visit to England.



DONOVAN

"Absolutely nothing to say," said Knox, also.

The mission on which Colonel Donovan journeyed overseas is one of the present-day mysteries of the Navy. Outside of Colonel Knox, Colonel Donovan and certain high officers of the Navy, apparently no one knows anything about it.

President Roosevelt sent to the Senate yesterday estimates for $28,786,000 in new naval appropriations.

Included for public works under the Bureau of Yards and Docks were the following allotments: Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., $1,000,000, and Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Va., $1,950,000.

The request for authorization included $15,000,000 for ordnance and ordnance stores. An immediate appropriation of $10,000,000 for naval aviation was asked.

Temporary structures and facilities would be erected at Annapolis for additional midshipmen.

The Navy announced award of a contract for additional buildings and accessories at the Naval Academy to McCloskey & Co., Philadelphia, at an estimated cost, including the fee, of $1,210,000.

* * * *

Chairman Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, of the House Naval Committee introduced legislation yesterday to permit President Roosevelt to appoint to the Naval Academy all those youths who qualified both mentally and physically for entrance at the academy this year but were not admitted for such reasons as lack of vacancies.

Vinson said his bill would add about 180 men to the class entering the academy this year, bringing the total of 1940 entrants to about 1,000.

Ordnance officers said yesterday they expected to obtain about $700,000,000 from past and present defense appropriatoins for the construction of approximately 60 munitions plants at selected points within the five areas.

Col. H. K. Rutherford, director of the planning branch in the Ordnance Department, said that one of the important factors considered in setting up the areas was to locate plants at least 200 to 250 miles inland "to minimize the hazards of attack from the air."

Rutherford said he believed a number of communities had a distorted idea of the value of a munitions plant to the community. Such a plant, he said, probably would employ large numbers of people for a while, then be shut down after a comparatively brief time and be placed on the reserve list.

Secretary of the Navy Knox announced yesterday that in connection with the President's program for the voluntary training of more young men have made applications for the second cruise than can be accommodated and enlistments for a third training cruise are now being received. More than 2,300 have been enlisted for the training program.

Of the applicants for the second cruise, approximately 1,500 will embark in the battleship Wyoming, New York and Texas on Monday, August 19.

The National Defense Advisory Commission announced yesterday creation of a division of State and local cooperation, to be headed by Frank Bane, former executive director of the Social Security Board and now executive director of the Council of State Governments.

The new division, the commission said, would be a channel of communication between it and State defense councils; keep State and local councils informed about defense program developments, particularly activities in which their cooperation was required; receive reports from the local councils on coordination problems requiring Federal attention and transmit information between State and local councils.

Size of Families To Govern Pay Of Frenchmen

Women Told to Return To 'Prime Purpose, Having Children'

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, Aug. 5.—Workmen in the new France will be paid in proportion to the size of their families, instead of the usual merit-based salaries, Youth Minister Jean Ybarnegaray announced tonight.

Women, he said, "will return to their prime traditional purpose in life—being in their homes, having children and living only to raise strong, useful men."

Fathers will be given preference over bachelors in both public and private employment in this revolutionary move to check France's dwindling birth rate. Many have offered the low birth rate as a big factor in France's military collapse.

The defeat by Germany was expected to be the prelude to "one of the greatest victories a people ever won over themselves," the minister declared.

"Mothers will be artisans of this secret and magnificent triumph," Ybarnegaray said.

Latin to Be Dropped in Schools

A revolution in public instruction also was planned. Obligatory studies of mathemtics and Latin for young women will be replaced with courses in household economy and childbearing.

Women instructors have been ordered to towns and farms to train all young women how to dress, feed and care for babies.

France lost 1,500,000 men in the World War, leaving women to fight out their own welfare, to the detriment of rearing children.

Since 1910, some 500,000 marriages were estimated as wrecked by divorce, with 100,000 other women voluntarily remaining sterile.

Paris, Aug. 5 (via Berlin) (U.P.).—Warning that a "serious scarcity" of food threatens in German-held Paris and the Seine region, French officials today appealed to the civil population for self-imposed food rationing.

"It is our duty to appeal to your reasoning as well as your patriotism," the appeal stated. "We don't want to alarm you but you must understand the necessity for discipline which must be freely accepted and rigorous.

"The administration has accomplished its duty in taking all the necessary measures to economize on existing stocks of food but this effort will be in vain if consumers and merchants do not help spontaneously."

Spain Orders Ships to Stay In Their Ports

British Tightening Of Blockade Believed Reason for Move

Copyright by New York Times

Madrid, Aug. 5.—All Spanish ships have been ordered to remain in port and those now in foreign harbors have been ordered to stay there, it was reported tonight on reliable authority.

The cancellation and resumption of sailings of Italian ships provided a good barometer of Premier Mussolini's intentions in the days before Italy entered the war but there had been nothing in the Spanish press to indicate such a step was imminent.

However, many believe that, as with Italy, the question is the date, and certain military steps have been taken in Barcelona and other points.

An alternative explanation for the order to Spanish ships to stay off the high seas may be that Spain is not willing to comply with the drastic new British blockade rules—at least until Spain sees whether or not other countries are going to accept them.

The, new British regulations which take effect August 7, provide that any neutral goods which do not have a British navicert will be subject to seizure as presumed enemy property. Previously many ships bound to and from Spain carried no navicerts and were allowed to pass.

So far as can be learned, Spain, although naturally not welcoming the new British policy, has not offered strenuous objections. The American ban on the export of gasoline to Spain caused much harder feelings.

A petroleum expert of the British ministry of economic warfare is scheduled to arrive in Madrid tomorrow to examine the situation and—barring untoward developments—may work out a solution.

His job is to find out how much gasoline Spain has on hand and to make sure of none leaking through to Germany or Italy. The Spaniards, it is understood, say they have six weeks' normal supply, or between 100,000 and 150,000 tons, and insist they are keeping it all at home.

According to available information the Germans, despite the fact that they now have a rail connection with Spain, have not yet recevied any iron ore, or pyrites, which they bought in large quantities during the civil war.

Trade between Britain and Spain meanwhile, has dropped off somewhat because of the lack of shipping, although Spain is still getting 25,000 tons of Welsh coal every month and sending back iron ore and pyrites in exchange.

Newsman Flies Over Channel In Nazi Plane, Sees No Ships

By Preston Grover
Associated Press Staff Writer

Ghent, Belgium, Aug. 5.—I flew in a German plane along the English Channel, barely 30 miles from the British coast, and saw not a single ship afloat nor any signs of English activity.

Taking off near Ghent with a party of newspaper correspondents we headed for the Channel coast northeast of Dunkerque to get as close as possible a view of air operations in the long period of "preliminary attacks" before the long-awaited direct assault on England.

Flying southward along the English Channel coast, sometimes over water, sometimes over the shore, we saw ruined Dunkerque—smashed by German dive-bombers and artillery during the removal of the British Expeditionary Force in the last days of the Battle of Flanders early in June.

Later, at a hidden-bomber base, we watched the Stukas rehearse their scream-down attacks.

At a rocket signal six of the planes roared out of tree-hidden shelters. The last was in the air within 50 seconds. We were told pilots in relays sit in six or more of the planes day and night, ready for instant action.

The dive bombers have sirens attached to each wheel support, operated by tiny propellers.

They climb to 15,000 feet, then screamed down at us making the most horrifying noise I ever heard. The squad swelled as the planes came down until the whole sky seemed filled with it.

The planes pulled out of the dive and went over us at a hedge-clipping elevation, wavering and dodging to show how they evade anti-aircraft fire.

German officers said the Stukas are of tremendous effect because of their extreme accuracy, the awful force with which they hurl their bombs and the "utter demoralization" they cause among troops.

A diligent search of the Channel shipping lanes through my glasses failed to discover a single ship afloat.

We did see Dunkerque from 600 to 1,000 feet above. It was a spectacle from a nightmare.

Although our plane circled again and again I could not see a solitary individual in the ruins of what once was France's Atlantic City.

Lying in the mud of drained canals or just offshore with only their masts showing above the water were 11 large-sized vessels. The shoreline was strewn with dozens of smaller ships from launch size to light coast patrol boats rushed across the bomb-churned Channel from England to save stranded troops.

Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesserling, in charge of the Nazi air force of the northwest district opposite England, said 40 per cent of the British ships which reached Dunkerque never got away.

Over the ground where the British fell back toward Dunkerque we could see clumps of trees where soldiers apparently had sought shelter from planes. Bomb craters could be seen around them.

Around Courtral, however, there was little sign of severe fighting. Fields were dotted with rows of bundled grain.

We saw no houses wrecked, but the bomb craters made it easy to trace the battle lines. Village after village of western Belgium and northwestern France showed no signs of fighting nor preparations for further activity.

First Crack at Nazi Planes Tickles Texan With R. A. F.

American Adventurer With 1,500 Flying Hours Enlists via Ottowa, Tells of Carrying Fight to Germans

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 5.—"Texas Shorty," a 27-year-old American air adventurer from Laredo, exchanged shots with Germans today in a dogfight over the French coast in which he and his new British mates were credited with downing two Nazi planes on his first pursuit with the Royal Air Force.

His plane was punctured by Nazi bullets but he landed it safely—and asked for more.

"Great fun—wouldn't have missed it for all the Japs in China," he said. He reported for active duty only yesterday.

The air ministry said the American pilot chased two Messerschmitts, hit one and himself was attacked by other German fighters. The ministry refused to give out his name.

"I was never so tickled in my life," the Texan said. "We went across the Channel to look for trouble, but it was the Germans who found it.

"Four miles from Calais at 10,000 feet we saw five Messerschmitts 109s and somewhere around was a larger group of them.

"We sailed right into them and our squadron leader set the pace by cracking down one Messerschmitt. He and another pilot saw it dive into the sea.

"Then another pilot chased one German toward France and shot pieces off of it. I had a good crack at one myself, but suddenly found two others on me. Something hit the fusilage, shaking us a bit, but we came out of it quickly.

"While I whirled around another Messerschmidt fired into the cowling. I had another crack at him before he disappeared, then we turned for home."

The young Texan, short and fair-haired, said he decided to join the R. A. F. after France collapsed, went to Ottawa from Texas and showed a logbook with 1,500 flying hours.

"In 15 minutes I was out on the street again with a promise that I would be on the next boat to England. And I was.

"For three weeks I was tried out in a Spitfire, then reported yesterday for action. This Spitfire is a beautiful job. Once I got the hang of it I knew I could fly it anywhere and anyhow."

Canada Interns Montreal Mayor

Montreal (Tuesday) Aug. 6 (AP).—Mayor Camilien Houde, of Montreal, has been interned under the war measures act, it was announced early today by Superintendent H. R. Gagnon, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Opposition leader A. B. Hanson had charged in the House of Commons on Saturday that Houde had "openly defied the law of Canada" by urging the public to disregard national registration August 19-21.

Transport Armada Seen Off China

London (Tuesday), Aug. 6.—According to a Daily Express Hongkong dispatch, a liner that arrived there from Shanghai today reported having sighted an "armada" of 18 transports escorted by warships traveling southward.

Apparently the convoy started from the Japanese base at Formosa, the dispatch says.

Blended Ranch Mink Coats, $998

Natural Ranch Mink Coats, $1,498

Coats of both types are beautifully made, richly lustrous. But dark natural furs must be matched with infinite care—lighter ones are cleverly blended to the same flattering tones—so your natural ranch mink coat must be a more expensive, more precious coat.

In either case, you have an exceptionally fine fur—for ranch mink has been developed to a high degree, through controlled breeding, scientific feeding and correct living conditions.

See for yourself coats of ranch mink—luxurious, flattering, constantly chic—now in our air-conditioned Fur Salon. Sizes 14 to 38.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Overstuffed Broadway Retires to a Back Seat

New York Theaters at Season's Lowest Ebb; 'Red' Skelton Gets Extra Week's Parole; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THE LOW EBB at which the Broadway theater finds itself these impending dog days reflects a condition that somehow never seems to extend to the National Capital. Residents of Washington may not realize it, but they live in what is probably the best "show town" in these United States, year in and year out.

BELL

The chronic fault-finders, who habitually insist that this city sees the best pictures only after they have worn out their welcome everywhere else, should scan the list of "turkeys" that find their way to the screens of some of Gotham's most pretentious cathedrals of the celluloids. Many of them are never heard of here—save in the remote "double-bill" areas.

The pinch, at the moment, seems to be extending also to the so-called legitimate playhouses on the Main Stem, where there remain hardly enough Grade A attractions to shake the proverbial stick at—if you happen to be a stick-shaker-atter. Latest of the first-water hits to announce its temporary closing is Robert E. Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night," starring the Lunts. This, however, is only a temporary halt in the career of one of the season's most distinguished dramas. It will reopen on September 9.

In the meantime, Manhattan will have to do more or less the best it can with the night spots and roadhouses. Conscious of the fact or not, Washington is lucky.

That month's closing of "There Shall Be No Night" is less a matter of public apathy toward its many fine qualities than it is a desperate need for a few days rest on the part of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontame. It will be recalled that they had just finished a transcontinental road tour and a special New York engagement when Mr. Sherwood popped the script of his new play about Finland at them, just as they were leaving for a summer of relaxation on their farm at Genesee Depot, Wis. So impressed were they with "There Shall Be No Night" that they plunged immediately into its production, with results that are historic in the theater. A month's respite at this stage of the game seems not too much for them to ask—and get.

Come to think of it, that seemingly distant year of 1934 was productive of an extraordinary number of superlative screen offerings. When a good picture is "brought back," it is an odds-on bet that it stems back to 1934. The latest of these opulent successes to be restored to Washington's vision will be "One Night of Love," starring Grace Moore, with Tullio Carminati opposite. For her role in this picture, Miss Moore received a gold medal from the Academy of Arts and Sciences "for conspicuous achievement in raising the standard of motion picture entertainment." "One Night of Love" will be given a late public preview at the Little Theater tonight and open its regular engagement there tomorrow morning. It follows "The Count of Monte Cristo"—also produced in 1934, by the way.

It's an ill wind, etc. It seems that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer aren't quite ready to begin that new picture with Robert Taylor and "Red" Skelton, after all. It won't begin to roll for another week, according to advices just received at Thirteenth and E streets. So "Red" will frolic away a second week on the stage of the Earle Theater, instead of leaving town by plane Thursday night to reach Culver City on time for the date now postponed. It was Red's first idea to take a brief breather before winging out to the Coast, but they talked him out of it, thanks be.

Best-sellers unquestionably make super-profitable "box-office," but it also works the other way around. Rachel Field's "All This and Heaven Too" profited greatly at the motion picture theaters—with Bette Davis starred—from the enthusiasm of those who had read it as a popular novel. Now the box-office success of the picture has restored the book to the best-seller rank after all these years—two or three of them, anyhow. "All This and Heaven Too" now ranks sixth in sales on the bookstands. Didn't someone say something once about turn about being something or other?

Speaking of "ATAHT," it is being held over for a second week at Abe Linchtman's Lincoln Theater, on U street. This is the Lincoln's first hold-over of a popular-priced film in 18 years. "Gone With the Wind" ran there a fortnight, but at increased prices on the reserved seat basis.

Spurred to renewed effort by Author Noel Coward's recent approval of their performance of his play, "Fallen Angels," the Cross Roads Theater Co., over at Bailey's Cross Roads, in Virginia, are romping into the second week of the flippant comedy with redoubled pressure on audience risibilities. Mr. Coward's visit to the haymow was the big thrill of their pseudo-professional lives.

Roadsiders Revive That Bloody Murder

By Richard L. Coe

The Roadsiders' own, personal "Tobacco Road," "Murder in the Red Barn," is the seven-year-old group's offering for the next two weeks, its fourth production of that soul-searing melodrama by one A. Nonymous. "She's More to Be Pitied Than Censured," the Roadsiders' first entr'acte, also is revived.

Not only is this champ of all cliche-laden dramas back in harness, but Eugene Kressin has returned to his stall as the oldest warhorse in Roadside's stable of hissable villains. From the minute he creeps upon the stage, he is depreciated, spat upon and reviled, truly the finest tribute any Roadside audience can pay a black heart. He accepts this wretched treatment with more villainy, bloodier deeds and a scene of ghastly retribution, grim reward for the goaders-on out front to whom nothing is more delicious than a pure maiden in deep distress.

For Maria Marten is sure 'nuf in trouble, for a country lass whose neighbors talk. Like Faust's miserable Marguerite, she fell for the talk of a smoothie who had no intentions of giving her his ring. Maria has her babe in a hidden cottage and its father snuffs out its asthma-ridden life with a conniving gypsy's poison. Then he sets to work on Maria, lures her to the old red barn, pops a bullet into her ribs and plops her body into a tailor-made grave.

Gray Glides Gracefully

That all this is right up the Roadsiders' cowpath has long been demonstrated. It was new to this reviewer, even though the rest of the packed house knew some of the lines as well as the players. Some of the lines: "With my last breath . . . I die!" "A woman is fool enough to do anything for the man she loves" (cheers and applause).

Nor is the play the only delirium. That entr'acte, played from Anton Hardt's original routine, arranged by Betty Gray, is as funny as all Roadside entr'actes traditionally are. Which is plenty funny. Miss Gray, Betty Brunstetter, Larry Lawrence and Mr. Kressin are the unsmiling foursome.

For a play with 17 scenes, "Murder in the Red Barn" is remarkably well staged. There is variety in Don Jones' settings, for each time the script calls for "another part in the wood." Ralph Fowler's direction has grand humor and Dorothy Croissant's costumes are as true to spirit as ever.

Aside from Mr. Kressin's superb Corder, there is Betty Gray's admirable glide to amaze one; an effect, we vow, possible only by the actress mentally imagining herself on roller skates. Norman Rose is particularly fine as an aging gypsy, while Lois Alexander's mother is a treasure-trove of smirks ("Ah, my shorn lamb!). Betty Brunstetter, Larry Lawrence, Ken Banghart and Ralf Nicholson are others whose unerring demeanor of complacent respectability enliven the revival.

If you haven't seen it, don't miss it. If you have, you know where to travel for a laugh.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Aug. 5.

SOCIAL NOTES: John McCormack, the singer, was a guest at a dinner party given by Helen Hayes and Charles MacArthur. For two hours the singer sat next to a young lady whom he was engaged in earnest argument. He finally threw down his napkin angrily, and stalked away, muttering: "Imagine her arguing about such a thing" . . . "Take it easy," MacArthur cautioned. "What were you arguing about?" . . . "Imagine her," McCormack replied, "arguing with me, about poetry." "Well, do you know who she is?" said the host . . . "Who she is," answered the singer, "is a matter of complete indifference to me" . . . "All right, then," said MacArthur, "but she's Edna St. Vincent Millay."

MOVIES DEPARTMENT: Luise Rainer, who will resume her film career in the fall, was advised by her agent about how to conduct herself at the new studio . . . "I want you to remember one thing," the agent pleaded. "When you are at the studio, please, please don't mention the word 'Art'" . . . "But why not?" Miss Rainer demanded . . . "Because," she was told, "it's a crazy word."

HEALTH DEPARTMENT: When Franchot Tone went to a New York hospital for treatment, he was unable to sleep because of the groans emanating from the patient in the next room. He summoned the interne, and made his complaint . . . "Well, what do you want me to do?" asked the interne . . . Franchot drew a coin from under his pillow, flipped it and covered it with his palm. "Heads that guy gets the hypo," he propositioned, "tails I get it."

FINANCE DEPARTMENT: Elaine Ellis, the young actress, related some of the experiences she had in a recent trip to Europe. One of her listeners asked her how she could afford such a trip . . . "Well, I was in a show," she explained, "and I saved $15 each week out of my salary?" . . . "But that was such a long, expensive trip," the heckler insisted. "How could you do that on a $15 a week savings" . . . "The show in which I appeared," answered Elaine, "was 'Tobacco Road.'"

MUSIC DEPARTMENT: When Richard Himber broadcast for a cigarette sponsor some years ago, he tired of the criticism directed at him by one of the officials of the sponsoring company. Himber finally decided to assert his independence, summoned his secretary and dictated a letter notifying that he was relinquishing this $1,000 per broadcast job. "Dear Sir," he dictated, "I hearby submit my resignation, and" . . . He turned to his secretary, and asked: "How do you spedd 'resignation?'" . . . "With one 'G,'" she answered . . . "One G?" Himber repeated, suddenly remembering the weekly check. "That reminds me—tear up the letter."

THEATER DEPARTMENT: Arthur Kober, author of "Having Wonderful Time," insists that producers who take options on his plays always pay the advance royalties promptly. When Marc Connelly exhibited interest in Kober's new show, the playwright asked for advance royalties. He received a check for $100, framed in glass and suitable for hanging. Attached thereto was a sign: "In Case of Emergency, Break Glass."

REALTY DEPARTMENT: Elliott Roosevelt tells this story when, shortly after he married his present wife, they went to Hollywood, and rented an inexpensive home. "Here's a wonderful quiet place in Santa Monica," the realty agent assured them. "Look at the pictures. Just the right number of rooms—two Japanese gardens—a swimming pool . . . everything you could want. All for $70 a month" . . . Roosevelt agreed to rent it, sight unseen. It was an amazing bargain, he agreed, until he found mysterious red splotches on the floor of the dressing room. This, he later discovered, was the room where the previous occupant had committed suicide—Paul Bern, husband of Jean Harlow.

EMPLOYMENT DEPARTMENT: Edward Duryea Dowling, the director, went to Zeppo Marx, the agent, to secure the services of a handsome juvenile managed by Zeppo. Dowling painted an attractive picture of the enviable role the juvenile would have . . . "A famous veteran star will provide the comedy," said Dowling, "and a lovely ingenue will be in it. But this handsome client of yours will carry the entire story. He'll have the love interest. Y'know—young, handsome . . ." Zeppo leaned back in his chair, "I know," he interrupted, dreamily. "The kind of part I used to play."

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 5 (DNS).—Famous refugees are pouring into this country by the boat load ever since Herr Hitler marched into Paris—and right or wrong, mark my words, plenty of Hollywood's best jobs will go to them. Myron Selznick and Ray Goetz left Saturday for New York to confer with some of these well known artists and playwrights who are under contract to the Selznick agency.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Rene Clair, famous French megaphoner, is one of them. So is Marcel Pagnol, who wrote "The Baker's Wife" and "Topaze," the play Frank Morgan did on the stage and which John Barrymore made later in the movies. Henri Bernstein and Jacques Duvivier are also in New York and last, but far from least, the celebrated Ferenc Molnar, world-famous Hungarian playwright. Certainly a list of celebrities to conjure with, but let's not forget our own American talent.

The only movie actress I know in Hollywood who ever had her face on seven magazine covers in one month is Rita Hayworth, who seems to have been discovered all at once. She was only 16 when she joined the movies with her family, the dancing Cansinos, and all of a sudden seems to have grown up into a beautiful woman. Rita checks in at Paramount on loan from Columbia for the leading femme role in "I Wanted Wings," the aviation epic with William Holden, Ray Milland and Wayne Morris.

Eddie Goulding returns to Warners after an absence of many months. He was so ill with double pneumonia that he gave his friends a scare, but he is so well now that he has to watch his weight, and he's raring to get back on the job. Hal Wallis has returned from his three weeks' boating trip and he and Eddie will get together immediately on "The Fabulous Thirties," Mark Hellinger's story, which Goulding will direct. John Garfield plays the male lead and the rest of the cast will be chosen as soon as Hal and Eddie make up their minds.

Chatter in Hollywood: One day this week Lana Turner's attorney, Richard Cantillon, will start divorce proceedings for her against Artie Shaw. Cantillon has been in Reno working on a case and she has telephoned him there and asked him to have the hearing as soon as possible. So I guess the sudden elopement of Lana and Artie will soon be in the limbo of forgotten romances.

A line or two: A premiere to end all premieres will be staged in Salt Lake City August 23, when "Brigham Young" opens simultaneously in the town's four biggest theaters. Ty Power, Dean Jagger, Linda Darnell and Mary Astor will make the trek and personally appear at each theater . . . William Gargan and R-K-O are huddling over the "Life of Kid McCoy," colorful prize fighter.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Rosemary Lane and Buddy Westmore have said adieu to romance. He and Betty Grable glimpsed at the Brown Derby; who was the pretty girl dining with Gene Markey at the Lamaze? Not as pretty, however, as Hedy Lamarr. No one in the world is; Barbara Stanwyck and Bob Taylor are consulting South American maps with the idea of a vacation there.

Smiley Burnette will never diet again, so help him. He has to put back the 30 pounds he lost before he starts his next picture; Fritz Lang, who has been devoting himself to Kay Francis, dined with her at Victor Hugo's just before he left for New York; stag night at the Brown Derby. Where were all the gals, when Ty Power, Warner Baxter, Don Ameche and Gilbert Roland dined at solo tables; Geraldine Fitzgerald has rented a house and will no longer take her yearly treks to Ireland.

That's all today, see you tomorrow!

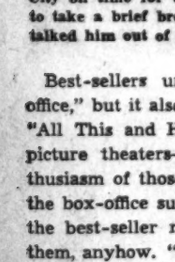
In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, August 5.

Not all the gagging on the "Love Thy Neighbor" set is between Allen and Benny. Director Mark Sandrich yelled at one of the prop boys to get him "a yard of ectoplasm for a scene." This stumped the boy, who raced to the Research Department. Finally, after much technical discussion, boy asked, "What is it in American?" The gal replied, "Well, all I know is that when it comes out of a spiritualist's mouth—it's your grandfather!"



HOPPER

For an hour the other day I watched Mary Martin, Jack Benny, and a covey of prop boys, with a grappling hook and a coil of piano wire, trying to pull a break-away dress off Mary Martin so she could be strip-teased by accident rather than design. (Hays office—Ha! Ha!) Each time, the grappling hook missed its mark, the dress its cue. Then Mary Martin, whose heart used to belong to Daddy, said, "I never had this trouble in New York!"

And speaking of Mary Martin, when she wasn't working, she descended upon Designer Edith Head with a pair of scissors and said, 'Now, my girl, you've had your way with me. If you wanted my waistline at my hips, you put it there. You gave me a bustle. I've worn everything you've put on this body. Now, I don't like the way you do your hair—I'm going to fix it.' And I'll be darned if she didn't. Now Edie looks so cute they're thinking of testing her for a glamour girl.

With the Countess of Jersey, former wife of Cary Grant, in town, and Babs Hutton, Countess Haugwitz von Reventlow (probably his "future") here, Hollywood's now looking for excuses to put crests on its underwear, too.

Woody Van Dyke, major in the Reserve Marine Corps, has been trying to get John Carroll to join. John said, "Okay, if you'll join mine." He's a reserve officer in the Fifth Army Air Corps.

Harpo Marx, after listening to the applause Oscar Levant got at the Hollywood Bowl, now has a yen to do a harp solo there. Well, I say, why not? I'd certainly come to hear you, Harpo—with or without the instrument.

Director Al Rogell tried to get permission to dub in the heads of Clark Gable, Tyrone Power and Bob Hope on the Ritz Brothers for a scene in "Argentine Nights," in which the Andrews Sisters look at the Ritzes and imagine they're seeing the other boys. Scene didn't come off because other studios said "No."

A pal of Virginia Bruce wrote a story for a horror magazine, which rejected it with the following note: "We are returning your manuscript. It is too horrible for us." So Virginia gave it to Boris Karloff—he loves it!

If Gracie Allen were elected President, she'd undoubtedly favor capital punishment—no one ever heard of Gracie letting a man finish a sentence.

Marie Ouspenskaya is coaching 17-year-old Carolyn Butler, daughter of writer Frank. Ouspenskaya says the girl is another Bette Davis.

Arthur Murray reports this conversation between two chorus girls—First: "Just because I'm engaged to him is no sign we'll be married." Second: "Of course not, dearie—he might back out. Many have."

Coordinating Group Formed On Education and Defense

NEW EDUCATIONAL-DEFENSE GROUP—Dr. George F. Zook (left), president of the American Council on Education, and Dr. William E. Givens, executive secretary of the National Education Association, were among the representatives of educational groups who yesterday formed the National Coordinating Committee on Education and Defense

Representatives of 48 Institutions Band Together to Serve as Link Between Colleges and U. S. Agencies

Representatives of 48 educational groups here yesterday banded themselves into the National Coordinating Committee on Education and Defense.

This is designed to serve as a link between American schools, colleges and universities and the Federal agencies which will deal with national defense.

Essentially, the new committee will be education's spokesman to the Government.

Within this large committee will function an operating committee of 13 educators. Dr. Willard E. Givens, 4329 Blagden avenue northwest, executive secretary of the National Education Association, and Dr. George F. Zook, 4500 Klingle street northwest, president of the American Council on Education, were empowered to appoint the committee, which will include themselves.

Dr. Givens said the appointments would be made this week.

The progress of defense measures to date were described to the educators by Floyd W. Reeves and Will Alexander, of the national defense commission.

Resolutions were adopted indorsing an adequate national defense and pledging the support of the new educational-defense organization to the national defense movement.

Among those attending were Lyman Bryson, of New York City, American Association for Adult Education; Esther Caukin Brunauer, of 1634 I street northwest, American Association of University Women; Irvin Kuenzli, of Chicago, American Federation of Teachers; Ben G. Graham, of Pittsburgh, American Association of School Administrators; Cecil W. Creel, of 1372 National Press Building, Washington, Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities; John W. Davis, Institute, W. Va., Conference on Negro Land Grant Colleges, and Paul E. Elicker, 1201 Sixteenth street northwest, National Association of Secondary School Principals of the N. E. A. The representation was Nation-wide. The meeting was at the Mayflower Hotel.

No Time to Think, Kierman Says of Rip-Roaring Song

FRANK KIERMAN
Has his fingers crossed

Frank Kierman sings the lines of "Maj. Gen. Stanley" in "The Pirates of Penzance" and hopes for the best during the rapid-fire "modern major general" song.

To sing the lines, he disclosed yesterday, involves training, study, a condition of mind and an attitude of reckless abandon, all of which, when properly combined, may bring the performer at least muddling through, or through to a roaring finish should the performer forget all of these things and surrender himself completely to the fervor of the moment.

To attain any approach to the business of singing the lines, considered the most tricky ever conceived, the performer should read and reread them until they become as automatic as "good morning" or "ham sandwich on rye," according to Kierman.

If the performer thinks ahead, if his mind turns to what he is doing, he is sunk. He must simply start singing and quit thinking. There is only one place where the mind should definitely function. This is on the line "And tell you every detail of Caractacus' uniform." That's a danger point, at least to Kierman.

Should, despite this system of leaving the business to the subconscious, something go wrong and the performer find the orchestra racing ahead with himself muddled up in Caractacus' uniform, the matter of regaining the orchestra is a puzzler which can't be turned over to a committee for solution, under the hurrying exigencies.

Kierman doesn't know exactly what would happen. Having sung the role some 50 times and never messed it, he can offer no advice. He had called at The Post principally to say that the National Symphony Orchestra, which will accompany the Daltry Opera Company against the Watergate tomorrow night, "seems better, at least to me, in this kind of work than the Philadelphia Symphony."

Kierman, 26, was cofounder of the company. In the last four winters he has taught English at the Harvey School, Hawthorne, N. Y. He has spent his summers in comic roles, inventing fresh, novel touches for such eternal characters as Maj. Gen. Stanley.

Forestville Man Charged by Police

Prince Georges County police yesterday charged Ralph Carrick, of Forestville, Md., with assault with intent to kill, in the Saturday night shooting of Earl Sweeney, 25, in front of the Carrick home.

According to police, the men argued over a loud radio, at the end of which Sweeney was shot in the left leg. Casualty Hospital yesterday reported his condition was "not serious."

Brunswick Mayor Wins Reelection By Big Majority

Brunswick, Md., Aug. 5 (AP).—Mayor Alfred Harris was reelected today over his only opponent, Ernest L. Main, in Brunswick's municipal election. Five councilmen were chosen.

Main, a former council member, got only 134 votes in making his third unsuccessful attempt to win the mayoralty, compared to 1,020 votes for Harris.

Young Democrats Of Takoma Park Plan Picnic Aug. 17

Senators Radcliffe and Tydings will be guests of honor at the annual outing of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Takoma Park, August 17 at the Meadowbrook Saddle Club, East-West highway.

F. Byrne Austin, president and general chairman, said other guests of honor will include Representatives Byron, Sasser, Thomas D'Alesandro, Attorney General William C. Walsh and National Committeeman William P. Lane, jr.

The affair will feature athletics, a luncheon and entertainment. The club has adopted the slogan "All you can eat for the price of admission."

War Fails to Overshadow British Hunt Row

The Clare, British "clipper" that landed under a camouflage of blue and green Sunday at LaGuardia Field, New York—to begin weekly transatlantic service—had aboard a newspaper with front page suggesting a calm British public.

The newspaper was "The Daily Telegraph," of London, issue of August 3. Its circulation department did well, landing it in America August 4.

Advertisements—a front page one of bread, others of operas, theaters, movies, cigarettes, books, a medicine for itching scalp and tooth paste—and cross word puzzles, showed that British eyes and interest aren't entirely on waters off the chalk cliffs.

"A shell goes sighing out to sea and a fountain of white water spurts up. And another and another. The defenders of the coast are at practice," the lead story, headlined "Coast Gunners Repel Mimic Invasion," says.

Two golfers seem to have been disturbed. "The gorse and bracken disappear under the drifting fumes, and a couple of golfers who had been playing as best they could in avenues between the wire have gone," the correspondent noted.

Conspicuous, at the top of the page, is an advertisement of air raid shelters "in precast reinforced concrete to hold six to fifty persons . . . as supplied to councils and government contractors."

In black-faced type, at bottom of Page 1 is "Blackout: 9:13 p. m.-5 a. m. Moon rises, 5.8 a. m., sets 6.5 p. m."

Top headlines announced "Children to Sail in Convoy Ships . . . Arrival of First Party of 86 in Canada." . . . "Mr. Roosevelt Urges Conscription." . . . "Ship Shoots 2 Nazis Down. Raider Crashes on Deck. Gunner Avenges Brother."

"The gunner who accounted for the second plane was Steward Laurie Halcrow, whose brother was killed by enemy action at sea six weeks ago. 'Give me a chance,' he said, 'and I'll give him what he gave my brother,' the story recounted.

"Lie Flat in Raids," a headline advised. "A review of the surgical treatment of a series of 12 recent air-raid casualties . . . reveals that the proportion of wounds above the hip to those below was two to one. This suggests one very important precaution, that is to lie flat as soon as the scream of a falling bomb is heard."

But war isn't all; it simply overtoned the newspaper. For example, a headline says "Belvoir Hunt Dispute." It appears that "Lieut. Col. F. G. D. Colman has resigned the mastership of the Duke of Rutland's Hounds following a proposal to reduce the number of hounds."

Mrs. Kellerman, D. C. Resident, Dies At Hyattsville

Mrs. Mary J. Kellerman, 71, long a resident of Washington, died yesterday at the Sacred Heart Home, Hyattsville, after an illness of three months.

The widow of John F. Kellerman, she had made her home with her sister, Mrs. J. A. Mertz, 11 Fourth street northeast, before she entered the institution.

She is also survived by five children, Mrs. Robert L. McKeever and John Kellerman, both of Silver Spring, Md.; Mrs. Earl E. Goss, William F. Kellerman, of Washington, and George M. Kellerman, of College Park, Md. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Japan Builds Power While Europe Wars

Pushes Domination Of Asia Started During World War

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, Aug. 5.—Political observers are re-examining today Japan's actions in the last European war in an effort to chart her probable course during this one.

The end, they assert, is the same—to establish herself as the dominant power in the Western Pacific, from Siberia to Australia. The means of pursuit are only slightly different.

In the World War, Japan:

Joined the Allies and made a clean sweep of German possessions in China and the South Seas.

Presented to China the famous "twenty-one demands," designed to consolidate her position in Manchuria and Mongolia, to provide special influence in Shantung, to obtain important economic rights in the Yangtze Valley, to control Chinese harbors and coastal areas, and in general, to give her complete economic and political supremacy in China.

Concluded a semisecret pact with Great Britain, wherein the two countries agreed to divide between them the Pacific islands formerly belonging to Germany, with the Equator as the line of demarcation.

Signed treaties with each of the Allies which virtually obtained recognition of the territorial claims Japan ultimately made at Versailles.

Conditions Still Similar

That was Japan between 1915 and 1918. External conditions closely paralleled those existing today. Then, as now, her European competitors in China were too deeply engrossed in war to offer much resistence.

Observers regard Japan's actions today as merely an extension of the cycle launched in 1915. So do many Japanese.

They speak of "the golden opportunity."

In a recent address the minister of war asserted that "Japan's policy of non-intervention does not mean standing with folded arms."

Her official spokesmen speak of an "Asiatic Monroe Doctrine." Some influential Japanese are preaching self-determination for all Oriental peoples—naturally including the Japanese, Burmese, Ceylonese, Indo-Chinese, and others who now populate European-held colonies. In short, an Asiatic constellation with Japan as the sun and a number of small satellites swinging around her.

Same Policies Applied

Thus, Japan has seized the present "golden opportunity" to apply to the southern Orient the same policies that were employed in China during the last European war.

She has:

Made what is considered an iron-clad agreement with the Dutch East Indies' government guaranteeing continued access to the islands' oil, tin and rubber.

Brought about the suspension of trade between French Indo-China and China, placed warships in Indo-China waters and a military naval inspection party in Indo-China territory, won the right to use Hanoi as a stop-over and cross Indo-China with a Japan-Siam airline.

Concluded a treaty of friendship with Siam.

Demanded that Great Britain close the Burma road to China, which was done.

Completed military operations, the effect of which is to surround Hongkong, the British crown colony.

Plans for a new Japanese state, based on far-reaching totalitarianism at home and committed to a foreign policy involving Japanese domination over French Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies, were announced this week by the government of Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye.

"Through With Toadyism"

The totalitarian principles of the new regime include the doctrine of service to the state by all persons, regardless of status, and "a unitary control system covering production, distribution and consumption of important commodities."

Under this regime, the announcement said, inequalities will be rectified and Japanese enabled to live a "plain, solid and vigorous life."

The government's statement did not take Japan any closer to the Rome-Berlin Axis, but stressed a more independent attitude toward other Western powers. "The government is through with toadyism," it said.

Closer relations with the Axis powers depend, Japanese say, on the attitude of Germany and Italy to the Far Eastern colonies of France, Britain and Holland. If the Axis shows signs of taking these territories for itself, then Japan, automatically, will be in opposition to them.

Churchill Began Invasion Study 30 Years Ago

By the Associated Press

Winston Churchill started worrying about an invasion of Britain decades ago.

Then, as now, the threat was militant Germany.

CHURCHILL

On one occasion, several simulated invasions were carried out under Churchill's direction, and with such success that he hurriedly terminated the maneuvers lest the potential enemy acquire helpful information.

The threat of an invaded Britain first became Churchill's problem in October, 1911. He had been made First Lord of the Admiralty after the Agadir crisis—one of the pre-world war series which periodically imperilled the peace of Europe.

Fifth Column Envisaged

The first Reich of Kaiser Wilhelm had a powerful army and a growing navy almost strong enough to challenge British supremacy on the sea. In the event of war between the two countries, Churchill saw the distinct possibility of a German attempt to land troops, and as long ago as 1913 "Fifth Column" aid for the invaders was not overlooked.

Churchill made exhaustive studies on the whole subject with admiralty experts in the three years prior to outbreak of the World War.

His ultimate conclusions:

That the surprise landing of as many as 70,000 "raiding" German troops on English soil could not be prevented.

That the British fleet was equal to smashing any greater effort, leaving the British army division ashore to destroy the force already landed.

Jellicoe in Maneuvers

Churchill described his concern over the invasion danger in one of the opening chapters of "The World Crisis"—his extensive history of the World War years and the events leading up to them.

"I called for an individual study to be made of all the different points where such forces could be landed," he narrated, "and what would be the best plans for the Germans to make in each case.

"At the maneuvers of 1913 Sir John Jellicoe adopted several of these plans for raiding the British coast and put them into execution. He achieved so considerable a measure of success that I thought it necessary to stop the maneuvers on the third day lest we might teach the Germans as well as ourselves."

Envisioned Undeclared War

Churchill kept admiralty experts busy on the problem with a series of papers he wrote, describing hypothetical invasion thrusts in detail. The task of the admirals was to work out how these could be combated.

One such paper was entitled "A Bolt from the Blue." (Although wars were formally declared in those days, Churchill anticipated history here by conceiving of an undeclared war.) Another in the series bore the title "The Time-Table of a Nightmare"— a title which brings to mind the current "Nazi time-table" phrase.

In outlining one imaginary invasion for admiralty solution, Churchill mentioned that sabotage and acts of treachery might occur simultaneously with the first military hostilities. A marginal note on this paper states: "Resident Germans (in England) may certainly be expected to cooperate locally."

Among the likely landing points for German troops, Churchill listed in one war problem Harwich, Immingham, Blyth on the Tyne, Dundee Cromarty, Balta Sound in the Shetlands, and on England's west coast "numerous undefended landing places in sheltered waters suitable for the debarkation of a large force (if it could get there)."

Admiralty's Conclusions

After a thorough examination of the whole invasion problem, Churchill said the admiralty's position was as follows:

"Once the fleet was concentrated in its war station, no large army could be landed in the British Isles. 'Large army' was defined for this purpose as anything over 70,000 men. More than that we guaranteed to intercept or break up while landing. Less than that could be dealt with by the British regular army."

Now Churchill has the old problem back with grave variations. His 1911-1914 calculations dealt only with the German coastline. Today the attack may come from any port from Norway to Spain. And in 1911 there was no Nazi air armada.

Loss of Otto Strasser Tests Strength of His Black Front

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 5.—The capture in France of Otto Strasser raises anew the question of the strength of the anti-Hitler movement Strasser has headed.

Strasser has tried to foment a revolt ever since Hitler came to power.

He has smuggled anti-Nazi newspapers throughout the Reich.

He has broadcast anti-Hitler talks from a secret radio close to the German border.

He has plastered walls and windows of German buildings and railroad trains with tiny stickers proclaiming "Hitler must go!"

Whether his capture by the Germans in Nazi-occupied France last week will mark the end of his efforts depends on the strength of the "Black Front" Strasser says he organized against Hitler within Hitler's own ranks.

The "Black Front" dates back to 1930, the year Strasser, a World War veteran helped to found the German National Socialist Party, split with Hitler over political principles. Strasser accused Der Fuehrer of "selling out" socialist beliefs to get financial support from big industrialists.

The strength of the "Black Front" never has been tested openly because Strasser, cannily avoiding disclosure of his personnel, did not put up candidates for office even in the days when Hitler was struggling for power.

The significance the Nazis place in the movement may be indicated by the "Black Fronts" assertion that between 600 and 700 known "Black Frontists" are interned in concentration camps.

Today "Black Frontists" are still lodged in high places if Otto Strasser's story, as he told it to Douglas Reed and as Reed told it in a recently published book, "Nemesis" (Houghton Mifflin), is accepted.

For instance, Strasser says a telephone call from Gestapo headquarters warned him the Gestapo was hunting him after Hitler read him out of the party in 1933.

Strasser also says a senior storm troop commander acted as his chauffeur in one flight from capture by Hitler agents in Bavaria.

A Milk especially fine for Growing Children

From Approved Maryland and Virginia Herds . . . Pasteurized and Packaged in Washington's Newest, Most Modern Milk Plant

MOTHERS here should know of this rich, new milk . . . produced with special care . . . especially fine for growing children. It is being introduced here by Sanitary Food Stores.

Lucerne Grade A comes from nearby Maryland and Virginia farms that are approved by the District of Columbia Health Authorities. To receive this approval the barns, herds and milk from these farms must pass a rigid inspection and meet the high standards of cleanliness and purity established by the health authorities for your protection.

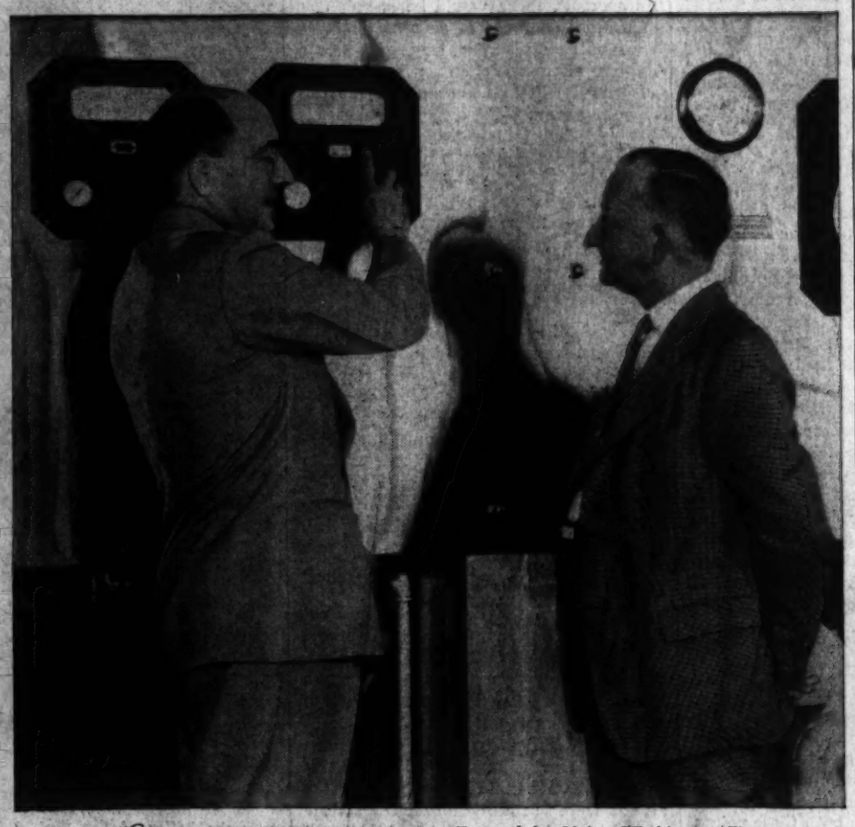
This good, rich milk is rushed here daily in fast trucks. Short milk collecting routes, constant temperature control and rapid pasteurizing schedules safeguard its delightful flavor and freshness.

We package Lucerne a modern, more convenient way. You pay no bottle deposit and there are no empties to return. Each Lucerne quart weighs 1¼ pounds less than a quart bottle of milk and takes less refrigerator space at home. Lucerne is easier to buy and to use.

Try Lucerne Grade A today. No Grade A milk sold here is finer. Yet because there's no home delivery charge included in the price, you save when you buy Lucerne.

ton can have it

DAILY TESTING Keeps Lucerne's Quality Always High. Here in the laboratory of the new Lucerne plant constant check is kept on each day's milk. Butterfat content is kept always higher than the law requires for Grade A. And each quart must have its full quota of healthful milk solids. Thus Lucerne is kept uniformly rich and healthful.



"CONGRATULATIONS On Big Step Forward in Giving Washington Fine Milk," Dr. R. R. Ashworth of Washington Health Department (right) tells Ray B. Bush, manager of new Lucerne plant. Automatic controls of amazing precision assure the uniform richness and purity of Lucerne Milk. Human handling and "guesswork" have been almost entirely eliminated. Lucerne is packaged in a new model plant just completed here. New methods and new equipment make it the "last word" in scientific milk production.

MODERN Automatic Packaging Safeguards Purity and Flavor. Here, in the Lucerne Plant, is the "last word" in efficient packaging of milk. In one continuous automatic operation, without being touched by human hands, this machine forms, sterilizes, accurately fills and closes the containers for Lucerne Grade A. The pouring lip is sealed inside against dirt.

INSULATED and Refrigerated Delivery Trucks safeguard Lucerne Flavor and Freshness. Even the delivery trucks have been specially designed and built for Washington service. Insulation and refrigeration keep the milk at uniformly low temperatures. Delivery schedules are carefully planned so that Lucerne is in trucks en route to stores only a short time.

GIVE YOUR CHILD A QUART OF LUCERNE GRADE A EVERY DAY

TO WARD OFF COLDS, FREQUENT SICKNESS
A diet without sufficient milk can lead to colds and many other illnesses. Butterfat and milk solids contain invaluable "protective" factors that nature created to help keep children well

TO PREVENT SOFT, EASILY DECAYING TEETH
No other food equals milk in supplying the calcium so essential for sound teeth and sturdy bones. But authorities say it takes a quart a day to insure maximum development in most children

TO DEVELOP MENTAL ALERTNESS
The undernourished youngster is listless —seldom completely up to par mentally. The "Quart-a-Day Diet" has helped many such children to better health and quicker minds

TO PROTECT HEALTH IN ADULT YEARS
A lifetime of health can come only from a sound foundation built during the growing years. Doctors universally agree that no other food is as important as milk in this respect

GUARANTEED QUALITY

WE can guarantee uniformity in richness (Always richer than the law requires for Grade A) purity and freshness because Lucerne is pasteurized and packaged in Washington's newest, most up-to-date milk plant.

Here the latest devices—stainless steel equipment throughout, automatic temperature controls, new type packaging machinery — protect the healthfulness and high quality of this milk.

Communists Still A Power in Mexico

Shielded by Cardenas They Pursue Goal Of Creating Discord

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Mexico City, Aug. 5.—The Communist Party of Mexico, virtually forgotten in the current presidential scramble and labor turmoil, is one of the most active forces in the backstage political jockeying which will probably decide the course of the next Mexican government.

The principal aim of the Communists at the moment is to create as much internal discord as possible, without incurring the disfavor of the Cardenas administration, which has cooperated with them faultlessly since its inception in 1934.

The strength of the party has diminished considerably in recent months, but persons who have followed developments closely are of the opinion that sufficient force remains to cause an abundance of trouble, particularly in light of the present unsettled condition of the country.

Noteworthy is the fact that members of the Communist executive committee just held two secret sessions in Mexico City to revamp plans of action, presumably to keep pace with the political tug-of-war which has intensified since the Mexican presidential election on July 7 resulted in a deadlock, with both sides claiming victory.

At the conclusion of these sessions, Dionisio Encina, general secretary of the party, disclosed in an interview that the Communists had decided to pool their forces with the government candidate, Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, and would oppose his antiadministration opponent, Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, on the ground that the latter was a Fascist. "We believe that Almazan is now preparing one of the strongest movements against the Mexican nation that has occurred up to the present time," Encina said. "It will not be a sudden, violent movement, but an undermining movement designed to make Mexico a Fascist state."

Thus the Communists have entered the postelection battle which is already charged with so many explosive possibilities that some observers have gone so far as to predict civil war. Their entrance on the side of Camacho is no surprise to the antigovernment party of Almazan, which has borne the brunt of most of the recent attacks by Mexican radicals.

Although the numerical strength of the Communists is not of alarming proportion—estimates place the membership at about 30,000—it is a foregone conclusion that they wield a strong influence in government circles and are working hand-in-glove with Mexico's radical labor dictator, Vicente Lombardo Toledano.

Al Capone Again Mingles With Public

By the Associated Press

Miami Beach, Fla., Aug. 5.—Al Capone has come out of the seclusion of his white-walled Palm Island villa to mingle again with the public to which his name is a synonym for prohibition-era gangsterism.

CAPONE

Recovering slowly from a serious illness, Capone has begun to visit night clubs, dine in restaurants and otherwise indulge in normal pursuits.

None of the other patrons of a Miami Beach night club gave more than a passing glance to the heavy-set man who strolled in with a party of friends a few evenings ago. Clad in informal sports clothes, Capone and his companions, some of them women, took a remote table, listened to the orchestra music and quietly filed out well before midnight.

Presence Virtually Unnoticed

A few nights later Capone and his wife dined in a Miami bayfront restaurant while a bodyguard sat watchfully at the bar. Again his presence was virtually unnoticed.

A one-time golf addict, Capone has been practicing at driving ranges. Besides occasional automobile rides his other activities have been confined to the privacy of his sumptuous estate. There he swims in his private pool, lolls in the sun of his patio and fishes from a pier.

Living with him are his wife, Mae; his son, Alphonse, jr.; a brother, John; a brother-in-law, Danny Coughlin, and several servants. Friends drop in now and then.

Al never refers to the days when, as the director of a bootleg syndicate that "took" $25,000,000 a year, he was the storm center of beer wars and racketeering that cost hundreds of hoodlum lives.

"He seems to have a blank memory about that phase of his life," his physician said.

Capone's outings, the specialist related, were in the nature of a test, to which the big fellow's reaction was "pretty good."

More Cheerful Now

"He is more cheerful than before," the doctor asserted. 'He has gained eight or nine pounds (totaling about 240 compared with a prison high of 268) but he isn't a well man by a long shot. His condition seems to be leveling off but we expect it will be six or eight months before we can tell definitely how he is responding to treatment."

He is given one therapeutic treatment a week but the exact nature of Capone's illness has been something of a mystery. His present physician termed it a "chronic nervous system ailment," and denied the malady had ever been diagnosed as paresis, a form of brain paralysis.

Vichy Interested In Knowing What Is Going On in U. S.

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, Aug. 5.—A feeling of isolation from the outside world persists here making the situation seem even more unreal. There are newspapers, of course—quite a number—but they are single sheets with little news from abroad, especially from America. Yet on all hands there is deep interest to know what is happening in the United States. Incidentally the government has unified the price of all dailies at 50 centimes with permission to print only four pages twice weekly.

Censorship still obtains. The ministry of the interior has just reminded all concerned that everything intended for publication, including books, drawings and photographs must first be submitted to the censor. Though the censorship at present is more tolerant than in recent months many papers still appear with blank spaces. Occasionally the man with the blue pencil shows a sense of humor as when he deleted many lines from a stetienne sheet but allowed an article to resume with the following words: That's about all we can say for the moment.

France Tries To Revive Her Artistic Life

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, Aug. 5.—Artistic life in France is scattered and suspended but it is beginning to gather, ready to organize for a resumption of activity. A call was published in the newspapers here last week asking members of the opera and Opera Comique troupes to return to Paris as soon as possible and a similar appeal has been made to members of Comedie Francaise to assemble at Vichy preparatory to resuming performances in Paris.

French artistic leaders have been stressing in public statements of the importance of an early return to normal intellectual life as one of the best means of maintaining French civilization. Minister of information Jean Giraudoux in a statement has asked all French artists to remain in France and assist in the revival of the arts.

The new director of Beaux Arts, Louis Hatecoeur, who replaced George Huisman, reported to have left the country, has declared that one of the first duties of his department in the government is to reopen the national museums and art schools.

To do this represents an enormous task. The contents of museums were packed away and placed in safety when the war broke out and a large percentage remained in the occupied territory. These are under the watch of French custodians under the control of German authorities. Included in them are not only a part of the Louvre collections but many collections of provincial museums, and stained glass, and treasures from many cathedrals.

Shattered Maginot Ruins Reveal Might of New Arms

Copyright by New York Times

Strasbourg, German-Occupied France, Aug. 5.—Silent and empty across the plains and hills of Alsace-Lorraine stretch the deserted fortresses of the Maginot Line. Some of them are shattered ruins with gaping holes in their 10-foot concrete walls. Others, intact, are manned today only with small garrisons of German soldiers engaged in guarding them and clearing the surrounding fields of mines and barbed-wire.

This fortified line, considered two months ago to be impregnable against attack, is mute witness to the might of German strategy and German arms. Superior strategy deprived it of the troops which were to have supplemented in the open field the garrisons who fired guns in its hundreds of forts—superior arms slashed and tore these steel and concrete emplacements into useless ruins which in the end were only traps for the men inside.

Some of these fortresses were built with walls of reinforced concrete 10 feet thick. They were topped with gun turrets of steel 10 inches thick from which men within were to mow down any attacking force whether afoot or in tanks. Beneath these "eyes and arms" were underground ammunition chambers, Diesel-powered generators, many miles of tunnel connecting forts with each other.

But when the German troops on June 15 crossed the Rhine and attacked the Maginot Line, only a few of these forts were able to function as their designer had intended they should.

For the most they were taken from behind, and many of them surrendered with scarcely a shot being fired. Some of them resisted heroically for days against an enemy that was all around them. These offer striking proof of the firing power of the German guns in the rear, antiaircraft and field artillery which pounded their concrete walls to powder at point-blank range. Armored shells sliced through steel of their turrets as though it were cheese.

In rare cases the heavy caliber bombs of the dive bombers, plunging unhindered on their target, shocked and stunned the garrisons into surrender that in any case was inevitable.

It is an amazing sight to see how an armored shell fired from an 88-millimeter antiaircraft gun went through a steel gun turret more than 10 inches thick. The force of these shells, when fired at close range, is such that they go through armor like a nail through a tin can. Striking at an angle they do not ricochet off but cut the steel like the 15-centimeter field guns batter gaping holes in 10-foot concrete walls.

Once dented, the concrete in these forts crumbled under fire like a wall of plaster. With the guns of the forts out of action and with no heavy artillery seriously to harass them, the Germans were able to pound holes through which several men could easily crawl side by side.

Studied Anonymity

Even for newspapermen, who exist primarily to chronicle the swift passage of events, there are moments at which it is not inappropriate to reflect on the function of the newspaper as an institution.

So far as the editorial page is concerned, this is such a moment. As from today Felix Morley, editor of The Post since December 18, 1933, surrenders the duties of that office. Henceforth he will have no further share in the direction of a policy which for nearly seven years he has helped to formulate. Hereafter neither credit nor discredit for this page will attach to him.

In a sense, however, a certain immunity from blame or praise is always afforded every editor and every editorial page. There is a deeper reason than mere modesty behind the studied anonymity of this part of a newspaper. It lies in the fact that editorials voice the corporate personality of the paper much more than the personal viewpoint of the writer. And this is due not to any external pressures or individual instruction, but to conditions which make such outcome inevitable.

The editorial page is necessarily a synthesis of viewpoints. It includes, naturally, that of the publisher, of the responsible editor and of the staff. But many other influences, tangible and intangible, play their part. Editorial expression in American papers is seldom dictated in any crude way and in the cases where that condition exists it is easily perceptible to the intelligent reader. In general, editorial opinion is a composite product, representing an impersonal rather than a personal viewpoint. That does not mean that the position assumed is haphazard or easily formulated. On the contrary, the effort to reach a golden mean of opinion is often as conscientious as it is exacting.

The resultant impersonal synthetic viewpoint is rightly regarded as that of the paper, which as an institution receives the credit or discredit the individual escapes. For better or worse, with a squeak or a scream, convincingly or querulously, the editorial page is the voice of the journal in which it is found. The character of that page does much to determine the influence of the paper as an institution. To a large extent it decides the degree of the newspaper's significance for the community.

So, while Mr. Morley's departure is regretted by his associates, the loss to The Post is much less because a definite character, developed in part through his efforts, was long since implanted on this page. So long as that character remains he will, in a sense, continue as a member of the staff. And his absence will, by the same token, be unremarked by those who pay our editorials the compliment of their attention.

It may be said with assurance that Mr. Morley has no illusions about human indispensability, even in offices much more exalted than that which he has now resigned. "From Stilson Hutchins to Eugene Meyer," he wrote in our Sixtieth Anniversary edition nearly three years ago, "every owner of The Post has been or has become a Washingtonian, zealous for the secure development of the Capital City and eager to add luster to its name. No matter who goes or who remains on The Post, this Washington institution will, in the years ahead, endeavor to carry on helpfully along the lines so clearly defined for it."

That observation, we are reliably informed, appears to him to stand the test of time more effectively than much which he has written on this page.

Who's Abnormal?

Apprehensive young wives and their husbands who have been reassured by their family physicians that "pregnancy is a perfectly normal condition" were no doubt startled to read in The Post on Saturday that the Civil Aeronautics Board has ruled it to be just the opposite.

Indeed, the doctor himself may have been rather flabbergasted to find his wisdom thus contradicted. Certainly he must have wondered who gave the Civil Aeronautics Board jurisdiction in these premises. Among gynecologists it has long been a kind of axiom that a truly "normal" woman would be one who, throughout the period from puberty to menopause, is always either pregnant or nursing.

However, it appears that the board is quite innocent of poaching on gynecologists' preserves. What it actually did was to amend a previous ruling in a way that will permit pregnant women who are licensed pilots to make flights in dual-control ships if accompanied by another qualified pilot.

In other words, women pilots are merely enjoined from solo flights during periods of expectant motherhood. As to the wisdom of this rule the doctor, we dare say, will heartily agree. But it all goes to show what abnormal notions can be read into a perfectly normal set of words.

Facing Realities

Gen. Pershing has posed an issue of the utmost gravity for the American people. He clearly sees that the course of events in Europe is giving rise to uncertain but nonetheless real dangers for the United States. And he asks that "we make up our minds to face the truth without flinching."

This is sound advice. When any nation is confronted by the momentous issue of going to war it would be suicidal not to face realities with courage. But to do so is not a simple task. For if our national security is to be preserved, we must take a comprehensive view of world problems and our relationship thereto, and not confine our understanding of reality to one particular set of circumstances that seems of special importance at the moment.

In the opinion of Gen. Pershing, it is not enough greatly to strengthen our armaments against possible attack. He told his radio audience that "if there is anything we can do to save the British fleet" during the next few months "we shall be failing in our duty to America if we do not do it." If that is the case we should not stop with selling over-age destroyers. We should be furnishing, of our own self-interest, our best ships, our fastest planes, and men to handle them.

The American people are overwhelmingly sympathetic with the British in their struggle against Nazi domination. But they are also overwhelmingly opposed to participation in the war in Europe. Obviously the advice offered by the distinguished commander of our expeditionary force during the World War must be examined from both these points of view.

Specifically Gen. Pershing suggests that the United States make available to the British or Canadian governments "at least 50 of the over-age destroyers, which are left over from the days of the World War." But he made it plain that he was thinking of "measures short of war" and that this plan should go into effect only "if a proper method can be found."

Here, of course, is the weakness of the proposal. At present the law flatly forbids sending war vessels out of the jurisdiction of the United States with the intent of delivering them to a belligerent nation. Moreover, Congress recently forbade the sale or transfer of any naval equipment unless the Chief of Naval Operations certifies that it is not essential to defense of the United States. Such a certification as to over-age destroyers could not be expected from Admiral Stark, for he recently told Congress that the Navy needs all its destroyers, plus 81 more.

Thirty-nine of the World War destroyers have been converted for a special type of service. The remaining 123 are all useful as fighting ships, in spite of their age. Most of these have already been recommissioned for naval service and all of them will have been recommissioned within the next few weeks. So they are an active part of our present Navy.

To sell or give any of these vessels to Great Britain would require Congressional action. And Congress could not transfer even a minor portion of our fighting ships to Britain without committing what Germany would be fully entitled to regard as a hostile act. Hitler might or might not retaliate with an act of war against the United States. But Congress would certainly have to take into consideration the very real possibility that the proposed step would take us swiftly into war, regardless of our state of unpreparedness.

In the circumstances the "probable hazards" which Gen. Pershing sees in his own suggestion will seem to many to outweigh the aid, imperative though it may be, which 50 over-age destroyers would give to Great Britain.

Holding Up Defense

It is an open secret that Army and Navy contracts are being held up by the unwillingness of manufacturers to make large capital outlays for new plants and special equipment required to execute national defense orders. The chief reason for their reluctance and the most formidable obstacle to progress at the moment is the failure of the Government to give satisfactory assurance that the cost of such outlays can be fully recovered by the time the emergency is over and the defense equipment is no longer needed.

Industrial concerns cannot afford to make extensive capital expenditures for defense purposes unless the Government makes adequate allowance for the amortization of such investment. In other words, the cost of special defense facilities must be deducted from profits subject to the income tax and prospective excess-profits taxes. The Administration has signified its willingness to be liberal in respect to amortization allowances. But too much is at stake for industry to risk relying upon promises alone. What is required is an immediate amendment of the tax laws liberalizing depreciation allowances as urged by the National Association of Manufacturers.

The N. A. M. does not oppose enactment of an excess-profits tax, realizing that the present emergency makes it necessary for the Government to raise more revenue. But it does object to the Administration's plan for deferring action on the amortization proposals until Congress is ready to vote on an excess-profits tax measure. Prompt action is required, as the N. A. M. states, to "remove a serious bottleneck now holding back progress in the defense program."

If Congress should follow the recommended order of procedure, it would not only act as a spur to the lagging defense industries; it would also give Congress more time to study the problems connected with the taxation of excess profits. As a result, there would be less danger of hasty enactment of an unsatisfactory type of excess-profits levy that would impose additional handicaps upon the successful carrying through of the defense program.

Japan And Britain

When, under Japanese pressure, Great Britain recently agreed to close the Burma road, the last remaining artery connecting China with the outside world, she hoped thereby to win a measure of respite in the Far East and thus be able to devote all her energies to resisting the onslaught from the Third Reich.

This hope soon died aborning. Far from improving, relations between Great Britain and Japan have since gone from bad to worse. Some days ago the Japanese police rounded up a number of British subjects in Japan and Korea in what was described as a drive against an "espionage network." Furthermore, an official statement issued by the war and justice departments at Tokyo described Great Britain as a "hostile power."

The British, for their part, have not been behindhand in replying to these manifestations of anti-British sentiment. The other day two prominent Japanese businessmen in London were taken into custody under the Defense Act. Other arrests of Japanese have also occurred in Rangoon and Singapore. The British authorities have blandly denied that these arrests were in retaliation for the arrests of British subjects by Japan. But that does not prevent the Japanese from drawing just such a conclusion.

How effective this display of energy and determination by the British will be in forcing Japan to moderate her stand remains to be seen. As long as the British are not defeated the Tokyo government may decide that the course of wisdom is to avoid extremes. At the same time it is apparent that the Japanese are out to take full advantage of the situation which has arisen in the Far East as a result of the overrunning of Holland by the German war machine, the collapse of France and Britain's preoccupation with home defense.

It is reported in Tokyo that a Japanese general is about to be sent to the Dutch East Indies on an important mission, while sections of the Japanese press are openly discussing the advisability of soon incorporating those rich islands in an East Asian economic bloc dominated by Japan. At the same time far-reaching demands are being made on France and on the authorities of French Indo-China to give Japan what would be tantamount to de facto control of that colony. And the French are helpless to resist such demands.

Synthetic Rubber

The war has forced the United States to consider the uncomfortable possibility of being cut off from its sources of rubber supply. Until that danger loomed, we hardly realized the extent of our dependence upon rubber in a motorized age and, above all, the extent to which our national defense program calls for an assured supply of rubber.

Now that we are awake to the situation, plans for the manufacture of synthetic rubber are being pushed. Last week the Firestone Co. staged a demonstration at the World's Fair to show how expeditiously tires can be manufactured from synthetic rubber. And it was announced that the company is starting to build a plant at Akron to produce 100,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually.

In ordinary times, such developments might not be commercially justified because synthetic rubber is much more expensive than the natural product. Except for special purposes, industry has had no occasion to develop the use of an expensive substitute for rubber. As a measure of national defense, however, it is essential to minimize our dependence upon imports of this vital product.

Some day the various substitute products may become cheap enough to supersede natural rubber. But at present synthetic rubber, despite its superiority in some respects, is only a second line of defense.

The urge to attain economic self-sufficiency as a preparation for war or defense against aggression dominates the policies of many nations today. Even while following a liberal trade policy, the United States has taken pride in our comparative independence of foreign trade. Yet we have now awakened with a rude start to the knowledge that we must import almost all our rubber, tin and some other essential raw materials. However, the speed with which industry is setting to work to repair these deficiencies in the case of rubber is an encouraging sign.

Treeless City?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

A Washington correspondent, for one reason or another, has seen fit to treat us to the withering idea that Washington should be a treeless city. To him trees, nature's noblest plants, are just so many nuisances. Shade of Joyce Kilmer, they are only obstructions and makers of dirt. He has not enjoyed the festive experience of reclining and resting in their benign shade. Of course, he could not well regard himself as the better part of that ever beautiful picture when the branches of the trees are dancing their waltzes and minuets against the azure curtain of the sky.

Perhaps our correspondent has an artificially cooled office from which, without let or hindrance, he removes himself, let us say, at 2 or 3 in the afternoon, to an artificially cooled house.

A treeless Washington would but serve to make the weak weaker and the poor poorer.

Hitler Grows Fat

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

News item—Hitler is proud that he is getting fat.

The Fuehrer should well, indeed, be proud of his excess fat. Fat—gained on broken promises and unfulfilled pledges; the blasted hopes and fruitless prayers of widows and orphans; the heartaches and sorrows of wives, mothers and sweethearts; the blood of defenseless women and innocent children; the hopeless despair of starving refugees, and the ruthless destruction of a once proud nation, crushed and bleeding, bowing humbly to the superior might of a merciless conqueror.

On Military Conscription

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

At the rally August 1 to oppose peacetime conscription as a method of national defense, I gave a short talk on the moral issue involved.

Most of the speakers adhered strictly to the conscription issue and Congressman Robert T. Secrest is particularly to be commended for his constructive attitude, in sponsoring a bill for voluntary enlistment to take the place of the Burke-Wadsworth bill. The need of national defense is grave and no American who loves his country should be content to take a purely critical or negative attitude on this matter.

Moreover, in a mater so important for all Americans, it is a mistake to divide the hearts of our people by injecting party issues and rivalries that are irrelevant to the issue of national defense.

Another point we must not forget is that good causes may be supported by bad motives. Not everyone who denounces conscription does so from patriotic reasons. A man who proposes to leave his country defenseless is not a patriot.

Today, patriotic Americans must stick steadfastly to the middle of the road, avoiding the totalitarian extreme of collectivism and, at the same time voluntarily and of their own accord, putting the public good of the United States above their private good. Let us insist on freedom not in order to do as we please, but in order to serve the American people freely and out of conviction of duty.

MSGR. GEORGE B. O'TOOLE.
Washington, Aug. 2.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Out of the mouth of the man who is most competent to offer such judgment comes the statement that the system of volunteer recruiting has not failed and that, therefore, the compulsory military training bill is not necessary. Thus speaks Mr. Woodring, former Secretary of War.

The August 1, 1940, issue of the New York Times carries a news story of an announcement that "Army enlistments in New York City have reached a higher total since July 1 than in any other month since 1919."

The contradictory testimony on the proposed conscription bill indicates that some of the latest proposed and enacted defense measures are intended for purposes other than those publicized, but which for the sake of attractiveness are termed "defense."

SUSPICIOUS AMERICANS.
Washington, Aug. 3.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Anyone who fails to let his Congressman know at this time of his opposition to the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill is allowing fascism to be clamped down on him without a murmur. The letters coming into Congress are 100-to-1 against it, according to Senator Wheeler. Increase the volume of such mail and the bill stands a fair chance of being defeated.

If anyone does not believe that this bill is the opening wedge to pure and unadulterated fascism let him consider the following: Millions of men will carry registration cards and be subject to courts martial without any of the Constitutional guarantees of other courts. Only a proclamation of the President is necessary to put the law into effect once it is passed. Length of military service may be made indefinite.

C. D.
Washington, Aug. 3.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Now that it is apparent that the conscription bill will have to face the scrutiny of some persistent members of the House and Senate and not go sailing down the wind of hysteria to final passage, maybe the common people can get in a few words.

We want this matter discussed in great detail. We want to know what secret information Secretary Stimson and President Roosevelt have that makes them think conscription of manpower in peacetime is necessary.

If they have information so serious as to justify this major disruption of our democratic traditions and prerogatives, then it is important that we, the people, know what that information is. We want debate in Congress and lots of it before this bill is brought to a vote.

CHARLES E. PLANCK.
Arlington, Va., Aug. 3.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It's with much more confidence that I take my pen in hand to write today in opposition to the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill. In the past few days I have heard and read about the organized and individual voices raised in protest against any measure which calls for the regimentation of America's manpower.

It's rather ironic that our military experts and some of our legislators should advocate the use of totalitarian methods to safeguard us from totalitarianism.

Campaign Words

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

A campaign suggestion. The following list of adjectives has been gleaned from the writings and talkings of the great and near great during the past few years. Some are old and tried. Most of them are still young, with all the virility and enthusiasm of youth. Their use should save a lot of perspiration and brain work during the coming months.

Barons of special privilege
Blatant racketeers
Blatant scoundrels
Blood-sucking termites
Condemnable ingrates
Condemnably untruthful editorials
Consciousless apostates
Corporation controlled judges
Corporation controlled pamphleteers
Diabolical and dastardly propaganda
Diabolical wrecking crew
Diabolical wrong-doing
Eminent tomtit
Fanatical jackals
Incorrigible miscreants
In Lilliput he would be a giant
Malefactors of great wealth
Malevolent banking interests
Mangy rats
Nefarious generalissimo
Nominal Democrats
Potential felons
Predatory interests
Propelled by reptilian blood of subzero temperature
Repulsive apostates
Ruthless malefactors
Seduced press of the land
Shameless Beelzebubs
Shameless buccaneers
Shameless, flagitious manipulators
Shocking and condemnable parallel
Skulking jelly fish

Lives of great men oft' remind us
Of the words that we can use,
Words that don't mean anything,
And serve but to confuse.

The "Little Man"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

That coy description of Hitler as the "little man in the brown duster," in The Post Impressionist July 31, is the last straw. For many months my breakfast and the rest of my day have been ruined by the headlines the "little man" has forced The Post to print, but it certainly hasn't been forced, as yet, to publish pictures and articles about this "little man" who has changed the civilization of centuries into a hell of agony and destruction.

Visiting Canada

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

My family and I have just returned from Wigwassan Lodge, Lake Rosseau, Ontario, and I would like to go on record regarding the matter of entering Canada and returning to the United States. No trouble was encountered at the border when we crossed a few days ago.

To those who are thinking of visiting Canada I would say go. There is an abundance of food; there has been no increase in the price of gas, and most of the money spent there comes back to the U. S. A. for purchase of supplies. Thus we can indirectly aid this great country in its fight against Hitlerism.

The Man With The Spade Beard

FOR SOME TIME I had wondered where the Man with the Spade Beard had gone. I remember clearly the first glimpse of him, for I instantly warned myself, "Don't let him buttonhole you." I was working as a "public relations counsel" for a small money reform group when I saw a roly-poly little man frisk in with a briefcase. I knew that briefcase contained a smudged chart of "The System of Reigning Plutocracy" with "The Hidden Hand" depicted in the middle of the network of circles up at the left-hand corner, a region labeled "The Empire of Darkness and Sin." I knew, too, that there nestled in that briefcase a carbon typescript, 47 pages of onionskin paper, single-spaced, whose swollen word-spate bore "The Principles of a Supertechnocratic Social Organism by Means of a Labor-Hour Monetary System." How did I know?

It wasn't the cut of the beard, it was four telltale items added up: the briefcase, the spade beard, the eagerness of the dart past the receptionist's desk, and, most of all, the gleam in the eye. It was the huntsman's gleam, and the hunter had spotted the next victim of his tongue. He fixed poor Jerry, our executive secretary, with his eye, and it took an hour to get rid of him. Jerry was a sport; he didn't pass his caller over to me, and I took pains not to attract the little bearded man's attention.

Eventually he caught up to me. Of course, Spade Beard called frequently at the office, usually eluded the receptionist and nabbed Jerry at his desk and harangued until Jerry was collapsing from the punishment. Jerry had to study the chart and to hack his way through the intricacies of the manuscript and criticize it from our point of view—but Spade Beard considered our point of view a vacuum yearning to be filled by his revelation of monetary science. He was impervious to any word desperately inserted edgewise unless it was a word of approval for the scheme based upon one hour's work raking leaves being equivalent to one dollar, the labor-hour standard that was to replace the Gold Standard superstition. I kept diligently anonymous while Jerry suffered three desks away.

Then the Man with the Spade Beard caught up with me, but he didn't know it at the time. I was about to enter our unfashionable Broadway office building when the revolving doors spun Spade Beard in front of me and recognizing me as one of the office fixtures, he gave greetings and at once started to sell me his system. I was about to break away when he mentioned my name. He said he understood a writer named Munson was connected with our reform group and he hoped to meet him because he had read one of Munson's books. I asked which one, and he gave the title. I remarked that I had read it myself; what did he think of it? He told me at length, and fulsome praise it was. I said I didn't think so highly of the author. This spurred him to a defense of his estimate and a renewed expression of his desire to meet and convert Munson.

The next time he called, he spoke to Jerry briefly, evidently asking him who I was. I saw his beard bob with astonishment when Jerry told him, and he pranced over: "Ha-ha, that was a good one, me telling you about your book and not knowing it was you," he said and took off into the clouds of the supertechnocratic organism theory. Thereafter I fled whenever I could. If I saw him soon enough as he approached the receptionist, I would get under way for the water cooler, and while he was attempting to break in on Jerry, I'd slip out the back entrance, go down the corridor to the freight elevator and make for a cup of coffee.

One of the consolations when our office was abandoned was that Spade Beard would be thrown off the trail, and for a year there was no Spade Beard. Then I was sent to Washington to observe some hearings of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, and there I ran into him at every sitting. In fact, there were three Men with Spade Beards very chummy with each other—and on the alert for buttonhole-able persons. Committee hearings on monetary legislation were their free theater, and I never saw any of them walk out on a flat performance, as I have seen Broadway critics do.

Time cascaded on, and it was two years before I again saw the original Man with the Spade Beard. I had allowed myself to be "pressured" into giving a short speech on a pet topic at one of Father Divine's Tuesday forums. As I ascended the platform, it seemed to be filled with men wearing spade beards, and their eyes were twinkling as if to say gleefully, "Father has delivered him into our hands."

I spoke hurriedly and briefly that night, for I had been tipped off that Father Divine listened to a loudspeaker in an adjoining room and was in the habit of stealthily materializing on the platform behind the guest speaker just when that hapless individual had at last succeeded in fixing the attention of his restless audience.

I finished with expedition and was almost out of the building when my coattails were plucked by the original Man with the Spade Beard, his breath coming short from the pursuit. He said nothing about the supertechnocratic scheme. He seemed happy.

Today And Tomorrow

The Problem Of The Destroyers

ALTHOUGH Colonel Lindbergh did say that the United States should offer "a plan for peace" which accepts as an accomplished fact the defeat of Britain and the Nazi domination of Europe, although he did argue that the United States can and should cooperate with this new Europe, a careful reading of his speech will disclose that he does not take quite so simple a view of the matter. For he said also that the plan "should be backed by an impregnable system of defense" because "treaties are seldom torn apart when they do not cover a weak nation." In other words, Colonel Lindbergh thinks the United States could live in the same world with a Nazi-dominated Europe providing the defense of the United States were "impregnable."

The condition which confronts us, however, is that the defenses of the United States are very far from being impregnable. So far are they from being impregnable that the Senate unanimously and the House with only one dissenting voice has voted to spend $10,000,000,000 on the construction of another Navy. So far are our defenses from being impregnable that the Navy, which Congress regards as necessary, cannot possibly be built before 1946, yet a Nazi-dominated Europe means that Europe would have at once, in alliance with Japan, a navy superior to our own and a capacity to build warships perhaps four times as great as our own. If, as the colonel says, we should propose a plan of peace to Europe "backed by an impregnable system of defense," then we are in no position to offer such a plan now. For lacking an impregnable defense, confronted if the British fall with an immense naval superiority in the two oceans, we should be making the very error which in another passage the colonel warned us against. We should be "depending upon treaties for our national safety" during that long critical period of at last six years before we can hope to "rearm fully for the defense of America."

THAT IS WHY, as General Pershing declared, it is so necessary to keep the British navy in being. The sustaining of the British defense is necessary in order that "the time needed to build our own defenses may be lengthened." Since Colonel Lindbergh himself declared that we can make dependable treaties with a Nazi-dominated Europe only if our defenses are impregnable, no disinterested and patriotic follower of Colonel Lindbergh can afford to disregard the warning and plea made by General Pershing. If we need an impregnable defense, then we need the time to construct it, and we cannot be sure that the time will be granted us if the British fleet is sunk, or worse still, captured.

The real question is not whether it is desirable to keep the British fleet in being—in being, that is to say, as a fighting force now in Europe and in the last resort as a fighting force in this hemisphere. There are few over here who do not think the survival of Britain is important. The question is whether, without becoming a belligerent in Europe the United States now have the means to help the British fleet in Europe or, if the worst happens, then to draw what is left of the fleet back to this hemisphere. This is the actual problem which confronts us, and the proposal to sell some fifty destroyers to Canada or Great Britain must be studied not as a sentimental or as a philanthropic gesture but to see whether it does not offer a practical means of insuring and re-insuring our own naval position.

IT IS NOT well-informed and, therefore, it is misleading to state the problem of the destroyers as Major Eliot did in his very honest and sincere attempt to explore the issues in his Sunday article. Major Eliot's main point was that if we let the British have these ships and "it does not in fact make a difference, if Britain goes down anyway, then we may bitterly regret having thus wasted ships which cannot be immediately replaced." That would be quite true if the American government were foolish enough to deal with the matter in such a foolish way.

But why does Major Eliot assume that hard-headed men like General Pershing are such misguided amateurs that they are proposing to let the British have fifty destroyers for nothing, or merely for some more useless gold? Is it not evident that if the British need those ships as urgently as they say they do, we are in a position not only to help them resist, which is our immediate vital interest, but we are in a position also to come to terms with Britain and Canada over what is to be done with at least some part of the British fleet if the British Isles can no longer resist?

WHETHER MAKING available some 50 destroyers will in fact make the difference between defeat and a successful resistance, no one over here can hope to know for certain. But what we can know is this: even if these destroyers are not decisive as military weapons in the next few especially critical months, they are from the point of view of the United States a diplomatic instrument of the very first order. Properly used in negotiations with Canada and Great Britain, they can be used to obtain guaranties, by transfer to Canada from Britain, of at least as many fighting ships as the destroyers represent: that would mean that in case the British Isles fell, Canada would still possess the nucleus of a navy. The destroyers can be used also in negotiations to obtain at once, rather than later when the confusion might be stupendous, the right to establish American naval and air bases in certain strategic British colonies in the hemisphere.

The real difficulty in the matter is not that the United States might give away something useful and risk losing it with no return. The difficulty is that the United States may receive so much for so little that the British people may think we are taking advantage of them in their hour of need. They will be mistaken. Yet one can understand how they might think so. But if the agreement is negotiated, as in the circumstances statesmen in Washington, Ottawa and London could now negotiate it, there will be few in this country who will not feel that we have not only insured ourselves somewhat against the defeat of Britain in Europe but that we have also reinsured ourselves in case, God forbid, the British in Europe are defeated.

Union "Delousing"

A MAN who says he is a doorman employed at a big building in New York has written to ask whether, in my opinion, his union, that of the building service employes, has reformed since Tom Dewey indicted George Scalise, the smelly little criminal who had muscled into the presidency as the representative of the Capone or Nitti mob of vermin. It may be remembered that Scalise finally was forced out of the presidency after the crooks in command of the union and the few more or less honest leaders dominated by the crooks had first declined his resignation with a resolution of confidence which amounted to a eulogy.

After Scalise got out the union held a convention in Atlantic City in May, in which William McFetridge, of Chicago, was elected president and Thomas Burke, also of Chicago, was hiked up a couple of grades from third to first in the list of vice presidents. Meanwhile, in Boston, another of the vice presidents, with a long but cheap police record, was convicted of racketeering and quietly disappeared from the official list, and, with these two out, it might appear to the naked eye that the Building Service Employes International Union of the A. F. of L. had deloused itself and was now going forward in honor and righteousness.

BUT I HAVE my doubts, because I can't reconcile even the retention, much less the promotion, of this Burke with a reformation of the union.

Burke has been racketeering in labor for years and has always run to the fires—as they say in the police business—with criminals of the Capone-Nitti type. He began as agent of the Janitors' Union in Chicago, which was the property of a criminal named Louie Altieri, commonly known as Louie Artillery, and moved up when Altieri, or Artillery, was shot from ambush. He has had some petty police troubles of his own and apparently is strictly a minor leaguer, but his associations are sinister, as we shall see.

A couple of months ago I reported that while Scalise was supposed to be going straight and rehabilitating the damage to his character caused by his conviction of white slaving, he took a trip from Miami to Cuba and back with Little Augie Pisano, a New York gorilla; Burke and one Charles Fischetti. I didn't have much of a line on Fischetti then, but I can tell you now that he is a Class A member of the Chicago-New York-Miami criminal scum. In Capone's big days he was a bootlegger, and the local prosecutors convicted him on a gun charge back in 1928, but lost him on a reversal by the Appellate Court in December, 1933.

FISCHETTI was present the night that one of Capone's brothers was killed in a fight with the police, he was shot at another time while riding in Capone's car and he was picked up with Capone's brother, Ralph, a fairly handy criminal, and Ralph's wife, when the police were trying—how sincerely we do not know—to solve the assassination of William McSwiggin, the assistant prosecutor, who was shelled to death in April, 1926. The cops gathered up Fischetti, Ralph Capone and Ralph's wife, six pistols and a set of instructions for the operation of a submachine gun, but nothing was done about that, either.

But all this goes to show what kind of people Mr. Burke trafls with—Altieri, or Artillery; Scalise, a panderer; Little Aug, a gunman and gorilla, and Fischetti, of the Capone mob and family, the very elite, as you might say, of the criminal scum.

Therefore, to the question whether the Building Service Employes International Union has reformed I would say that the promotion of Burke from third to first in the list of vice presidents is the answer. They knew what they were doing when they upped this little brother of the criminal scum from third to first, and it takes only one representative of the mob to do the mob's business at the expense of the poor stiffs who have to show down the feed —dues and assessments.

Support Sought For D. C. Home Rule

A DRIVE was being organized yesterday to enlist support of Government employes for home rule in the District, and for an exemption from the Hatch Act that would permit Federal workers living here to join in municipal politics.

Organizers for the United Federal Workers, it was announced, are seeking the support of their local union presidents and members for a three-point suffrage problem, which would include:

Full national representation and local self-government for residents of the District.

Guarantees that all Government workers living in the District, regardless of their legal or voting residence, would be permitted to vote for municipal officials of the District.

Amendment of the Hatch Act to permit Government employes living here to take an active part in the prospective District politics, to run for local office, and hold elective municipal jobs.

THE FIRST PLANK of their program, it was pointed out, restates earlier U. F. W. indorsement of full District suffrage. The second and third planks, both depending on the success of their first proposal, have been worked out since Congressional leaders renewed a drive to give Washingtonians the vote.

Backers of the new U. F. W. program indicated they would like Government employes here to be able to cast their votes in the District for municipal officers, while keeping the right to vote "back home" in national elections.

A Hatch Act amendment to give Federal workers living in the District admission to local politics if suffrage were granted would simply put them on the same footing as their office associates who live in nearby Maryland and Virginia communities, it was suggested.

THE NEW HATCH ACT authorizes the Civil Service Commission to lift the "no politics" ban for residents of the communities near the District in Maryland and Virginia, and "other communities the majority of whose voters are employed by the Government of the United States."

Under the act, the commission can raise the ban against entering local politics whenever it finds "special and unusual circumstances" that make an exemption "in the domestic interest" of persons covered by the Hatch law.

CHARLES WARREN, regional information director for the PWA, who was until recently assigned to work with the Grand River Dam project, has been transferred to the information staff of the Federal Works Agency in Washington. He succeeds Jack Bryan, who has been appointed assistant information director at the Farm Security Administration.

Frank R. Creedon has resigned as an assistant PWA regional director to become head construction engineer in the Fixed Fee Contract Branch of the Army Quartermaster Corps. Creedon, a World War Artillery officer, had been on the PWA engineering staff since 1934.

G. O. P. Observes Hatch Act, Fletcher Replies to Jackson

strange that he remains silent regarding the willful violation of the spirit, if not also the letter, of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act by the Democratic National Committee in accepting contributions from corporations under the guise of selling them advertising in a convention book.

"Does not Mr. Jackson know that the Federal Corrupt Practices Act makes it unlawful to accept contributions from corporations? Yet under the pretense of selling so-called advertising in a convention book, the Democratic Committee has shaken down American corporations for hundreds of thousands of dollars, not only in 1936 but also this year. Why has not the Justice Department acted against this flagrant violation of the law? Can it be that the Democratic National Committee has immunity under this Administration to violate the law?"

Fletcher's opinion, announced Saturday, had held that contributions to or by State or local committees are specifically excluded from the act and that the $5,000 personal gift limitation applies only to donations to a party's national or Senatorial or Congressional committees.

Senator Hatch, recalling to the Senate that Senator Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, had sponsored the limitation, added:

"There was no doubt what that provision meant, there was no doubt what the Senator from Alabama meant, and there was no doubt what the Senate meant by its record vote."

"I was terribly disappointed when I read this opinion," Hatch declared. "Why is it necessary when interpreting a law to point out how the main principle of that act may be avoided. If this isn't a perfect blueprint of how to avoid the act, I've never seen one."

Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, said his group was acting on the theory that Congress had a definite purpose in setting a limit on campaign expenditures and "we are not being a party to any evasion by any party or national or local committee."

Senator Wiley (Republican), of Wisconsin, cited Willkie's voluntary action in setting a $2,500,000 limit on the cost of his own campaign, and called on President Roosevelt to act similarly.

"I ask, now that the Republican leader has taken this position," he said, "that we get a similar commitment from the head of the party."

An observation that Willkie said at his vacation quarters in Colorado that he had not read Fletcher's interpretation of the act led Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, to suggest:

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, urged both parties to "live up to the spirit and letter of the law," and Senator Vandenberg raised the question whether the $3,000,000 limitation on political organizations included the campaign costs of candidates for local offices. Wheeler replied that a candidate for reelection, such as a Senator, undoubtedly would be called on to campaign for the Presidential candidate of his party.

Jackson had said Sunday night, with reference to the Fletcher ruling, that "no plan of this nature for avoiding the limitations of the Hatch Act are accepted or approved by the Department of Justice."

Fletcher, in his reply, asked the Attorney General whether Fletcher had erred in holding that all expenditures made by the G. O. P. committee since January must be deducted from the allowed expenditure total of $3,000,000.

The Once Over

Heat-Wave Sketch

Scene: Outer room of a business office on a very hot morning. It is 89 in the shade—and no shade.

Caller—Is Mr. Cadwaller in?

Girl Receptionist—How soon do you wish to know?

Caller—Well, I'd like to know right away.

Girl—Right away! . . . on a day like this?

Caller—It IS pretty hot, isn't it?

Girl—I'll say. Gee, I never felt it so awful in the subway. And there wasn't a breath of air last night. I couldn't sleep.

Caller—I didn't sleep either. It must have been one of the hottest nights of the year.

Girl—I got up and slept on the floor near a window, but it didn't do no good. I hate hot weather, don't you?

Caller—I certainly do. Gimme the spring or fall.

Girl—I like September.

Caller—October is pretty good.

Girl (wearily)—Well, call again some other morning.

Caller—But, er, I came to see Mr. Cadwaller.

Girl—Oh, that's right. I made a note of it here somewhere. (She looks around the desk.) Gee, where did I put it?

Caller (impatiently)—Never mind looking for it. It's just a man who wants to see Mr. Cadwaller.

Girl—I'm sure he ain't in. What I mean is if he had come in I think I would have seen him pass. He has a place at the shore and he never gets in early in hot weather. He might even stay out and go fishing. He has a boat. It must be nice to have a boat. Have you a boat?

Caller (getting pretty indignant by this time)—No. I have no boat.

Girl—What do you do when it's hot like this?

Caller—I just come in places like this to see Mr. Cadwaller. Will you please just investigate and see if he is in or not?

Girl (mopping her brow)—His office is away down the hall. But I suppose I could buzz him. What's the name?

Caller—Smathers . . . Larry D. Smathers.

Girl—Hathers B. Snarry?

Caller—No, I'll spell it; just take it down.

Girl—Gee, don't the heat ever get you at all?

Caller (after spelling his name out)—Now please see if Mr. Cadwaller is in yet. I have an appointment.

Girl—An appointment! Why didn't you say so?

Caller—I guess it was so hot I just lacked the energy. Phew!

Girl (with sarcasm)—Oh, no, you wouldn't lack the energy. Not you! You're one of those fellows who ain't bothered by the heat.

Caller—This has gone far enough. You're impertinent.

Girl—I ain't impertinent. I'm just hot.

Caller—Will you or will you not buzz Mr. Cadwaller?

Girl—Okay. But if he's in he will be pretty sore at both of us!

Helping Britain

By Mark Sullivan

Pershing's Recommendation

GEN. PERSHING, in his moving address to the country last Sunday, did two things. The most obvious was his recommendation that we send 50 destroyers to the British.

Before discussing that, let us consider a less noticed statement the General made. It was about not sending an army to Europe. On this, Gen. Pershing was very clear, very positive:

"I know that many sincere patriots are frightened at the thought of even the smallest act [of help for Britain] because they think such acts would lead us closer to the day when another American Expeditionary Force sets sail for Europe. It is my opinion that in this war it would be absolute folly even to consider sending another expeditionary force. No one is considering it, and those who may say that any one is considering it are deceiving themselves and deceiving you."

THIS FEAR, that we might be led ultimately into sending American youths to fight in Europe, is the great handicap to clear thinking by the American people about our policy with respect to the war in Europe. This fear accounts for the mood of hand-wringing jitters with which we have approached the whole subject of war, ever since our first fantastic, self-manacling neutrality legislation of 1935. If this fear can be extirpated, our people will think normally about our war problems. Gen. Pershing's solemn statement ought to extirpate it.

There was a time when the fear was not completely unreasonable. So long as France was in the war there was a considerable danger that first steps of help to the Allies might lead us gradually to the same final step we took in the Great War, an American army fighting in France. But with the war restricted to German attack on Britain, sending an American army to Europe becomes what Gen. Pershing says it is, "absolute folly." Literally, "no one is considering it."

WITH THAT fear out of the way, we can consider, calmly and on merit, proposals for other forms of help to Britain, such as sending her 50 destroyers. Probably nine out of ten Americans wish to give such help. Many wish it for sentimental reasons. But let us dismiss sentiment. Let us look at it wholly from the point of view of self-interest. From that standpoint, the reason for sending destroyers to Britain is stated by Gen. Pershing:

"If the destroyers help save the British fleet, they may save us from the danger and hardship of another war."

THAT STATEMENT can be proved. Let us put it this way:

If Britain were to win, thus preserving her fleet and her dominance on the sea—in that event, the United States would not need to apprehend war. If anyone could give us, today, a dependable guaranty that Britain was going to win, then we safely could, and probably largely would, abandon our defense program; we could end our talk about conscription and a two-ocean Navy. We could go our way in peace. For if Britain won and continued to control the sea, we would be just where we were before the war began. We would be as we have been during all the past decades, when Britain has controlled the sea. During those decades, it never occurred to us that we needed to build an immense army and navy and air force to defend ourselves and the American continent.

It is only because there is danger of Britain being conquered—it is solely because of that that we have gone into this great defense program. The proof is that we embarked on our enormous expansion in the very week when Germany beat France, and thereby threatened Britain. We feared that if Germany conquered Britain, we should then be obliged to defend ourselves against Germany (and also Italy and Japan) in South America, in the West Indies, at the Panama Canal Zone, ultimately on our own shores.

IF, BY SENDING 50 destroyers to Britain, we enable Britain to survive, then we would be saved the need of enormous armament. Never was insurance so inexpensive. And even if 50 destroyers are not enough, even if that is too little and the time too late—nevertheless, Britain would be enabled to hold out just so much longer. And by that, we should gain so much more time for ourselves, for our preparation against the consequences of British defeat.

Our highest military authority recommends it. Nine out of ten Americans wish it. Then how get action?

It is up to President Roosevelt. An Act of Congress would be necessary. This is so clearly a matter of war and foreign relations that the initiative can hardly be expected from within Congress—the initiative must come from the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy. There is every reason to suppose Mr. Roosevelt desires it. Again and again he has said, formally, officially, that our policy should be every possible help to the Allies short of sending an army. He has in the past given help similar to this, so far as he could within existing law. If he has hesitated to make this recommendation to Congress out of apprehension about isolationist sentiment or for other political reason, Gen. Pershing's solemn address to the country last Sunday night should give him confidence.

Franklin, Jr., Lines Up Law Clerk Job

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—When and if he passes his bar examinations in October, Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., will become a clerk in a Wall Street law firm headed by Eugene L. Garey, self-described "ardent anti-New Dealer."

"He will receive a modest salary at first," Garey explained today in announcing the appointment of the President's 28-year-old son. "His value will be largely a pair of legs until he is seasoned."

Garey added he would not be embarrassed having young Roosevelt work on cases coming before New Deal agencies because "by the time he can be entrusted with an SEC hearing his father will no longer be President, I think."

Destrick, Hitler's Nonsecret Agent, Visits Thomsen

Dr. Gerhard Westrick, German commercial counselor whose activities have been exposed to a glare of publicity lately, slipped into town yesterday for a conference with the German Charge d'Affaires, Hans Thomsen. He left the city after the talk.

An embassy spokesman said that the publicity that has made Westrick's visitors, physical defects, and other personal affairs the property of the entire Nation, certainly figured in the talk with Dr. Thomsen.

The spokesman discounted the possibility that Dr. Westrick might resign, but it was believed in other informed quarters that he might choose to return to Germany.

Contract Is Awarded On Naval Academy Job

The Navy announced yesterday award of a contract for additional buildings and accessories at the Naval Academy to McCloskey & Co., Philadelphia, on a cost plus fixed fee basis. The estimated cost, including the fee, was $1,210,000. Date of completion was not announced.

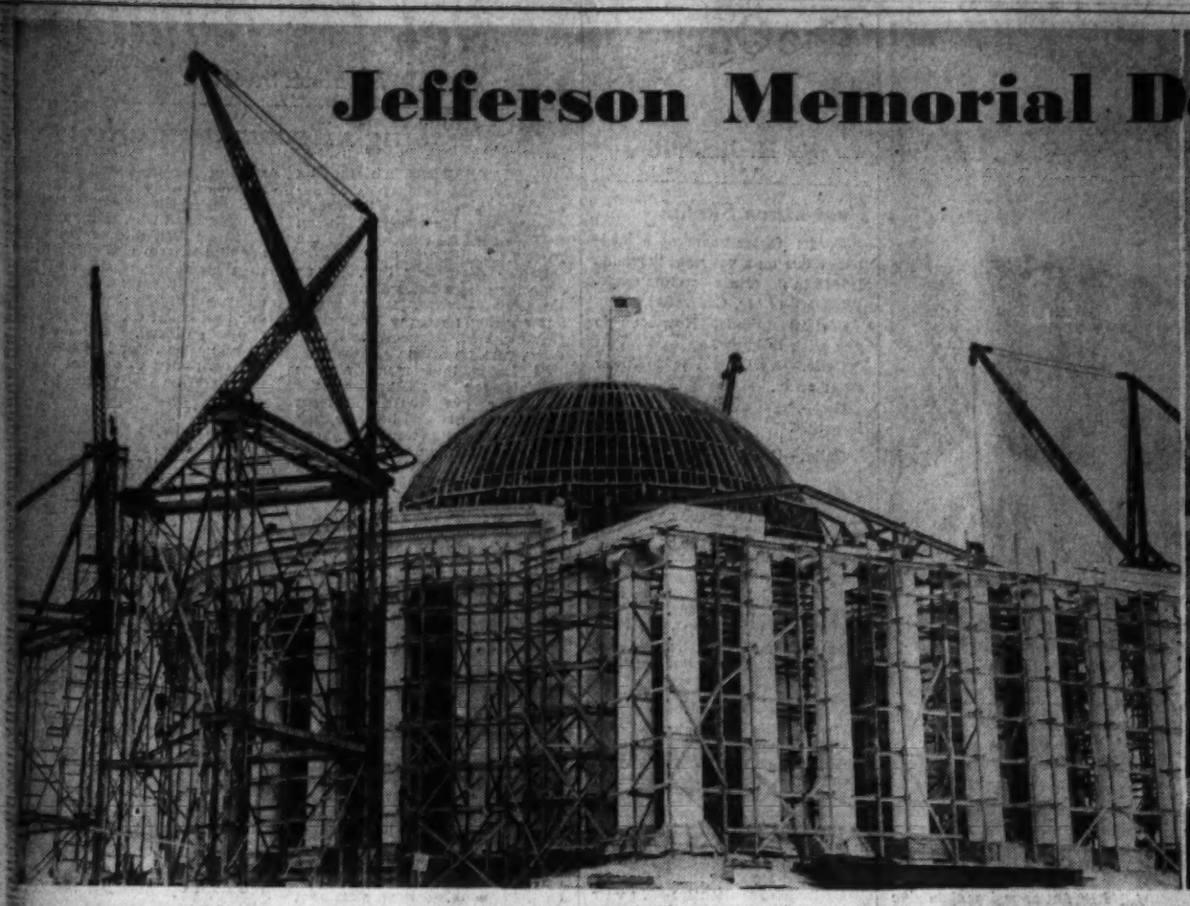
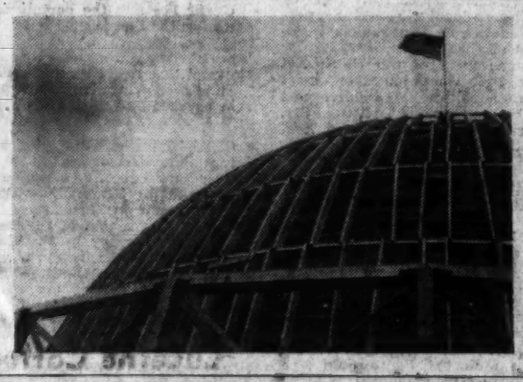
Jefferson Memorial Dome Takes Shape



An American flag flies atop the Thomas Jefferson Memorial today, signalizing completion of framework for the dome. This week, workmen will begin installing the limestone ceiling.



The $3,000,000 memorial is scheduled for completion in July, 1941, but it will be ready for dedication in January. Meanwhile, work is progressing on the design of the Jefferson statue which will go in the rotunda.

Committee Leads Refugees To Haven in America

By Charles Mercer

The roots of the British Empire may be threatened, but its people are doing their utmost to keep its seeds alive by protecting the youngest generation from the destruction of blitzkrieg. Their greatest ally in this purpose is the United States Committee for the Care of European Children.

Mrs. Stuart Rice, chairman, information committee, interviewing Clark Diamond, vice president of Chestnut Farms Dairy, of 2707 Thirty-second street northwest, who is seeking to bring a distant relative, Chase Marshall, 11, from Goring-by-the-Sea, Sussex, England, to care for her here

Since founding of the Washington branch in June, perfect cooperation has marked a score of organizations banded together to give information to Washingtonians on how British children may find a haven in American homes.

Through the Washington Council of Social Agencies information is being given the public. Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, president of Traveler's Aid, is chairman of the local branch; Capt. Rhoda Milliken, of the Women's Bureau of the Police Department, is vice chairman, and Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of the Council of Social Agencies, is secretary of the group.

"Visitors' visas, or permanent visas, may be used for the entrance of the refugee children," Mrs. Roberts explained yesterday. "Visitor visas may be secured for entrance from any country regardless of quota restrictions, but certain immigration quota restrictions are made on permanent visas as in the case of Germany, Hungary, Russia, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia, which are filled at present."

This is one of a series of articles on civilian war relief agencies active in Washington. The District Red Cross chapter is not included, as the work has been described elsewhere by The Post.

Odd Jobs

This Smithy Stands Amid Ultra-Modern Industry

By George Thorpe

In a far corner of a block-long iron works—obscure among the electric presses and acetylene torches of a 1940 industry—is the anvil of a Washington blacksmith.

Slight, 58-year-old Lewis Wolfe, of 1106 Ninth street northwest, has been a smith since he was 13. He has followed his trade from days of prosperity to its near extinction. And today he has fitted it into the workings of an ultra-modern business.

Lewis Wolfe at the Forge

In Wolfe's career, unremitting labor has replaced the chestnut tree.

An apprentice in his native Russian Ukraine, his only duty was to squeeze a bellows hour after hour while an older smith forged from the droshkies of a Czarist empire.

Emigrating to this country in search of "opportunity," he found a blacksmith's job at the coal mines of Latrobe, Pa.

Wolfe now points to a memento of his early days there, a scar above his left eye where a horse's hoof nearly bashed in his skull as he hammered a shoe in place.

A decade ago the coal business slumped in Latrobe, along with industry elsewhere. Five years ago the mines started shutting down and Wolfe moved to Washington.

Here he found a job with one of the Capital's four large iron works, which specializes in the ornamental metal fixtures you see in the newer apartment houses. When Wolfe fires up his forge it is to shape the delicate scrolls and fluttings that the machines cannot turn out.

Flynn Tells Of Willkie's Tammany Days

Nominee and Wife Ran on Same Ticket With Farley, He Says

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Aug. 5.—In his first press conference since his selection to manage President Roosevelt's third-term campaign, Edward J. Flynn, Bronx County Democratic chief, today assailed Wendell Willkie as a former active Democrat and a member of the same Tammany district club in which James A. Farley, retiring Democratic chairman, holds membership.

Mr. Flynn's attack on the Republican nominee for President follows Willkie's recent reference to him as a boss.

Flynn's statement said:

"This twaddle about this, that, or the other boss political machine is silly. If Mr. Willkie thinks that he can convince the American people that President Roosevelt is being guided or influenced by any political bosses or political machines, he is due for a very sad awakening.

Was a Paying Member

"Coming from Mr. Willkie, the charge is particularly foolish, for the record shows that only a few short years ago Mr. Willkie was a paying member of the Grover Cleveland Democratic Club in the Fifteenth Assembly District in the Borough of Manhattan and, with Mrs. Willkie, ran for county committeeman on the same ticket with Jim Farley and Frank Walker in a primary contest in that district.

"This club is a district club of the political organization then generally known as Tammany Hall, which is the regular Democratic organization in the Borough of Manhattan.

"Mr. Willkie's sudden distate for machine politics, as he terms it, is pure political expediency. These facts prove, however, that Mr. Willkie will use Tammany Hall, the Democratic Party, or the Republican Party to advance what for the moment will further his own personal interests, or the utility interests which he so ably represents.

"The issues facing the American people are far too serious for such trivial treatment. Let him confine himself to these issues and not to seek to draw a red herring across the trail. I don't think the American people want to elevate to the Presidency a man who can be guilty of that kind of hypocrisy."

Both Were Elected

Reporters asked Flynn if both Mr. and Mrs. Willkie had not been elected as members of the county committee.

"They were elected," he said.

"And they supported Sheehy, the organization choice, against Jeremiah T. Mahoney?" inquired another.

"They supported Sheehy," replied Mr. Flynn, who also remembered that Sheehy—John E. Sheehy—had been appointed sheriff of New York County by Mr. Roosevelt when he was Governor. This was in 1932, three years before the Sheehy-Mahoney struggle for control of the Fifteenth Assembly District.

Willkie Admits It

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 5 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie declared today that while he once ran on the same ticket with James A. Farley, "Edward J. Flynn is not Mr. Farley."

"I notice that Frank Hague, who sought to deprive people of their civil liberties, says that Flynn is a great pal of his. I have no doubt that Flynn will work in perfect cooperation with Hague, Kelly-Nash and all the other machines.

"For the type of campaign the Democrats intend to run, he is a perfect selection."

Contract Bridge

Test yourself for the tournament struggle by working out today's four questions. Score 25 points for each correct answer.

1. If your partner opens the bidding with one heart you should respond with one no-trump with all but one of these hands:

♠ K 6 2	♠ 9 8 5 2
♡ Q 8	♡ A K
◇ 9 6 4 2	◇ 7 4 3
♣ 8 6 5 3	♣ 8 5 4 2
♠ Q 10 6 3	♠ 8 3
♡ 9 5	♡ J 8 7
◇ K 7 5 4	◇ Q 8 5 3
♣ J 8 3	♣ Q 9 4 2

2. Your right-hand opponent has opened the bidding with one spade. Rank the following five defensive bids in order of strength: two spades, double, two hearts, one no trump, two no trump.

3. With neither side vulnerable, the bidding has gone:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	?	—

On each of these hands you are South. What do you bid?

(a)	(b)
♠ 2	♠ 3 3
♡ K 10 8 6 5 4 3	♡ K J 8 6 5 4
◇ 5 2	◇ 5 3
♣ J 9 7	♣ Q 9 7

4. You are West, declarer at a three no-trump contract. Your hand and dummy are as follows:

Declarer	Dummy
♠ Q 8 4	♠ 7 3
♡ A Q 6	♡ K 7 3
◇ A Q 5	◇ K J 9 6 4
♣ A 10 8 4	♣ Q 6 3

North opens the five of spades. South wins with the king and returns the jack. As West, do you or do you not cover with the queen, and why?

Answers to Quiz

1. Bid one spade with the third hand: Spades—Q 10 5 3.

2. Two spades, two no-trump, double, one no-trump, two hearts.

3. (a) Four hearts—a typical jump to game after an opening one no-trump bid. Your heart suit should provide four long cards in addition to its high card value. Altogether your hand is worth close to five winners, and your partner's no-trump shows about five. (b) Two no-trump, despite the six-card major suit your balanced distribution indicates that no-trump play will probably yield as many tricks at hearts.

4. As West declarer you should cover the jack return. The rule of eleven is the guide in this otherwise difficult decision. North's lead of the five showed that there were six high spades outstanding among dummy, South and West. Declarer has two of those and dummy has one; therefore he knows that South originally had three spades. It is futile, therefore, to duck the jack in the hope that South will not have another spade with which to put North on lead, and that North will be unable to overtake the jack without establishing the queen. Since declarer knows South has another spade, his one chance is to cover and pray that the other spade is the ten, which will block the suit. North's opening lead might have been from A 9 6 5 2. If it wasn't declarer's case is hopeless.

Sheila Sultan Becomes Bride In Hawaii

Lieut. M. R. Gray Weds Daughter Of Ex-Commissioner

News has been received from Hawaii of the recent marriage there of Miss Sheila Sultan, daughter of Brig. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, commander of the Twenty-Second Brigade at Schofield Barracks, and Mrs. Sultan, to Lieut. Marshall Randolph Gray, United States Army Air Corps.

The ceremony took place July 13 at the Wheeler Field Officers' Club, Chaplain James T. Wilson officiating, in an all white setting, with the flags of the regiments comprising Gen. Sultan's command affording the only color note. Tropical bamboo banked with standards of summer blooms formed the background for the altar, on which were placed cathedral tapers in seven-branched candelabra.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, who was Engineer Commissioner for the District of Columbia, preceding Col. Daniel McCoach, jr. Her gown of white tulle over taffeta was made with a bouffant skirt and full butterfly sleeves which tapered to a point over the wrists. Rare lace outlined the bodice, and her illusion veil fell the length of her long train. She carried a shower buquet of white roses and gardenias.

Bridesmaids Wear Organdy Pastel Frocks

The bridesmaids were the Misses May Fielder, Beverly Covell, Mully Brady, Babbie Henshaw, Peggy Sugg and Janet Tomlinson. They wore organdy pastel frocks over taffeta with high waists, wide skirts, bishop sleeves, Peter Pan collars and tiny buttons down the front. French toques edged with pleated ruching and held with a bow, and sheaves of gladioli in contrasting shades completed their costumes. Miss Linda Sultan was maid of honor for her sister and little Anne Harding was flower girl.

Best man was Lieut. Perry B. Hackett, and the following ushered: Lieut. Nils O. Ohman, Lieut. Robert H. Stuart, Lieut. Conrad H. Diehl, jr., Lieut. James V. Edmundson, Lieut. Jasper N. Durham and Lieut. Alvord Rutherford.

Reception Follows At Officers' Club

A reception at the Schofield Barracks Officers' Club followed the ceremony. After a honeymoon, the couple will live in Honolulu.

Mrs. Gray is a graduate of Gunston Hall here. She is the fourth generation of her family to marry in the Army. Her great grandfather was Maj. Gen. Thomas C. Devin and her grandfather was Lieut. Charles Braden, Distinguished Service Cross, of the Seventh Cavalry. Gen. Sultan is one of few officers in the American Army to have been awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster.

Lieut. Gray was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1937.

Life in Air Tempts Social Butterflies

Evelyn McLean, Jr., Plans to Join Women Flyers of America; Girls Training to Take Men's Place in Crisis

By Carolyn Bell

In this mad rush skyward, the social butterfly refuses to be left behind. Even she, it seems, has a yen to try her wings.

Evalyn McLean, jr., who last year hit the headlines with an idea for a night club, that somehow never materialized, is on another tack this season. The daughter of the owner of the Hope diamond is planning to join the Women Flyers of America.

With permanent offices in the Willard Hotel, this organization is open for business, that of accepting applications. A telegram from young Evalyn, expressing interest in the program, was one of the first bits of mail received. Miss McLean, who spent last winter in New York studying dress designing, has been spending the summer in Washington with her mother, Mrs. Edward B. McLean, at Friendship.

A crisp blonde, Miss Martha Gaither Townsend, who is fired with enthusiasm for aviation, is in charge of the Washington office. Miss Chelle Janis and Miss Genia Novak, who started the movement, were here last week from New York to open the Washington branch.

Martha Townsend Has Charge Here

Although Miss Townsend came over from Baltimore to take the job, she is no newcomer to the Capital. She lived here from 1933 to 1936 when her father, the late Rear Admiral Julius Curtis Townsend, was stationed here. Miss Townsend was accompanied to Washington by her mother. Before the death of the admiral last winter, the family made their home in Philadelphia. Miss Townsend, who attended the Holton Arms School and was graduated from Garrison Forrest, made her debut in Philadelphia several seasons ago.

Mrs. Sutherland Mayo surprised her friends not long ago by turning up as the organizer of the Long Island unit of the Women Flyers of America. The organization hopes to train feminine flyers and instructors who can take the place of men who might be needed in an emergency. "We don't want to put the women behind machine guns," said Miss Townsend in discussing plans for the future. Enthusiasm for this newest brand of home defense is gratifying, judging from the applications now being received.

Katharine Hepburn An Early Enrollee

Katharine Hepburn, volatile movie star, was one of the first to enroll. Just as any would-be flyer, she will have to deal with such complicated subjects as meteorology, aerodynamics, assembly rigging and so on. It won't be long before the gals will don overalls and be up to the elbow in grease.

Although this is not a Government-sponsored course (the fee incidentally is much cheaper than private lessons) the movement is heartily approved by Uncle Sam. All applicants must be over 18 and submit to a rigorous physical examination.

If you see a group of girls dashing out to Beacon Field in royal blue corduroy flying suit and white whipcord helmet, you may be sure they are members of the Women Flyers of America, for that is the uniform. For the benefit of the girls who arrive to enroll one of the uniforms is on display along with a large American flag and the organization emblem.

Moroneys Honeymoon; To Live in Va.

Rosemary Newman Weds in Fort Myer Chapel Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Moroney, jr., who were married last Thursday, will make their home in Falls Church, Va., after a wedding trip.

The bride is the former Miss Rosemary Newman, daughter of Mrs. Richard D. Newman and the late Col. Newman, U. S. A.

The ceremony took place at the Fort Myer Chapel in the presence of relatives and close friends. The Rev. William J. Walsh officiated. The bride wore a frock of yellow silk, made with short sleeves and a full pleated skirt, with matching broadbrimmed linen hat. She carried an heirloom lace handkerchief which her mother also carried on her wedding day and wore an orchid on her shoulder.

Miss Janice Robb, of Baltimore, her only attendant, wore a white silk eyelet jersey with a large white hat and a corsage of orchids. James C. Moroney was best man for his brother.

The bride, who made her debut at a large tea given here in 1937, attended Arlington Hall in Virginia and the Shipley School, Bryn Mawr, Pa. Mr. Moroney was graduated from the Univevrsity of Minnesota and its Law School.

Dr. Aitchison Honors Guest

Dr. Beatrice Aitchison has as her houseguest for several days Miss Elizabeth Bannon, of Sydney, Australia. On Sunday Dr. Aitchison entertained at a tea for her guest, who is an exchange professor of economics at the University of Oregon from the University of Sydney. Dr. Aitchison is the daughter of Clyde B. Aitchison, of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This evening Miss Bannon will be initiated into the Alpha Chapter of Phi Delta Gamma Sorority. The initiation will take place at the home of Dr. Margaret Sebree, retiring national president of Phi Delta Gamma. Miss Bannon will leave soon for the West Coast and Australia.

Hewes' Visit Hot Springs

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hewes, who were married here last Friday, are now honeymooning at The Homestead, Hot Springs, Va.

Mr. Hewes was at one time Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and later Special Assistant to the Secretary of State holding both posts in this Administration. Mrs. Hewes before her marriage was Miss Edna Harriet Hanion, of Hartford, Conn.

Mrs. W. L. Dunlop Visits at Virginia, Rehoboth Beaches

Mrs. William Laird Dunlop has returned after a stay with her daughter, Mrs. Oliver Mallory Walker, in the latter's cottage at Rehoboth Beach.

Mrs. Dunlop also went to Virginia Beach for a visit with Mrs. E. J. Courtney, of New York. She expects to remain in Washington for the rest of the season, with perhaps occasional short trips to resorts.

Legal Sorority Will Celebrate

Members of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Phi Delta Delta International Legal Sorority, will meet at the Shoreham Terrace tomorrow evening in celebration of the twelfth anniversary of the chapter's installation at the National University Law School.

Mrs. Kathryn Masco Schwarz, 5339 Forty-Second street, is in charge of reservations. Mrs. Schwarz is president and past treasurer of the chapter. Guests will include husbands and friends of the members.

Among those expected to attend are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schwarz, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gauker, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Kaiser, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Goodall, Mr. and Mrs. Cooke Settle, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Perrin, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Kieferle, Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison, Miss Nina Bolkhardt, Miss Winifred Grant and Miss Mabel Ross.

Slingluff Family At Jamestown, R. I.

Comdr. and Mrs. Frank Slingluff, jr., have arrived at Hilltop, at Jamestown, R. I., where they plan to spend the remainder of the season.

With them are their children Suzanne, who will make her debut next winter, Frank, 3rd, and David.

One Democrat Encountered (Willkie Man) at Rolling Rock

Fauquier-Loudoun Team to Play In Polo Tournament at Club Near Pittsburgh to Aid British

By Dudley Harmon

Turning my back temporarily on New Dealers, Army and Navy officers, diplomats and the three gloomy stockbrokers who make up my Washington acquaintance, I tracked down some businessmen over the week-end. You have to get far away from Washington before you realize what a rare bird the active factory owner or corporation official is in this city of ours (newly drafted members of the National Defense Commission excepted).

This particular businessmen's lair was the Rolling Rock Club near Pittsburgh. The mood of members may be guessed correctly when it is reported that in all the roomy clubhouse and the acres and acres of rolling land surrounding it, only one Democrat was encountered. And he is going to vote for Willkie.

Polo Tournament To Aid British

Rolling Rock is of particular interest to Washington society right now because of the polo tournament to be held there next week-end for the benefit of British relief. (They're as deeply aware of the war in Pittsburgh as in gloom-ridden Washington). The Fauquier-Loudoun team from down Warrenton way will compete, as will Meadowbrook (Thomas Hitchcock will referee), and teams from Wichita, Kans., and Cincinnati. Many Washingtonians are frequent visitors to Rolling Rock, among them two former Pittsburghers, Mrs. McCook Knox and Mrs. George A. Garrett, Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft stopped there for a brief rest after the convention.

This club, where gather Pittsburgh steel and aluminum officials and other businessmen, is unique in the country. Not only has it the usual golf course, swimming pool, and tennis courts, but several farms, a construction gang for bridge and road building on the grounds, winter sports, a hunt, a steeplechase course, acres for shooting, and a duck breeding establishment. The club is completely self sufficient down to the hen which lays the breakfast egg.

Club Is Result Of Mellon Idea

Like so many Pittsburgh institutions, Rolling Rock is the result of a Mellon idea. The late R. B., banker brother of Andrew, preferred to spend his money in Pittsburgh and on his friends there rather than travel the millionaire circuit which until recently revolved around New York, Paris, London and the Riviera. In the Allegheny foothills he bought up land, built himself a large house, and made it a recreation center for his friends. These he invited to come out as often as they pleased and stay as long as they wanted, offering them every sport except sailing.

Before his death, he settled a fund on this home. Afterwards, his son and daughter decided to turn it into a dues-paying club. Set on the top of a mountain, with a panoramic view of rolling green valley, Rolling Rock is one of the most beautiful in the country. And it offers complete quiet—except for the occasional muffled sounds of shots (clay birds, not Democrats, are the targets).

Noel Coward Off to Coast

Just as Washington was looking forward to having Noel Coward settle down in its midst on duty at the embassy, comes the news that he has left for the West Coast. It was reported at first that he would be attached to the British Embassy staff here, but this turns out to be incorrect.

The famous playwright-actor-composer brought an important message from England to Ambassador Lord Lothian, but his main mission in this country is to arrange for the care over here of some 60 orphaned children of British actors. He hopes to find refuge for some of them among English actors in Hollywood.

The Tuckermans Entertain Guests Over Week-End

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, who arrived recently at their summer home, Dormie, Southampton, Long Island, entertained a house party over the week-end. Their guests included Miss Mary Bayard Thompson, of Washington; Frederic A. de Peyster, jr., of New York; William R. McComb, of Washington, and Norton Goodwin, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman gave a luncheon at the Beach Club Sunday in honor of their daughters, Miss Laura Tuckerman and Miss Margaret Cary Tuckerman, a debutante of the season.

Rep. Casey Feted Guests From Chicago

Representative Joseph Casey had as his recent house guests his brother-in-law, Drew Dudley, and William Barker, both of Chicago.

Mr. Dudley stopped over for a few days enroute to Lancaster, Mass., where he will visit Mrs. Casey at her summer place there. During his stay Mr. Dudley was feted at a party by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Watson.

From Lancaster Mr. Dudley plans to visit Hanover, N. H., where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dudley make their home.

Rainbow Veterans Will Hold Outing

Col. Davis G. Arnold, recently installed president of the District of Columbia Chapter, Rainbow Division Veterans, has appointed the following outing committee: Dr. Albert M. Kloczewski, chairman; William H. Kay and Bernard Valentine Rhodes. The last two are past presidents.

This year's summer frolic will be held at Herald Harbor Park, Anne Arundel County, Md., throughout the day and evening of August 17.

Donald Lamms Arrive Saturday From Tokyo

Vice Consul and Mrs. Donald W. Lamm will arrive in Washington on Saturday from Tokyo, where Mr. Lamm has been stationed for the past three years.

They will be Mr. Lamm's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lynne M. Lamm, 2408 California street.

Col. Reybold Transferred

Col. Eugene Reybold, United States Army, who has been transferred to the General Staff here from Little Roc, Ark., arrived in town a day or two ago accompanied by Mrs. Reybold.

They have taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mary Haworth's Mail

When Young and Poor, Woman Gave Illegitimate Son For Adoption; Now Married, She Learns That He Wants to Know Her; Fears to Acknowledge Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: At an early age, I became a mother. I was unmarried at the time and my family was poor, so the baby was put out for adoption. I had supposed this arrangement would let me out-live the mistake, but now it rises like a ghost from the past to confront me.

The people who adopted the child proved unfit to keep him, and he was taken from them by court order. Then another home was opened to him, where he has remained for ten years. In an indirect way, the people who are rearing him have told him about his parentage, and he talks constantly about wanting to see his own mother and have some blood ties.

This family has proof that I am his mother, but I am now married and, of course, deny the story. But the boy wants to see me, so what must I do? These people are willing to care for him, but they think I should see him.

ANXIOUS MOTHER.

Cowardly Attitude Will Make Matters Worse

Dear A. M.: If you wish to take a civilized attitude toward your problem, you must summon the courage to serve the child's welfare at the expense, if need be, of your own. You must determine whether, all things considered, it would help or harm him to see you. In order to frame a right decision in this regard, I think you should enlist the advice and representation of a capable social worker who has a special understanding of child psychology.

Supposing it is agreed that the child would benefit by seeing you, then look ahead and determine under what circumstances and to what purpose. If, on the other hand, you are authoritatively advised that the introductory meeting which his foster-parents propose would be subtly injurious to him, then see that they are schooled (by your social-worker representative) to accept this viewpoint—so as to put an end to their distressing insistence.

Unless the situation is met in such fashion, it is extremely likely that you will one day be brought face to face with and obliged to acknowledge the boy as your son, whether or not you had planned it so. Thus, you will be sparing yourself much frantic, self-damning and futile dissembling if you employ your intelligence in discovering what contribution (if any) you can make to the child's happiness and self respect; since I am confident that what will be best for him will prove, likewise, to be best for you.

It is axiomatic that two wrongs never made a right—which ought to give you some idea of the general direction to take in working your way out of the dilemma. I cannot believe that you want it on your conscience to add insult to injury to your boy, by obstinately disavowing your kinship to him, after having handicapped him with the heritage of illegitimacy.

Furthermore, I doubt that lies and evasions are calculated to keep either him or your husband permanently in ignorance of the facts. I believe you can only right the matter by behaving in a courageous, decent manner, since the boy knows of your existence and his foster-parents know who you are and insist (however erroneously), that it is your duty to see him.

It would, of course, have been easier for all if the adoption proceedings had been conducted in such a way that the boy could have identified himself wholly with his adopting "parents." It would have been healthier for him, unquestionably, if he had never been burdened with the knowledge that his blood mother still lives and is available for communication. Properly conducted legal adoptions (in such circumstances) usually are negotiated in such a matter that the adoption establishes total and final divorcement between natural parent and child, just for the purpose of avoiding a mutually demoralizing denouement such as this. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Women's Page.

Good to the Last Touchdown

Some Women Ignore Heat And Get Slim

One Who Weighed 150 Pounds Is Now 118; Five Inches Off Bust

By Ida Jean Kain

I AM ACTING on a hunch . . . something tells me that nobody could talk you into exercise today! So to keep you from backsliding completely I am going to tell you about some of the women who have already slimmed down—and I hope it has some effect!

While you have been catering to your inertia and postponing your slimming from one season to the next, they have gone right ahead and slimmed down.

One of them writes (and don't you wish it were you!): "I want to tell you about the grand success I have had in counting my calories. I have dieted before, but I have found this the best and easiest way. I started the first of January—it was a New Year's resolution. I am five feet, one-half inch tall, and I weighed 150 pounds. Now I weigh 118 pounds!

"My measurements were: bust, 39 inches; waist, 33 inches; hips, 40 inches—and now, they are: bust, 34 inches; waist, 26 inches, and hips, 34 inches.

Can't Look Like Same Person

"I lost 30 pounds in four months, averaging about two pounds a week. In the last few weeks I seem to have hit that 'snag,' as you call it, but I am not going to give up until I lose a few more pounds. I am so proud of my results that I wanted to write and tell you. I scarcely look the same person. Exercise surely takes those inches off!"

She can't possibly look like the same person! She has taken five inches off the bust, seven off the waist, and six off the hips. And she has lovely proportions. Her waist is eight inches smaller than the bust measurement and the hips and bust measure the same. I know movie stars whose figures aren't quite that good!

And here's another reducer who shows some of you up: "I have reduced from 150 pounds to 120. I am exactly five feet tall and have a heavy frame—and I am 40 years old. I checked with my doctor and he says I am in the best of condition and that your slimming diet is what did it! Thanks a million!"

From 182 to 124

Three favorite excuses for not reducing are age, structure and health. But this reducer didn't let these things stand in her way. She has done a marvelous job of slimming down and improving her health.

Woman Who Lives on Yacht Confesses To Craving for Grass Under Her Feet

LIVING ON A boat isn't all sea breeze—take it from Mrs. R. B. Kellogg, whose home is the 85-foot yacht Chicago, now moored in the Potomac opposite Analostan Island. She loves her maritime existence but is too sensible to urge it on anyone who merely craves the sound of lapping waves.

Mrs. Kellogg

The first essential to success as a yacht-dweller is obvious but often overlooked: you must be able to swim. It's one thing to trip on the front stoop and quite another to stumble on a gangplank. Mrs. Kellogg knows from experience. To be content with life on the water, you also must be adaptable. It means saying goodby to long-loved furniture and the gadgets which cluter the kitchens of most housewives. And, obviously, you can no longer putter around in the garden. Mrs. Kellogg says the sail is the one thing she misses; when she's ashore she finds herself walking on people's lawns, just to feel the earth under her feet.

And speaking of dirt, her motto used to be, "Live more and dust less." But since moving to the boat two and a half years ago with her web-footed husband, son and daughter, she's become fussier about her housecleaning. "There's something personal about dirt on a boat," she explains. And remember before you buy that yacht—brass rails need daily polishing, and a mere mopping makes little impression on an open deck.

An uninvited but always welcome guest at diplomatic teas is a tiny old lady in black, wearing rusty high-top shoes and the expression of one who has seen better days. She slips quietly into the drawing-room, fills her reticule with sandwiches, thanks her "hostess" and goes on her way. Doormen and head waiters in the swankiest establishments know her and would not think of challenging her right to be present.

Summer, of course, is a dull season for a lady who lives on tea sandwiches. So the other day when Albert, maitre d'hotel at the Carlton, spied her at the entrance to the dining room, he sensed her predicament and served her a full-course dinner. When she was finished, it was he who left the tip on the table.

THE WEATHER—Rainy days reveal dozens of little street-corner clothes closets—the sheds where policemen keep their boots and raincoats for use during sudden showers . . . A reader reports noticing a D. C. water truck furiously sprinkling Scott Circle late one night. The unusual part about it was that he could hardly see the truck for the cloudburst which was drenching the circle at the same time.

Gifts for the Hostess

IF A hostess provides you with a delightful week-end, she gives you a chance to lift drooping spirits. And nothing is more beautifying to the face than happiness. However, while the hostess gives you gayety, she may not have time enough to stick to her beauty regime. So why not remember her with some little cosmetic remembrance?

The newest "entente cordiale" between fragrant beauty aids is a combination of eau de cologne and sachet devised to serve as a "thank you" to your hostess. Attached by a dainty ribbon to each bottle of a famous cologne is a gray silk sachet. You can have your choice of three scents—the cool, refreshing "Reflexions," the exotic, elusive, "Surrender" and "Jasmin," distinctly romantic in flavor.

Besides a variety of perfumes, eau de cologne and toilet water, there are tricky new summer lipsticks. One, "Black Tulip" was created especially for suntanned skins. It is also photogenic and can be whipped into immediate use when the candid camera man appears. Another lipstick, in a luscious read summer color, has been climatized to combat hot weather ravages.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

BOLDLY sailing into a problem that has baffled American womanhood for years, Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey has launched a campaign for the reform of the handbag.

Mrs. DeGoofey

The intrepid president of the Do Something About It League announced at her press conference yesterday that she was starting a campaign for bigger handbags and for bags with more subdivisions.

"It is imperative that something be done before the fall handbags are put on the market," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "While manufacturers say the fall bags are to be bigger, yet they have been saying that every season for years and so far no bag large enough for the possessions of the average woman has been devised.

"Now with women this fall having to carry with them all of their knitting and Red Cross sewing, also their political campaign literature, as well as their beauty aids, business equipment, dress accessories, vitamins, tonics, beautifiers, etc., we really need bags as large as suitcases."

Mrs. DeGoofey cited a recent contest held by a business women's organization to determine how many different articles could be carried in a handbag. The winner of the contest drew 133 different articles out of her bag.

"That proves," said Mrs. DeGoofey," the urgent need for larger bags."

Men to Blame For Bag Problem

"But, Mrs. DeGoofey," protested a representative of Esquire, "is it necessary for women to carry so much in their handbags? Now men as a rule prefer women with smart, flat handbags."

"Oh, they do, do they?" retorted Mrs. DeGoofey. "And yet they also prefer women without shiny noses and with neatly combed curls and with perfect Cupid bows' mouths and manicured nails and freshly perfumed ears. And let me tell you something—women don't look that way unless there is plenty in the bag.

"Another thing, I have noticed that men prefer women who can pull everything but white rabbits out of their handbags to meet masculine needs—stamps, aspirin, fountain pens, pencils, blank paper, calendars, road maps, shoe horns, needle and thread, safety pins, checkbooks, small change, and in emergencies—$5 bills.

"Moreover, not a day passes but women learn they must add new equipment to their handbags. A stylist has just announced that every woman should carry two or three pairs of white gloves in her bag so she can make frequent changes during the day. Another stylist advises the carrying of at least one extra pair of stockings. Still another insists a small whiskbroom is vital. And beauty experts are now advising that we carry hairbrushes and toothbrushes, eyebrow brushes and nailbrushes in our bags as well as all the cold creams, astringents, muscle oils and make-up equipment we need in our daily competition for men's approval."

Fish-Pond Bags Causing Insanity

"But, Mrs. DeGoofey, we have had some perfectly stunning large handbags this summer!" protested a fashion editor.

"You mean the ones without any subdivisions and with a coin purse on a string," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "Well, I want to tell you those bags are one of the most potent causes of the increasing insanity among American women. I know of instances in which women have gone stark staring mad trying to find their street car passes or their change purses when boarding street cars or buses ahead of a crowd. Many a woman has suffered a collapse trying to fish the coin purse on a rubber string out of a pile of junk in an undivided handbag.

"As a matter of fact, I have never yet seen a bag with enough subdivisions. So I shall demand that the bag manufacturers subdivide bags from now on alphabetically and put in each a small card index system."

"When do you expect to put your new bag on the market?" asked a financial editor.

"Just as soon as I can employ a secretary to operate my bag-filling system," was the reply.

Tomatoes
Ripe or Green

TOMATOES in the markets now are in various stages of ripeness. The ones that are hovering on the green side are just the kind to use for frying. They may be used as a garnish to a meat dish or if they are an especial favorite with the family a whole platter of them will be needed.

Select firm tomatoes, but do not remove the skins. Cut in half-inch slices, dust with salt and pepper and a trace of sugar. Dip in flour and saute in butter, vegetable fat or savory drippings until brown.

Tomatoes may also be fried in deep fat. Prepare the tomatoes in the same way by cutting in half-inch slices. Dip in flour, then in beaten egg, then with fine dry crumbs—corn flakes, bread or cracker crumbs may be used. Place in a frying basket and fry in deep hot fat.

Fritters made from sliced, firm, unpealed ripe or green tomatoes are also a change for the vegetable line-up. Dip the one-half-inch slices in batter, and fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a cube of bread in 100 counts—325 degrees. Serve plain or dust with sugar.

Cold Vegetable Storage Alters U. S. Food Habits

A revolution in eating habits is quietly taking place because of the swift advance in knowledge of how to care for and handle all kinds of perishable foods, according to Dr. Mary E. Pennington of New York, pioneer in refrigeration and the preservation of fresh foods, who will receive the Francis P. Garvan Gold Medal at the 100th meeting of the American Chemical Society, in Detroit September 9 to 13.

"Less beets, turnips and potatoes; more peas, spinach, and lettuce" is the way Dr. Pennington summarizes the change. Of great significance to the health of the American people is the increased quality of vitamins present in the preserved fresh food which reaches the consumer's table, she points out.

"We are just beginning to realize that spinach picked yesterday nearby and hauled into the city to sit on the sidewalks and in markets is practically stripped of vitamin C in a few hours, while that which comes in from California or the Rio Grande in refrigerator cars to be kept in coolers almost matches the growing plant in vitamin C content."

House Repasses Judiciary Bill

Overrides Veto On State Intervention In U. S. Court Suits

The House yesterday overrode one Presidential veto of a Judiciary Committee bill and came within nine votes of overriding another.

By a tally of 251 to 46, the House repassed, over the President's objection, a proposal to give a State the right to intervene in any Federal court action involving Governmental powers that might abridge the asserted powers of the individual State.

But a vote of 184 to 106 failed to produce the necessary two-third majority to overrule a veto of a bill which, he said, would render the power of pocket veto "practically nugatory."

Gives Broad Powers

The bill regarding State intervention in Federal court actions will, if the Senate also overrides the veto, permit States to intervene in cases where the validity of the exercise of Federal powers is in question—if the decision might conflict with powers already exercised by the State or if the exercise of the Federal power would abridge powers claimed by the State.

In his veto message, President Roosevelt said that the measure "invites the States to intervene as a matter of right to attack the exercise of any Federal power" that abridges any power the States may claim for themselves.

"I find no justification," he said "for such broad powers of intervention by the States. . . . The proposed statute would . . . subject a State's attorney general to pressure to intervene in any case where a private litigant is opposing Federal action, on the ground that such action invades States' rights. Such exploitation of the authority of State officials for the interests of private litigants should not be encouraged."

Backed by Satterfield

Upon the growth of the Federal Government and its agencies, Representative Satterfield (Democrat), of Virginia, said in debate yesterday, the States should have the right to protect themselves.

The pocket veto bill would have merely repealed all bills that have been pocket-vetoed—some 300 of them—after any adjournment of a session of Congress except the final session.

It would have "far-reaching implications," said the President, "because it would assume that all such bills became law and that the President has no authority to exercise a pocket veto at any time except after a final adjournment of a Congress."

It would affect by indirection an amendment to the Constitution," the Chief Executive declared.

Motor Queen Brings 43,454 Defense Pledges

. . . ALL PLEDGING TO AID NATIONAL DEFENSE—Doris Rundles, Motor Queen, of Flint, Mich., arrived at the White House yesterday with a book bearing 43,454 signatures of Flint citizens pledging to aid William S. 53 Traffic Tickets Adjusted

Representative James W. Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, was among 53 persons who had traffic tickets adjusted last week, according to the list made public yesterday at police headquarters.

Wadsworth was tagged for parking within 20 feet of a building line. He was let off with a warning at his own request, according to the record.

It was one of the smallest ticket-fixing lists in months. Five tickets were canceled and 48 persons were warned. Three pleaded diplomatic immunity.

Eight of the 53 claimed their cars had been pushed or were disabled; three said they were on official business, while seven claimed they were visitors and unfamiliar with local regulations. Three doctors were given warnings when they explained they were making emergency calls when their cars were tagged.

An excuse that was a bit different was that of Maurice A. Goracoff, of 2532 F street northwest, who said he slipped on a wax floor and was unable to move his car from a restricted zone.

Those pleading diplomatic immunity were Singo Kasiwagi, Alban Towers apartment; Tonina T. Hemmingson, Netherlands Legation, and John J. Long, Japanese Embassy.

Va. Guardsmen Leave for Army Maneuvers in N. Y.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—The main body of the 4,000 enlisted men and officers of the Virginia National Guard, left here today by train and trucks to participate in the Army maneuvers in northern New York State.

Others went in advance by automobile. On Friday units of the 111th Field Artillery will start for the encampment.

The concentration of the Virginians will be under the direction of Lieut.-Col. Sheppard Crump, executive officer of the First Regiment and the Virginia brigade will be commanded by Col. J. Fulmer Bright, mayor of Richmond, in the absence of Brig. Gen. Gardner Waller. Governor Price has ordered Gen. Waller, the Virginia adjutant general, to remain in Richmond to aid in plans for the proposed selective service.

The Virginia troops will maneuver as part of the 29th Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, of Baltimore. The maneuvers, involving about 91,000 men, will continue to August 25 in the Plattsburg-Watertown area.

U. S., Russia Drafting New Trade Pact

Nations Act to Avert Threatened Break In Commercial Dealings

By the Associated Press

The United States and Soviet Russia, averting a threatened break in trade relations, were said to be near agreement last night on a basis for commercial dealings for another year.

The existing agreement, under which Soviet Russia promised to buy at least $40,000,000 worth of American goods during the year and actually purchased far more than this, expires today.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said today he understood a new agreement was in prospect, though not yet actually concluded.

Basic Provisions Kept

In Moscow, where the negotiations centered, it was reported they had reached an advance stage and that the existing agreement would remain in force pending conclusion of the new one.

Whether the terms of the present agreement would be modified to any large extent was not disclosed in either capital, but it was considered likely that the basic provisions would be retained.

There was no indication whether the negotiations involved a possible settlement of difficulties between the two governments over curtailment of exports of machine tools and other equipment from the United States, which now are subject to an export licensing system to conserve supplies needed in the national defense programs here.

Recall Molotoff's Statement

Soviet objections to the application of these restrictions had raised doubts that the present agreement would be extended or replaced by a new one. In some trade circles, a complete suspension of commercial relations had been forecast.

The statement of Soviet Premier Molotoff last week that he could not "say anything good on Soviet relations with the United States" held ominous implications for the trade negotiations.

But Welles' statement and the report from Moscow indicated the main difficulties had been surmounted.

Welles said that if his information, presumably from Moscow, was correct, the agreement should be concluded soon and would be announced simultaneously in Washington and Moscow.

Labor Act Alteration Urged

With the Senate Labor Committee scheduled to consider today its course of action on proposed amendments to the Wagner Act, the National Association of Manufacturers last night warned that interests of national defense require alteration in the labor law.

In a message to each member of the committee, H. W. Prentis, jr., president of the N. A. M., said the "Wagner Act can and should be corrected now if industry is to be able to do properly the national defense job which the Congress and the people want it to do."

A proposal in the pending National Guard and conscription bills making it a Wagner Act violation in certain circumstances to refuse to reemploy men at the end of their term of service makes "even more necessary immediate amendment" of the act, said Prentis.

Meanwhile, it was reported in House corridors—but unconfirmed—that a virtual ultimatum had been given the National Labor Relations Board to abolish its Technical Service Division. Funds for this section, formerly called the Division of Economic Research, had been withheld in the 1941 appropriation for the board; but as there was no direct legislative prohibition against the division, the board continued it under the new name.

However, it was reported that the Appropriations Committee handling the NLRB grant had given the members of the board until the middle of the week to wipe out the division—under implied threat of specific legislative command.

12 Aliens Take Citizenship Oath At Rockville

Twelve persons, all but one of them from countries now at war, swore allegiance to the American flag and received their United States naturalization papers yesterday from Judge Stedman Prescott, at Rockville, Md.

Swearing to fight against their native countries if called upon were three from Germany, one from Italy, seven from Allied nations and one from Switzerland. All are now living in Montgomery County.

They are Siegfried Lohnhoff, from Germany; Loubov R. Gamow and George Gamow, from Denmark; Mary L. M. O'Meyer, from Scotland; Gertrude M. D. Wolohon, from Newfoundland; Werner K. Gabler, from Switzerland; Ralph E. Gibson, from Scotland; Svend E. Jordan, a Dane, formerly living in Japan; Trude Rahn, from Germany; Ilse E. Sommer, from Germany; Jean I. Porrier, from France, and Angelo D. Amario, from Italy.

U. S. Engineer Hurt In Tug Accident

Caught between a tug and the scow it was towing in the Washington Channel, H. K. Gillman, 56, of 101 North Wayne street, Arlington, Va., a surveyor of the United States Engineers' Office, was seriously hurt yesterday afternoon and taken to Casualty Hospital with fractures of the hip and pelvis.

Gillman was doing work in connection with the channel's dredging by the Norfolk Dredging Co., owner of the tug and scow.

Mystery Bullet Injures Woman

Found staggering along the street by a neighbor near her home, 1024 First street northwest, Leama Evans, 28-year-old colored woman, was in Freedmen's Hospital last night with a bullet in her head. She told police the bullet came from an unseen gun as she stepped into her back yard.

A hospital examination showed powder burns, indicating the shot was fired at close range.

Remon Appointed Regatta Chairman

John A. Remon, president of the President's Cup Regatta Association and the American Power Boat Association, has accepted appointment as General Chairman of the 1940 President's Cup Regatta organization, according to an announcement by Thomas P. Morgan, jr., chairman of the Promotion Committee for the aquatic event. The regatta program this year, as approved by the general chairman, features motorboat races on September 27, 28 and 29; canoeing and rowing events, September 21 and 22, and sailing competition on September 14 and 15.

Mr. Remon is vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

Bicycle Not Built for 2 Hits Car; Both Hurt

Two on a bike proved a little too much for two 10-year-old Takoma Park boys yesterday, who ran into the rear fender of an auto and injured themselves.

The youngsters, Charles Robbins, of 506 Carroll avenue, and Richard Fairchild, of 807 Carroll avenue, encountered the obstacle at Flower and Kennebec avenues. At Washington Sanitarium, where they were taken by the Takoma Park Rescue Squad. Charles was treated for a cut chin, and Richard for a concussion and leg injuries. He also lost a tooth.

Earthquake Recorded 4,600 Miles Away

Somewhere, 4,600 miles from Washington, early yesterday, there was an earthquake. The quake occurred at 3:30 a. m. and lasted until 4:45 a. m., the Georgetown University seismograph recorded. So faint, however, were the vibrations that seismograph attaches could not determine its location or direction.

Canadian Army Denies Rejecting Richard Greene

Victoria, British Columbia, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Richard Greene, young English film star now in Hollywood, will have no difficulty getting into the Canadian army if he wants to, Col. Ronald Kingham of the Sixteenth Canadian Scottish Regiment, said today.

Greene made a brief flying visit to Vancouver and Victoria last week, saying on his return to California that he vainly tried to join up.

Col. Kingham said the Canadian army did not "like being used in this way for movie publicity."

14,000-Acre Park Approved by House

Senate Has Already Passed Bill for D. C. Area Project

House approval yesterday of a Senate-passed bill virtually assured addition of 14,000-acre Chopawamsic recreation area to the District's park system.

The Chopawamsic area is near Dumfries, Va., off Route No. 1, about 35 miles from Washington, and lies in Prince William and Stafford counties.

Under terms of the bill, the forest land would be transferred from the National Park Services to the National Capital Parks, and be developed to serve Washington as Bear Mountain Park serves New York City.

Purchased through FERA funds in 1934, the Chopawamsic was established as a recreation demonstration project under direction of Conrad L. Wirth, supervisor of recreation and land planning. At present it contains five fully-equipped camping sites, providing facilities for 500 campers.

The camps are occupied for the summer by the District Salvation Army's Camp Happyland, the Family Service Association's Camp Goodwill, for white children and mothers, and Camp Pleasant, for colored children, and the Alexandria Girl Scouts' Center Camp. During the winter, fall and spring the camps are taken by 4-H clubs, Boy Scouts, Welfare and Recreation Association, church units and members of the Council of Social Agencies.

For the buildings, sponsors of the camps pay a maintenance fee. Picnic sites and playgrounds are now being set up and public camping facilities will be provided later, according to Julian H. Salomon, field coordinator.

Chopawamsic affords a natural playground. It is fed by branches of the Quantico and Chopawamsic creeks, which run into the Potomac. Containing a variety of trees, both hills and tableland, the area has extremely little poison ivy.

The Indians named it Chopawamsic—"at a small isolate lodge"—and here Capt. John Smith is supposed to have been the first trader in 1608. Colonization was undertaken in 1685 and plantations arose. These became impoverished after the Civil War. The Federal Government bought the land in 1934 under a submarginal land purchase program. CCC, WPA and the National Park Service cooperated in development of the park.

Theft Suspect Seized, but $645 Of Loot Is Missing

A "stop (his) chase early yesterday resulted in the apprehension of a 42-year-old white man, but $645 of the loot from a filling station at Fourth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast had disappeared.

George Beck, of 1338 K street southeast, attendant at the station, was working in the grease pit at 3:30 a. m. when a stranger approached on foot and asked to buy a soft drink. Beck told him to wait a minute and went about his work.

A moment later the attendant saw the stranger dash from the station office, a canvas bag in his hand. He scrambled out of the pit and gave chase, was joined by others and caught a fleeing man a block away.

A package containing $290 in checks and $20 in bills was recovered. But what became of the bag, which contained $645 in bills and change, was a mystery.

Strange Cargo For D. C. Zoo Arrives Today

Director Mann's Collection of Animals To Dock at Norfolk

Zoo Director William Mann, with a cargo of strange and rare beasts, birds and reptiles from the jungles of Liberia, West Africa, will dock at 10 a. m. today at Norfolk, Va., aboard the S. S. Irmo, the Smithsonian Institution announced last night.

Although a complete list of the animals captured by the expedition will not be available until Dr. Mann lands, it is understood the specimens will include a chevrotain, or water deer, standing about 12 inches high at the shoulders; a pigmy hippopotamus; a monkey-eating eagle, king of the jungle birds and other unusual creatures.

Some of the animals—the less dangerous and noisy—will be brought to Washington by the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co., arriving here tomorrow morning. Train and truck will transport the others. Many of the animals will not immediately be placed on exhibition because of quarantine restrictions.

Also aboard the floating menagerie will be Mrs. Mann and Ralph Norris, Zoo keeper. Roy Jennier, another keeper, returned several weeks ago with the first shipment of animals captured in Liberia.

The expedition was under the general supervision of the Smithsonian Institution and was sponsored by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

Appeals Court Gives Girl, 15, Back to Mother

Fairfax Stuart's Custody Taken From Dancing Instructress

Fairfax Stuart, 15-year-old daughter of a prominent Washington neurologist and recently the ward of a dancing instructress, yesterday was ordered placed in the custody of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Berry Stuart, by the District Court of Appeals in a ruling reversing a Juvenile Court decision.

The juvenile branch on May 12, 1939, found the girl was "without parental care and support." She was put in the custody of Mrs. Lloyd P. Shippen, of 3007 Q street, who operates a number of children's dancing classes, one of which Fairfax had attended.

Previously, the child's father, Dr. Daniel D. V. Stuart, of the Wyoming Apartments, had been ordered to pay $150 monthly toward her support on the understanding that he was to be allowed "to interview" her from time to time.

In the juvenile court hearing Mrs. Stuart raised objections as to the "fitness of Dr. Stuart to visit the appellant (Fairfax)." Since his payments were contingent on the visits it was ruled "an impasse had arisen which warranted the judgment."

The Court of Appeals reversed the ruling giving the custody of the girl to Mrs. Shippen, in a decision read by Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens.

"The duty of a father to support a child is not contingent upon his right to visit the child if it is inimical to the interests of the child for him to do so," the decision said.

In restoring Fairfax to her mother, the court found that "the evidence overwhelmingly establishes that Mrs. Stuart's care of the appellant since her birth has been continuous and devoted and has resulted in a well developed, well educated, healthy child."

Forty Horses Answer Call to Colors, But Only Three Meet Army Requirements

Sales Disappoint' Farmers Who Come From Miles Around

Some 25 horses offered for sale yesterday by Fairfax County farmers were spared the rigors of Army life when the animals failed to meet the rigid Army requirements for service in the Artillery and Cavalry corps.

The disappointed farmers rode their animals hame after bringing them from miles around to the farms of A. S. Bowman, near Herndon, and J. A. Wheeler, near Wheeler's Mill. The horses were examined by Maj. E. H. deSaussure, head of the Army Horse Purchasing Board, and Capt. S. J. Michael, Army veterinarian.

At a sale earlier in the day at the farm of J. D. Hemsley, between Sterling and Acola, in Loudoun County, the Army representatives inspected about 15 horses and accepted three. The animals brought an average of about $165 apiece. They will be sent to the remount station at Front Royal, Va.

Maj. deSaussure said he would visit other sections of Virginia and tour Maryland and Pennsylvania in search of Army horses. Even in this age of mechanized warfare, he explained, horses are still vital to the Army. The German army, he said, is reported to have 800,000 horses in service.

In case of war, Capt. Michael observed, the Army standards for horses probably would not be so high. Under present Army specifications, all horses purchased must be from 4 to 8 years old, solid in colors, from 15 to 16 hands high, and from 950 to 1,200 pounds in weight. Geldings are preferred, but mares will be accepted if they are outstanding animals.

Ambulance Delay Blame Not Fixed

Coroner's Jury Charges Negligent Homicide to Driver In Greaves' Death

Responsibility for the ambulance's delay in responding to the accident in which William E. Greaves, 60, was injured fatally Friday was not fixed yesterday after 18 persons testified before a coroner's jury. The jury charged Joseph Bennett, 29, bus driver, with negligent homicide in connection with the accident.

Bennett, who resides at 655 Maine avenue southwest, was released on $1,000 bond.

Greaves lay dying at Twenty-second and Quincy streets northeast for 55 minutes before a Casualty ambulance arrived, according to testimony.

Another alleged delay in responding to an ambulance call was being investigated by Inspector L. I. H. Edwards after Georgetown residents complained Sunday that a colored man had been left unconscious in front of 1643 Wisconsin avenue northwest for 39 minutes before aid arrived after three persons said they had phoned police.

Policeman Testifies

Inspector Edwards said Lieut. E. L. Eby, of the Twelfth Precinct station, was investigating and probably would have a report ready today.

Testifying at yesterday's inquest, William J. Cusick, of 2228 Quincy street northeast, near where Greaves was injured, said he called police "some time before 8 a. m." for an ambulance. Cusick added that he was told to call the Twelfth Precinct. "Listen, this is up to you. It is your duty to get help," he said he answered.

Policeman Ernest E. Devey, of Twelfth Precinct, who said he arrived on the scene shortly after the first police radio call at 7:30, testified that he understood from persons at the scene that an ambulance had been called. Another policeman from the precinct, D. J. Slattery, who drove the station wagon to the scene and offered to move the injured man to the hospital, testified he had called Casualty Hospital some time near 8 a. m. after being informed by a doctor administering first aid to Greaves that it was unsafe to move the injured man in anything but an ambulance. Slattery said he called Casualty a second time at 8:16 a. m. and that the ambulance arrived a few minutes later.

Records Show One Call

Dr. Joseph Rogers Young, Chief of the Medical Staff of Casualty Hospital, came to the inquest with records from the hospital which reported the only call for an ambulance was at 7:56 a. m. The ambulance was sent out immediately, Dr. Young said, arriving at 8:20 and returning to the Hospital at 8:30.

After the inquest, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said "obviously there was a slip up somewhere," but said it was impossible from the testimony to fix the blame.

The delay did not contribute to Greaves' death, according to Dr. Irving Rosenberg, assistant deputy coroner, who testified that Greaves died of complicated injuries when his chest was crushed. Each of several of the injuries, he added, usually were fatal.

Funeral Today

Masonic funeral rites for Greaves, 60, will be held at 2 p. m. today at his home, 3819 Twentieth street northeast.

A lifelong resident of the District, Greaves was educated at Western High School. He had been connected with the Standard Brands Co. for more than 20 years.

Prominent in lodge circles, Greaves was past master of George C. Whiting Lodge, No. 22, Masonic; and past worshipful master of Columbia Council, Universal American Mechanics. He also was a member of the Order of Elks, the Potomac-Valley Forge Council and the Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

The Junior Hall Association, of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, held services at the home last night.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Emma Greaves; a son, Clifton Greaves, a brother, George C. Greaves, of Franklin, Pa., and two grandchildren.

Drive Organized Here to Combat Draft Opposition

A drive to combat opposition to compulsory military training is being organized by the Association for Universal Military Education, it was announced last night by Samuel Lovenbein, who organized the association in November, 1938.

Lovenbein, former parking lot operator who for months blocked the District's attempt to take possession of property in the vicinity of the Municipal Center, said headquarters for the campaign would be opened in the Willard Hotel.

A parade to boost the cause will be held in Washington September 8, Lovenbein said.

Lovenbein, World War veteran and one of the original bonus agitators, recalled that no Government official would take him seriously when he advocated universal training nearly two years ago.

Iverson to Quit Justice Dept. To Be Mormon Mission Official

New Eastern State President Succeeds Evans, Who Is Retiring

Former Judge G. A. Iverson, of Washington, disclosed last night he would resign as special assistant to the Attorney General to become president of the Eastern State Missions of the Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints (Mormon).

His appointment was announced yesterday by Frank Evans, retiring mission head, at closing sessions of the church's Cumorach Conference at Palmyra, N. Y.

Reached at his Cavalier Hotel apartment, 3500 Fourteenth street northwest, Judge Iverson said he would leave Washington to accept the post as soon as he could put his Department of Justice affairs in order, probably next month. His new headquarters will be in New York City, where he will direct the activities of 160 missionaries working in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania and part of Maryland.

The area is the church's most populous mission district.

Judge Iverson, special assistant to the Attorney General for the last 13 years, has for a number of years directed the Government's efforts to settle the Virginia-District of Columbia boundary dispute.

Until recently he has been established in Denver, Colo., in charge of the Government's intervention in the North Platte River dispute of Nebraska versus Wyoming and Colorado.

A native of Salt Lake City, Utah, he served as a Federal district judge, State Senator and assistant State attorney general before coming to Washington join the Department of Justice.

Ritual Contest, Cruise Mark Elks' Session

National Leader To Address Group Today in Annapolis

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 5.—Delegates to the twentieth annual convention of the Maryland, Delaware and District of Columbi Elks Association today mingled business of the order with an entertainment program.

Frank Hladky, Annapolis, president of the association, presided at a business session in the House of Delegates chamber of the State House during the morning.

In the afternoon about a third of the 600 delegates and visitors attending the convention went for a sail on the Chesapeake Bay aboard the schooner Capt. Pert Kelly. Those who remained ashore enjoyed a social gathering and matinee dance at the clubhouse.

Tonight the Cumberland, Salisbury and Washington lodges held a ritualistic contest in the lodge room. The competing lodges won the right to enter the final competition by winning contests in their districts. Games and cards at the lodge room and a dance wound up the day's program.

Members of the association are looking forward to the visit of Joseph G. Buch, grand exalted ruler of the national organization, tomorrow. Buch will fly to Baltimore from his home in Trenton, N. J.

The softball games that had been scheduled between Annapolis, Hagerstown and Washington lodge teams during the convention have been canceled.

After the business session tomorrow, when new officers will be nominated and elected, the delegates will go on a sightseeing tour of the city and academy. Later they will attend a picnic and shore party at Elktonia Beach on the Chesapeake Bay.

Harry Iddins, 64, Dies in Baltimore

Baltimore, Aug. 5 (AP).—Harry Iddins, 64, assistant treasurer and bursar of the Johns Hopkins University, died today after a year's illness. He had been connected with the university for 45 years.

His widow survives. Funeral services will be held Wednesday, with burial in Congressional Cemetery, Washington.

Court Settles Case of Commas Versus Periods

Appeals Decision Affirms Ruling in Will Of Man, 73 Yrs. Dead

The United States Court of Appeals for the District yesterday threshed out complications in a 73-year-old will, disputed because of a testator's "fondness for commas and aversion for periods."

The decision affirmed a District Court ruling in the will of Johnson Hellen, who died in 1867. Hellen bequeathed certain Washington realties in a testament written in longhand and containing this key clause:

"To any eldest son George may have living, at the time of his death, if George dies before his father, without such son, then remainder in fee to my son Frank."

The appellants, who are Frank's heirs, claimd the period should have followed the clause "if George dies before his father." The appellees maintained, on the other hand, the period should have followed "at the time of his death."

In siding with the latter, Justice Wiley Rutledge held: "There is no difficulty in this case which could not have been forestalled by application of the fundamental rules of punctuation . . . the litigation arises out of the testator's fondness for commas and his corresponding aversion to periods."

'Escort Service' Cares for British Refugee Children

A new type of "escort service" was reported yesterday by the Washington Committee for the Care of European Children. According to cablegram advices, the committee said, hundreds of British women are enlisting as shipboard "mothers" for refugee youngsters.

One woman takes charge of 15 children—all between the ages of 5 and 16, it was explained. The women do not remain in the United States, but go back and forth with the ships.

The escort service, it was reported, is financed by Americans in the British Isles.

Brick Drivers Threaten Strike Today

Teamsters' Agent Says Truckers Will Act Unless Yards Hire All Union Men

The threat of a teamsters' union walkout today, which would halt the delivery of bricks, added a new problem last night to the mounting list of labor disputes which has delayed construction of the new Social Security Building.

The teamsters' union has been negotiating for some time with the brick companies for the employment of union truck drivers on construction jobs utilizing nonunion labor. In conference with Labor Department conciliators yesterday, Charles Bell, the teamsters' business agent, threatened the walkout unless the union's terms are accepted.

The building, that will house the National Defense Advisory Commission for the duration of the preparedness program, is already being delayed by a strike of plasterers and cement finishers which grew out of a jurisdictional dispute with the carpenters' union.

Reynolds Concerned

"This strike will cause a very serious delay in the completion date unless it is settled rapidly," W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of the Public Buildings Administration, said last night.

The original completion date of September 1 has been discarded, he said. At least six more weeks of work on a 24-hour basis will be needed to finish the job.

A third labor dispute, which threatens to affect Navy Yard construction as well as the Social Security Building, is the strike at six brick plants in the Washington area.

Truce Expires Tonight

A truce, under which brickyard workers removed their picket line last week from these two Government projects, expires tonight.

The plasterers-carpenters dispute is over the installation of 750,000 feet of acoustical tile. John Coyne, president of the local building trades department of the A. F. of L., handed down a decision last week giving this work to the carpenters. The plasterers struck in protest.

Labor Department Conciliator Howard Colvin said last night that his bureau would become "very active" today in an attempt to negotiate a settlement to this dispute. The strike began Thursday, but no attempt at negotiation had been made by last night.

With Shirley Povich

There may be some doubt what the Governor of North Carolina actually said to the Governor of South Carolina, and we don't know yet what the wild waves are saying, but rest assured that when ball players are in a huddle they are talking about—you guessed it—baseball.

POVICH

So this is just between you and us and the Pullman cars that bore 24 Nats out of the West yesterday. The quotes are theirs:

"I see where Jimmy Wasdell is hitting .372 for Brooklyn. That surprises me."

"You're not half surprised as Wasdell. When he left Washington he was just about to quit on himself. He couldn't hit a bean bag with a bullfiddle."

"That National League pitching straightened Wasdell out."

"Yeah, and vice versa."

"Them averages are the bunk. Look at the White Sox. Taft Wright and Julius Solters are the biggest heroes in that outfield, but the best ball player in that outfield is Mike Kreevich even if he is hitting 50 points under 'em."

"Taft Wright's all right. Ask the pitchers in this league, if you don't think he's a good hitter. Bob Feller tells you he's the toughest guy he has to pitch to."

"You can say that over again. Taft looks like a humpty-dumpty up at that plate, but he's always getting a piece of that ball. He'll murder anything inside and he's smart enough to punch that outside pitch into leftfield."

"Speaking of leftfield hitters, how about Travis?"

"You aren't talking about just a great hitter. You're talking about the best third baseman in the league. He's just outhitting the next third baseman by about 40 points and playing the best kind of third base there is."

"How about Rolfe, of the Yankees. That guy's got old overnight. It's hurting the Yanks too. He don't look like the same ball player."

"The Yanks don't have to worry about a third baseman. They've got that little Rizzuto out at Kansas City. He is playing shortstop, but he can play third base better than most fellows in this league."

"I'll back you up in that. I was in the Piedmont League when Rizzuto was with Norfolk. He was hitting about .180 and they had another third baseman named Claude Corbett who was hitting about .340. When they had to cut the squad, they kept Rizzuto and his .180 doerage and let Corbett go. That's what they thought of Rizzuto."

"The Yank's aren't hitting, but they'd have won the pennant if their pitching had held up. I never did see all the pitchers on one club go so sour as the Yanks did this season."

"It's all right with me if that Spud Chandler never wins another ball game. Some day somebody's gonna knock a ball down his throat and he'll stop dusting off batters."

"Yeah, they stopped Johnny Allen from throwing that dust-off ball every third pitch. He ain't so brave since the White Sox challenged him and chased him out of the park last year."

"You're pretty good with that dust-off pitch yourself, pal."

"Well, a pitcher's gotta protect himself out there. Any time they dig in against me, I'm brushing 'em back."

"The pitcher that's getting a tough break this year is Nelson Potter of the A's. He's pitching great ball and the A's are kicking 'em away for him. He'd win 20 easy with a good ball club."

"Buck Newsom hasn't done so well since they stopped his winning streak."

"The worst thing that happened to Newsom was that two-week rest he took with his broken thumb. He picked up 15 pounds and is fat as a hog. He won't win again 'til he pitches himself back into shape."

"Dutch Leonard is up front soaking his shoulder in hot towels. You ought to see the bruise he got when his own foul ball hit him."

"Yeah, Geisel called him out when Kennedy caught the ball. Said that the ball didn't hit Dutch. Dutch offered to take off his shirt and show him the bruise. He started to, and Geisel said if he opened his shirt he'd toss him out of the game."

"That reminds me of the time they wouldn't give Al Simmons his base after he was hit on the hand by Hildebrand. The umpire said the ball didn't hit Al and made him stay up there at bat. The next day Simmons went to the hospital with a broken hand."

"I made a bet that the Red Sox would win the pennant, and I ain't giving up on 'em yet."

"You'd a had a chance if Joe Cronin had made Jimmy Foxx get behind the bat a couple of months ago instead of fooling around with those other catchers. Hitting and everything considered, Foxx is the stand-out catcher in this league."

"Well, when he's catching, Foxx comes closer to earning the $30,000 he's getting than any player who ever made that much money. If I had the brains I was born with, I'd have picked out some other job in baseball."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 5.—Among the many other changes wrought by the war is the effect on the price of thoroughbreds. Forty-eight yearlings were sold on opening night at the annual Saratoga yearling sale and the average price was only $741 per head. It wouldn't have been that much without the aid of a couple of much fancier price tags, chiefly the $2,500 which Selby Burch paid for a bay colt by imported Belfonds, a French Derby winner.

CONSIDINE

The nasal auctioneer pleaded in vain to the well-dressed audience of owners, which rimmed the brightly lighted showring on the opening night of the annual sale. But the bidding was slow, and promises to be slow until all 700 yearlings are sold. We hope we are betraying no confidence when we reveal that these are tres lousay times to invest in a fancy steed.

Even $741 for some of those models will be found to be exorbitantly out of line with the plug's worth. There's the upkeep, of course, becoming noisome when the owner realizes that he has been feeding an ingrate. It costs about $7 a day to keep a race horse, exclusive of shipping charges and the cost of a trainer. There are, of course, many other expenses—entry fees, eligibility fees and vet bills, for a good percentage of the 700 yearlings to be sold this month at Saratoga will come down with everything from colic to chilblains when they are moved to their new homes.

The daffy days of the Saratoga yearling sale seem to be gone forever. They reached their peak in 1928, when people were lighting their Coronas with sawbucks. C. V. B. Cushman got in a lively bidding duel one night with other fresh-money tycoons and finally bought a nameless yearling for $75,000. The colt was by Whiskbroom II, out of Payment. Cushman named it New Broom, and it darn near swept him clean. About the same time W. T. Wagoner paid $65,000 for a long-legged oat inhaler which he named Broadway Limited, and should have named Broadway Local. W. R. Coe plunked down $70,000 for another no-good, and other prices of that rose-colored era were $50,500, $45,000, $41,000, etc., for colts who couldn't lick a gouty terrapin.

You don't hear much about those fabulous flops around the sales ring. You hear more about the nameless colt by Fair Play—Mahubah which old Sam Riddle bought for $5,000 and named Man O' War. Or the $3,100 which Mrs. Dodge Sloan paid for Cavalcade. Man O' War, of course, was an utterly incredible investment. He won $249,465 in purses in his 21 races. He set records for the mile, mile and an eighth, mile and three-eighths, mile and a half and mile and five-eighths, all as a 3-year-old. The last two records still stand. He has sired 300 sons and daughters during his 19 years in stud, a vast number of them at $5,000 stud fees.

His shadow always will lead on the bidders, if not as much as a decade and more ago, when money was hay. But Man O' War's case always will add hundreds of dollars to the price tags of every yearling who sets apprehensive hoof on that well-bred bargain counter. He was a homely, awkward yearling, too big for his skin, and unconsciously the long-memoried bidders today are inclined to forgive (and become alarmingly attached) to the knock-kneed yearlings paraded before them.

Man O' War is hard to eradicate from their minds. New Broom and Broadway Limited? They're easy to forget when the bidding gets into the dizzy stage, and the Johnny-come-latelies to the turf peel off layers of fresh cabbage, outbidding the brandy-soaked bloods with the fancy names as well as the shills planted in the audience to jab the bidding along.

The Saratoga yearling sale, as you might suspect, was an auctioneer's idea. The late Edward J. Tranter, a veteran of the Old Glory (trotter and pacers) Sale, thought it up in 1916 in an effort to revive interest in ownership of race horses. New York was not long back on the race standard, after Charles Evans Hughes had run the ponies out of the State.

Untold millions of dollars have changed hands in Saratoga's leafy little barter place and more than 15,000 yearlings have been walked before the critical eyes of the quiet bidders—while the adenoids of auctioneers grated out the blood lines of the piece of four-legged merchandise. It is one of the great scenes in American sport.

Locals Post Scores of 73; Rack Second

129 Start 72-Hole National Tourney At Beaver Dam Club Scores Run High

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The Washington delegation furnished the first day's leaders in the seventeenth annual Union Printcraft International Golf Association championship yesterday at Beaver Dam, in the tournament favorite, Host Club Champion Joe Balestri, and a local publinks player, Charley Ficco.

The District representatives posted one over par 73's, best of the day by four strokes. Second best score was a 77 by the 1938 and '39 champion, Eddie Rack, of McKeesport, Pa., who needs a third leg on the Walter Hagen trophy this year to retire the big mug.

Printers, bookbinders mailers and engravers from ten States and this city, 129 in all, started the 72-hole medal play competition. Maine, Missouri, Massachusetts, Illinois and Michigan were represented in one of the largest fields in the history of the organization, third largest golf body in the country.

Field to Be Divided

After today's second round the field will be divided into classes, with the low 13 scorers going into the championship class to battle for the Hagen trophy. Others will play for prizes in classes A through D. The annual women's championship will be played this afternoon, with Mrs. C. E. Purdy defending her title over the 18-hole route.

Only five players were able to better the 80-mark yesterday, and four of them were from this city. Fred Stringer, the 1935 national champion, played his home course in 78 and the 1936 champion and Stringer's partner as two-man team champs, Edgar Merkle, was next with a 79. Merkle, the Columbia Country Club champion, hit the ball like a champion but five three-putt greens soared his total. He missed several other short ones for birdies.

Edgar B. Heimer, president of the Washington chapter, took time out from his duties as host to post an 80, a score that could easily have been 75, while Russell Allen, of Kansas City, Mo., duplicated that total with a round of 43-37, 80, despite an eight on the third hole.

Three-time champion Ed Gabelman, of Cincinnati, who retred the original trophy in Baltimore in 1937 with his third crown, was still in the running with an 81, a score tied by J. H. Kent, Boston, who also found the second nine to his liking with 44-37, 81.

Thornton Cards 82

Judy Thornton, of Rochester, N. Y., was the only 82-shooter, with 44-38, while other scores below the 85 mark were L. Hall, Cleveland, 84, and Claude Schell, a tournament threat from Reading, Pa., with 84, and 1933 champ Clifford Inman, of Pontiac, Mich., with a pair of 42's for 84.

Claude Radabaugh, winner of the Hagen trophy in 1930 as a resident of Detroit, who is now employed in the G. P. O. here, was off his game and posted a 93, a score that will deprive him of a championship flight berth.

Balestri, a book-binder in the Government Printing Office, who has been billed as the tournament favorite for several weeks, was off to a bad start, three-putting a pair of greens on the out nine and posting a 41, four over par.

However, coming back he didn't waste any time starting on his subpar streak. A par four on the tenth was followed by a birdie three on the 11th and then he reached the green on the par five twelfth in two shots and dropped a 25-footer for an eagle three. He went over on the 15th but hit the pin with his second shot on the 18th and dropped a

Whitehead's Perfect Game Beats Tigers

Detroit Wins First Game, 9-2; Browns Take Second, 4-0, In Short Contest

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 5.—Back at their pastime of knocking off the league leaders, the St. Louis Browns used a no-hit no-run pitching performance by Johnny Whitehead to dump the Detroit Tigers today, 4 to 0, in a 5½-inning nightcap of a doubleheader.

Although they won the opener, 9 to 2, the loss in the second game, which was cut short by rain, forced the Tigers to yield first place to the Cleveland Indians. It was the third time this season that the Browns had knocked a team out of the lead.

They did it first in June when they beat Boston four games in a row and the Red Sox have not yet recovered from the shock. In July, the Browns took two games in succession from Cleveland and the Indians dropped out of the lead temporarily.

Same Story to Brownies

Doing the trick to the Tigers gave the Browns a record of a league leader deposed each of three straight months.

Only two men reached first base against Whitehead in Detroit's six turns at bat, Frank Metha getting a base on balls in the third inning and Hank Greenberg being safe on an error in the fourth. Neither advanced to second base.

The Tigers hit away hard at Whitehead's offerings and it took several sensational stops and catches to safeguard the pitcher's abbreviated no-hitter.

Bad Boy Weatherly To Receive Bonus If He Mends Ways

Cleveland, Aug. 5 (AP).—If Roy Weatherly quits sassin' the umpires he'll receive a $500 bonus at the end of the season, the Cleveland News reports today.

The Indians' centerfielder was promised the sum with the flat stipulation he doesn't get tossed out of any more games, the newspaper says. Sent to the showers twice this season, Weatherly has been threatened with indefinite suspension by the league if banished from another game.

Harder Hurls 10-1 Victory Over Chisox

Indians' Veteran Goes Distance for First Time This Season

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Mel Harder, veteran Cleveland right-hander, went the distance for the first time this season today, pitching a five-hit, 10 to 1 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the first of a four-game series.

The only Sox run came on Mike Kreevich's home run over centerfielder Roy Weatherly's head inside the park in the third inning.

Harder, who never reaches top form until mid-season, now has won seven and lost seven.

The pennant-hungry Indians rushed into a three-run lead in the second inning off Chunky Ed Smith,

Open championship at Toronto, August 15, 16 and 17.

The professionals and their families plan to leave here next Monday and drive to the scene of the tournament. The field will be one of the best of the year, with all the big name professionals slated to compete.

Houghton finished third in the Canadian Open in 1933, when Joe Kirkwood was the winner.

The Open is the last big tournament before the National P. G. A. Championship in Hershey, Pa., the last week in August. Lew Worsham and Gene Larkin will represent the District in the latter event.

McNair Gives Up; Goes Home for Rest

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—Eric McNair, veteran infielder of the Chicago White Sox, was placed on the voluntary retired list today at his own request.

McNair, who slumped sharply this season after leading the club in hitting in 1939, said he planned to go to his home in Meridian, Miss., and rest until next spring. He attributed his slump to worry and inability to relax.

The White Sox also announced the option of Infielder Elmer Winegartner to the Oklahoma City club in the Texas League. Winegartner was recalled recently from the Rayne, La., club of the Evangeline League.

31,790 Scream As Dodgers Whip Giants

Flatbush Fans Happy As Hated Rivals Bow to Wyatt, 6-0

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 5.—To the audible enjoyment of 31,790 happy Flatbushers, the Brooklyn Dodgers humbled their hated rivals, the New York Giants, 6 to 0, tonight behind the six-hit hurling of Whitlow Wyatt.

It was the first time the two teams ever had met at night.

With Dixie Walker contributing four hits and scoring three runs, the Dodgers landed on Harry Gumbert for a run in the first frame, piled four runs across at the expense of Gumbert and Paul (Daffy) Dean in the sixth, and finished up with one in the seventh.

Meantime, Wyatt, posting his fourth shutout and eleventh win of the campaign, mowed down Sweet William Terry's Terriers with little trouble. He had only a few moments of anxiety, such as the second inning when Hank Danning led off with a single, and the fourth frame when Burgess Whitehead singled and Danning doubled.

For the second straight game, Ducky Medwick, the Dodgers' $200,000 outfield beauty, was on the sidelines—benched for weak hitting—but his absence wasn't noticeable from the Dodger attack.

Singles by Walker and Dolph Camilli and Babe Phelps' fly produced the first inning run. In the sixth, the Giants fell apart as Walker doubled, Camilli and Pete Reiser walked, Phelps and Johnny Hudson singled, and Mickey Witek fumbled a double play ball and Mel Ott misplayed a hit in right field for four Dodger markers.

The final run came across on singles by Walker and Reiser and Jimmy Wasdell's double.

Louis, Pastor May Meet For Title Here

Challenger, However, Must Beat Conn Next Week Before Fighting Champ

By the United Press

New York, Aug. 5.—Promoter Mike Jacobs announced today that Champion Joe Louis and Bob Pastor probably will fight for the heavyweight title at Washington, D. C., in mid-September if Pastor whips Billy Conn at the Polo Grounds a week from tomorrow night.

This would be Washington's first heavyweight championship battle and the third meeting between Pastor and Louis. Bomber Joe won a 10-round decision over Pastor in their first fight, and knocked him out in the eleventh round of their second engagement.

"We have virtually agreed upon a Washington bout, in case Pastor wins at the Polo Grounds, although there are still some details to be ironed out," Jacobs explained. "Promoter Gabe Menendez, of Washington, has made me a very attractive proposition for Pastor and Louis to fight at Griffith Stadium, which can seat 40,000 persons for a fight.

Other Cities Also Interested

Jacobs said Detroit and Chicago promoters also had expressed interest in a Pastor-Louis bout. Meanwhile, if Conn beats Pastor, Promoter Jacobs has virtually assured Pittsburgh prominents that Louis will defend his title against Conn in that city in late September.

Betting odds shortened from 2-1 to 8-5 today favoring a Conn victory over Pastor. However, Pastor's manager, fast-talking Jimmy Johnston, declared that the betting price was "screwy." Johnston assured boxing writers at Stillman's Gymnasium that Pastor will knock out Conn within 12 rounds.

Calls Him Overrated

"Conn is the most overrated fighter in the business," Johnston said. "He had so much trouble with Apostoli, Bettina and Lesnevich that he had to fight each of them twice to convince the public that he could beat them. Pastor is so superior to Apostoli, Bettina and Lesnevich, that if he were matched with any one of the three, the fight wouldn't draw peanuts. Lesnevich almost knocked out Conn in the fifth round of their last fight at Detroit.

"This white hope bunk they're shooting about Conn is an old story to Pastor. He heard the same ballyhoo before he stopped the marches of Impellittiere, Nestell, Nova, Crowell, McCoy, Strickland and Toles. Pastor will take care of Conn in the same fashion and in less than 12 rounds."

Pastor boxed four rounds with two mates at Stillman's Gym today. Conn worked six rounds with two partners at Grossinger Lake, N. Y.

U. S. G. A. Wants National Amateur Entries This Week

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The United States Golf Association today urged all golfers who plan to compete in the National Amateur Tournament this year to send in their entries within a week.

The tournament will be held September 9-14 at the Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and entries close at 5 p. m. August 13, at the offices of the U. S. G. A., 73 East Fifty-seventh street, New York City.

Joe Dey, executive secretary of the U. S. G. A., said the entries were slow in arriving and that only 175 have been received.

Lee Savold Wins

St. Paul, Aug. 5 (AP).—Lee Savold, 191, Des Moines, Iowa, won on a technical knockout over Domino Valin, 199½, Oakland, Calif., in the second round of a scheduled ten-round bout at Lexington ball park tonight.

Toast of the Sandlots . . .

By Bill Burnett

"There's no doubt about it, football is the best sport of them all."

Thus speaks Mike Ucciferro, captain of the potent Arcade-Pontiac nine, leading hitter and steller fielding shortstop.

Despite his strange conviction, Mike takes his sandlot baseball seriously. He's one of the reasons the Motormen have won 10 of their 13 independent games this season; one reason why they've twice tripped their most heated rival, Ourisman.

Twenty-three years old—Mike schooled at Stanford (Conn.) High. He was on the 1933 club which won the State scholastic title and came here to meet Tech in an inter-city game. His teammates were Johnny Scalzi and Mickey Leone, who later turned up at Georgetown to spark the Hoyas in the collegiate baseball wars.

Mike's football in the District has been played with the Delta Phi Sigma eleven as has been his basketball. He is a halfback and forward, respectively.

A catcher during his high school days, Mike's shift to shortstop was for the purpose of saving wear and tear on his fingers. "A catcher takes an awful beating," he says, "in more ways than one. I wasn't a very good catcher, anyway."

Welsh Reaches Net Quarters, Blanking Third Straight Foe

Judd Yields To Barney's Hard Drives

Other Favorites Win; Johnsen Leads Breese In Tough Battle As Match Is Halted

By Jack Munhall

Relentless as an income tax collector, Defending Champion Barney Welsh yesterday blasted his way into the quarter-finals of the District Men's Open Tennis championships by whitewashing his third straight opponent at Edgemoor Club.

Latest victim of the wicked flat drives of the amiable Rockville Rambler suddenly turned "killer" was Dean Judd, veteran public parks player who had featured early round play with marathon victories over youngsters DeWitt Smith and Reggie Cooper.

While the lanky Walsh was roaring along in quest of his ninth straight District tittle and aiming to avenge the loss of his Middle Atlantic crown, Davie Johnsen, his chief rival, was battling more than two hours to no decision with Bill Breese.

Running up against the unpredictable Breese on one of the big fellow's best days, the new Middle Atlantic titleholder never worked harder to win the first set, 8—6, and gain a 6—6 deadlock in the second set before darkness interrupted an excellent match. They will resume at 6—6 today at 5 p. m., with Breese serving.

Favorites Still Intact

With the exception of Johnsen, the round of eight was completed and with the seeded list of eight still intact. For the third successive day, favorites had things pretty much their own way. Only one pressed was third-seeded Hugh Lynch who dropped a set to Charley Channing, the husky University of Virginia star, before winning, 6—1, 4—6, 6—2.

C. Alphonso Smith (4) once again employed his looping Western forehand to good advantage in trouncing Austin Rice, 6—1, 6—3. Dick Murphy (5), playing brilliantly at times, polished off Doyle Royal, 6—0, 7—5. Jimmy Farrin (6) found Harry Brinkerhoff good opposition but triumphed, 6—4, 6—4. Frank Shore (3) defeated Charley Sturtevant with unexpected ease, 6—2, 6—3, and Buddy Adair (7) also surprised with his 6—0, 6—4 rout of Bill Howard.

Only two doubles matches were played. C. A. Smith and Murphy joined Welsh and Dooly Mitchell in thequarter-finals with a hard-fought 6—2, 6—4 conquest of DeWitt Smith and Harry Bashore; Shore and Ricky Willis gained the third round by beating Art Simons and Nieymeyer, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4.

The 6-foot 4, 250-pound Breese and trim, comparatively small Johnsen staged one of the best offensive matches seen here this season. Playing through showers and into the twilight when it was difficult for either to follow the other's blistering services and whizzing drives, Johnsen and Breese were responsible for about 50 fans eating cold suppers.

Johnsen Shows Temperament

Breese, playing the best tennis he has shown here in many years, had Johnsen down, 3-0, in the first set, and 5-3 in the second. But each time Johnsen, between displays of temperament in which he threw his racquet and grimaced with the skill of a professional rassler, settled down and came through under pressure. With Breese leading, 5-3, in the second set, Johnsen cracked his service in a deuced game and then held his own after the score was deuced five times and each player had several ads.

Interruption of the match was believed to have benefited Breese, a Harvard graduate now a dollar-a-year worker for the Red Cross, who appeared much the more exhausted of the two when play was halted. Profiting from rest, Breese might yet pull an upset if he holds to his yesterday's form.

Today's schedule will consist wholly of quarter-finals singles, with Welsh meeting Murphy, Lynch playing Farrin, and Adair tackling C. A. Smith. Johnsen or Breese also may play his quarter-finals if their match is finished in time to start another. Their opponent will be Shore.

Yesterday's results:

SINGLES

George T. Dunlap Enters Tourney

New York, Aug. 5 (INS).—George T. Dunlap, who won the title in 1933, has entered this year's national amateur golf championship to be contested September 9-14 at the Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., the United States Golf Association announced today.

As a former titleholder, Dunlap will not have to take part in the national qualifying round to be played August 27.

There are 175 entrants for qualifying play listed now, a comparatively small figure. Entries will close August 15.

D. C. Hope Eliminated In First Round of Junior Nationals

By the Associated Press

Culver, Ind., Aug. 5.—Seeded players rolled over unknowns today in the National Junior and Boys' Tennis Tournament with about the same ease top-ranking entrants move through early rounds in adults' events.

The tourney opened today at Culver Military Academy.

All seeded junior players advanced to the third round and third-seeded Chadwick Johnson, of Germantown, Pa., was the only casualty among ranked performers in the boys' division. Johnson lost to Teddy Prior, of West Palm Beach, Fla., in one of the early matches, 6—3, 6—2.

Douglas Woodbury, No. 1 junior from Los Angeles, drew a bye in the first round and then trounced Fred Doutel, of Mishawaka, Ind., in the second, 6—1, 6—0.

In other second-round junior matches, Earl Cochell, jr., of Los Angeles, seeded No. 8, defeated Jack Clatfelter, of Peoria, Ill., 6—1, 6—0; Robert Smidl, of River Forest, Ill., No. 10, defeated Bob Fry, of Dayton, Ohio, 6—0, 6—1 and Bud Hart, of Miami, Fla., No. 11, won over Bus Plump, of Cincinnati, 7—5, 6—1.

Other ranking juniors, with byes in the first round, took second round matches by default and will play tomorrow for the first time.

Hudson Takes Mound Against A's Today

Nats Back After Successful Road Trip For First of Three-Game Series; Chase And Travis Lead Team in Late Splurge

Home, no more to roam—until next week—the surprising Nats encounter the Athletics today in the first of a three-game series. In the parlance of racing, they will be dropping back into cheaper company after a successful tour of the fashionable West. In the A's they'll be meeting the eighth-place club.

Sid Hudson has been delegated to beat the Athletics today. His pitching opponent will be the equally right-handed Lee Ross.

The Nats' record in the West was not exactly sensational—seven victories against six defeats—but it was the best showing made by an Eastern club on the Western swing. And it was the most successful road trip by a Washington club in two years. It revived fading hopes of a first division finish.

The most astigmatic fan in the city could easily lay his finger on the reasons for the Nats' late splurge. They are (1) Ken Chase and (2) Cecil Travis. The big left-hander who forsook a milk route in upper New York State to try his hand at pitching, and the lanky Georgia farm boy who plays third base virtually carried the club.

Chase Won Four

Chase, blossoming suddenly as a sound sort of pitcher after being annoyed by lack of control, accounted for four of the seven triumphs in the West. He beat every club he faced—the Tigers, the Indians, the White Sox and the Browns in succession, each time with a brilliant performance.

Left-handers aren't supposed to beat the Tigers, but Chase held 'em to seven hits—six of 'em singles—and one run. He has had command of both his fast ball and his curve, and all of a sudden he has learned to field his position, a weakness that in the past has beaten him on many an occasion.

Travis has slipped gracefully into the clean-up spot in the batting order, confounding the theorists who long have held that he could not drive in runs despite his lofty averages. He was the leading run-producer on the trip and was more dangerous with men on base than otherwise.

Clark Griffith is jubilant at Travis' transformation as a hitter, particularly at the blows Travis has been getting to rightfield where his power is.

Travis Offered Raise

"I told that boy three years ago that I'd give him a raise in salary if he'd hit to rightfield instead of punching the ball to left," said Griffith yesterday. "But he didn't seem interested. Now he's beginning to understand that he can hit as well to right and that his long hits are doing the club more good."

In every city in the West, players and fans were aghast at Travis' clever fielding around third base. He was giving the Nats the best protection at the bag since Ossie Bluege gave up the job five years ago, and his throwing arm has been so spectacular that brilliant throws were commonplace with him.

The Nats' first base situation is static, with Jimmy Bloodworth, the reformed second baseman now a fixture at first. Bloodworth has been covering the bag adequately and Griffith has not demanded the return of Mickey Vernon, who is on loan to Jersey City. Neither will he disturb the pennant chances of the Charlotte club by bringing up big Jack Sanford.

Bucs' Hurling On Road Best In Many Years

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 5.—Payoff pitching brought the Pittsburgh Pirates home today from their most successful road trip in several years with a record of ten games won and four lost.

Currently, the Pirates' form is about the best in the majors and is attributed mainly to the steady hurling, an sharp contrast to the sorrowful spectacle presented earlier in the season when the Bucs were staggering under pitching that was plain punk.

Rip Sewell, the Plant City, Fla., right-hander, seems to be shaping up as the ace of the fast-developing Pirate hurling staff. He pitched three more victories on the Eastern trip, including his four hitter against the Phils yesterday, to bring his triumphs for the season to nine against two losses.

"Fireman" Mace Brown, who several times has been graduated from the bullpen to a starting assignment, likely will matriculate again into a starter as the Pirates open a drive tomorrow to push into the first division. He pitched a three-hitter Saturday.

Other hurlers contributing to the improved game of the Pirates are Johnny Lanning and Danny MacFayden, both of whom have shown flashes of brilliance, and Ken Heintzelman and Dick Lanahan, a pair of steadily improving left-handers.

The Pirates have chalked up 13 victories in their last 17 encounters and 21 in their last 30. They take on the Cubs and Cards this week, beginning tomorrow, in two series that could carry them into the first division.

Bosox Defeat Yanks Behind Ostermueller

Fritz Goes Route In 4-1 Victory; Foxx Homers Again

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 5.—Lefty Fritz Ostermueller, who couldn't get going in the first half of the season, pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 4 to 1 victory over the New York Yankees today.

It was his second triumph in four starts within the last two weeks and his third complete game in the same period although he hadn't gone the route before this sudden renaissance.

Ostermueller kept seven hits well scattered, no more than one to an inning, had a shutout until the eighth, when he walked two men and Joe DiMaggio singled one of them home.

Ernie Bonham, a right-hander recalled last week from Kansas City, went the whole distance for the Yankees and did a plucky job of spacing ten hits. But one of them was Jimmie Foxx's twenty-fifth home run behind a walk to Manager Joe Cronin in the fifth.

Successive doubles by Ted Williams and Lou Finney brought Boston's first run in the second and in the fourth the Red Sox scored another when, with two out, Tom Henrich intentionally dropped Don DiMaggio's pop fly to try for a double play.

Before Henrich's "bonehead," Finney fouled out, Jim Tabor walked, Bob Doerr popped up and Ostermueller singled to left, Tabor stopping at second.

Dominic DiMaggio flied to Henrich, who snared the ball, but let it fall to the ground with the seeming purpose of trying to get two outs. Then he appeared to realize that two outs already had been made, but hoped his momentary catch would be allowed and, instead of throwing, he rolled the ball toward the infield.

The umpires ruled there was no catch, however, and Tabor's run counted.

American Grid League Formed Of Six Teams

William D. Griffith Chosen President; Office at Columbus

By the Associated Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The American Professional Football League became a reality today after a two-day organization meeting at which William D. Griffith, of Columbus, Ohio, former publicity director for Ohio State University, was named league president.

Griffith said the league will be composed of six teams.

He listed the teams and home stadiums as follows:

Buffalo, N. Y., Indians, Civic Stadium; Boston, Mass., Bears, Fenway Park; New York City Yankees, Yankee Stadium; Cincinnati, Ohio, Bengals, Crosley Field; Columbus, Ohio, Bullies, Red Bird Stadium, and Milwaukee, Wis., Chiefs, Dairy Bowl.

Other officers elected were Phil Bucklew of Columbus, vice president, and Frank Dalton, of New York, secretary-treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are F. E. Selck, Buffalo; Jack McBride, New York; Shelden H. Fairbanks, Boston; George M. Harris, Milwaukee; Dana King, Cincinnati, and Fred Schmidt, Columbus.

Griffith said league headquarters will be established at Columbus.

The league schedule, based on a home-and-home basis, will run from September 15 to December 1, Griffith said he will release the schedule probably next week.

Condolence Notes Pour In on Mother Of Hershberger

Visalia, Calif., Aug. 5 (AP).—From throughout the Nation telegrams and letters of condolence came today to Mrs. Maude Hershberger, mother of the Cincinnati baseball catcher, Willard Hershberger, who killed himself Saturday in a fit of despondency.

On the day of Willard's death the mother received a letter from him in which he discussed her proposed trip East to witness the World Series.

Elizabeth Hicks' 78 Leads Derby

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—Little Elizabeth Hicks, 110-pound golfer, of Long Beach, Calif., fired a two-over par 78 today in the first round of the Women's Western Derby, taking a two-stroke lead on the field of 99 starters.

Miss Hicks, who set a tournament record of 307 in this 72-hole medal play event a year ago, was scrambling all the way today, her shots catching nine traps. She used 38 strokes on the front nine and 40 coming home.

Runner-up at the quarter mark of the tourney was Mary Agnes Wall, Menominee, Mich., who posted an 80, climaxing her round with an eagle on the last hole. Her nines were 40-40.

The second round will be played tomorrow, the third 18-hole test Wednesday and the finals Thursday.

Zivic Outroughs Kenny La Salle

Pittsburgh, Aug. 5 (AP).—In a slam bang fight that at times resembled a rought longshoreman's contest, Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh's outstanding welterweight, won a decision tonight in ten rounds over Kenny La Salle, of Houston, Tex. Zivic weighed 147½ and La Salle 151.

La Salle, who had broken even with Zivic in two former fights, fought a shrewd battle against the two-handed attack unleashed by the Pittsburgher.

The Southerner's crafty left hook to the body and the jaw scored him many points but not enough to offset Zivic's aggressiveness and heavier punches.

McNeill, Riggs Pace Rye Net Tournament

Bobby Beats Mahoney, While Don Eliminates Leon Everett; Alice Marble Wins 2 Matches; Gil Hunt Advances at Expense of Anderson

By the Associated Press

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, national tennis champions on turf and clay, respectively, made impressive starts in the Eastern grass courts tournament today while Alice Marble, of Beverly Hills, Calif., the national women's champion, raced through her second easy match.

In fact only one or two of the prominent players had to go an extra set or encountered any serious trouble as the first rounds in both men's and women's singles were completed and a few matches were run off in the later rounds.

Riggs, who suffered his first major setback last week when he lost to Frank Kovacs in the semifinals at Southampton, carefully avoided the kind of difficulties he often encountered in the early rounds of tournaments. He toyed with John Mahoney, former University of Virginia athlete, as he won, 6—4, 6—4. McNeill won from Leon Everett, of Walnut Park, Calif., 6—2, 6—2, and Miss Marble, defending her women's Eastern title, scored at 6—2, 6—0 over Argyll Rice, of West Hartford, Conn., in the second round.

Van Horn Pressed

Welby Van Horn, runner-up to Riggs in the nationals last year and the Nation's fourth ranking player, and his fellow Californian Gracyn Wheeler, had the day's two narrow escapes. Van Horn was extended to the utmost in beating Frank Froehling, of Chicago, 2—6, 8—6, 8—6. Miss Wheeler gained a 4—6, 6—3, 6—2 decision over Doris Hart, of Miami.

The other seeded stars won handily. Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., whipped Bill Reedy, of San Francisco, 8—6, 6—4; Hank Prusoff, of Seattle, downed the veteran Dr. Gene MacCauliff, of New York, 6—2, 6—4, and Gil Hunt, of Washington trimmed J. Norman Anderson, of Hoboken, N. J., 6—2, 6—1.

Helen Jacobs Wins

Helen Jacobs, who usually runs a close second to Miss Marble in women's tournaments, won a 6—0, 6—1 second-round victory over Sally Childress, of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Sarah Palfrey, of Reno Nev., Miss Marble's doubles partner, whipped Josephine San Filippo, of Brooklyn, 6—1, 6—4.

A couple of mild surprises were occasioned by the elimination of Jack Kramer, of Belvedere Gardens, Calif., and Eddie Alloo, of Berkley, Calif., a pair of promising young players. Kramer lost by 2—6, 8—6, 6—4, to S. Ellsworth Davenport, of Forest Hills, and Alloo dropped a 0—6, 7—5, 7—5 match to George Lyttleton-Rogers, former Irish Davis Cup player.

2 Former Boxers Signed for Team Mat Match Here

A couple of reformed boxers were signed yesterday by Promoter Joe Turner to make up the team to battle the villains, Lou Plummer and Eddie Newman, Thursday night at Turner's Arena in the first two-man team match ever staged here.

The former pugilists are Tommy O'Toole, erstwhile sparmate of John Henry Lewis, one time world's light-heavyweight champion, and Tommy Mahoney, who formerly boxed as a light-heavyweight in Jacksonville, Fla.

This bout will find all four men in the ring at the same time, and the best two out of three falls will decide the winning team.

It will bring together two Irish grapplers in O'Toole and Mahoney against two Jewish wrestlers in Newman and Plummer, both of whom have had professional football experience.

O'Toole, winner of a recent battle royal, and Mahoney, participant in last week's battle royal, are listed as clean, scientific grapplers. And, while they know plenty about using their fists, they may not resort to fisticuffing unless Newman and Plummer force them to do so.

The headliners for Thursday are Warren Bockwinkle, winner of last week's battle royal, and The Golden Terror, who was also a "royalist" last week, but was knocked out by Bockwinkle in the first round.

Cumberland Race Course Inaugurates 17th Meeting Today

Racing Plant Groomed for Gala Opening

Racing Strip in Top Shape; Feature Listed Is Col. W. H. Robertson Purse

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 5.—Maryland's second largest city, where it takes an Alpine goat to make a house-to-house canvass, but where the population is too busy to mind a few hills, isn't exactly Louisville on Kentucky Derby eve. However, Cumberland is nestling up to the fact that tomorrow will bring the start of its seventeenth racing meeting. There's bunting flying over Baltimore street, the main drag, and virtually every conversation tonight starts with "Who do you like?"

Time was when Mr. and Mrs. Cumberland came out to "Fairgo," the local fair grounds, to toss a dart and win a doll, but come tomorrow they can toss in a $2 bill and have a chance to collect a $3,000 daily double—a slim chance 'tis true.

Cumberland is unique in that it still offers its annual fair along with the races. However, the Midway and such does not swing into action until the second week of the meeting. But the various church societies, etc., have their food stands in order, ready to cater to the wants of the race goers, wants that invariably swing to fried chicken a la Maryland.

Plant Groomed for Action

The racing plant is groomed for the action that General Manager Harry A. Manley and his associates expect to come in a flood tomorrow. The silver and red colors of the Cumberland Fair Association have been poured freely out of paint cans. Bunting drapes the sides of the secretary's office and the clubhouse. Old Glory lies neatly folded beside a dozen flag poles, ready to be hoisted tomorrow morning.

The racing strip was faster today than a new four-lane highway. Barring rain, the horses are expected to give the track records a beating, as was the case at Bel Air. As at the Harford County track, there's a better grade of horses here than ever before.

Racing Secretary Eddie Brennan had no trouble lining up tomorrow's program with limit fields. Horses are still plentiful around the half-milers. For instance, after 14 were named for tomorrow's second race, it was revealed that 95 horses were excluded, meaning that 109 horses had tried to get into one race.

Sprint Race Is Feature

Tomorrow's feature event is the Col. W. H. Robertson Purse, a test of 6½ furlongs for a $500 purse. The eight eligibles should provide good contest. Ken's Pop, Sure Touch, Buddy Al and Statement, good sprint horses, are assured places at the starting gate if their owners and trainers so desire. On the reserve list for the sprint are Irish Moon, Butterman, Little Harpist, Vanelder, Gay Frank and others of the first flight around the smaller tracks.

Steeplechasing again is one of the features of every Cumberland program. Tomorrow's jumping event, located third on the card, brings out a worthy group of jumpers, including Rouge Catalan, Judges Bid, Tam o'Shanter, all winners at the Bel Air meeting. The jumping course here is 2 miles.

The daily double here is operated on the first and second races. The first event is for 2-year-olds over the 5-furlong route while the second is a sprint of 6½ furlongs for older horses.

There is nothing small time about the equipment here. The Puett starting gate, the Jones electric finish camera and the American totalizator will be used. Post time for the first race is 2 p. m. For the first time, special trains will be run from Washington to the track.

D. C. Business Picture Bright During Month

Auto Registrations, Store Sales, Pay Rolls All Gain in June

A picture of improved business conditions in Washington was presented yesterday in the June review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Usual seasonal declines from May to June were reported in evidence but "in most instances the decreases have been less than was to be expected." With the exception of construction contracts awarded, all Washington business barometers showed increases over the same month last year.

Registrations of new passenger cars displayed the best gain. The The total for June was 2,996 here, an increase of 19 per cent over the 1939 month. For the six months ended June 30, 1940, new car registrations in Washington totaled 15,104, a gain of 7 per cent over the 14,075 on the same date last year.

Bank Debits Climb

Debits to individual accounts here totaled $297,719 in June, against $292,486 in the previous month, and $294,531 in the same month last year.

Employment showed a gain of 0.5 per cent in June over the previous month, while pay rolls increased 1.5 per cent in the same period.

Most sensitive barometer of better business conditions, retail and wholesale trade, showed gains as follows: Net sales in June of six reporting department stores advanced 5.2 per cent over June, 1939; stocks of goods on hand on June 30 were 9 per cent less than on the last day of the previous month.

Retail furniture sales here, seven stores reporting, showed a gain of 7 per cent in June over the corresponding month last year. For the six months ended June 30, furniture sales were 7 per cent better than in the like 1939 period.

Construction contracts awarded here in June totaled $3,304,000, against $18,858,000 in June, 1939.

New Director Named

Stockholders of the Potomac Insurance Company, whose main office is in Washington, elected Douglas R. Phillips to the board of directors at the annual meeting yesterday. Mr. Phillips is a vice president of Alexander K. Phillips & Co., general insurance agency.

Other directors of the 109-year-old fire insurance institution were reelected. Officers will be elected at the next regular meeting of the board.

The company yesterday reported assets in excess of $5,000,000 and surplus to policyholders of more than $2,800,000. John H. Grady is president and Thomas C. Moore is vice president and manager.

Fender in Chicago

G. Walter Fender, of Washington Properties, Inc., has been assigned to the company's new Chicago headquarters. His employer operates the Wardman Park and Carlton Hotels here. Mr. Fender formerly was assistant manager of the Wardman Park.

Sixty-sixth Anniversary

The American Building Association of Washington, which will celebrate its sixty-sixth anniversary today, now has assets in excess of $13,000,000. It is the second largest building association in the city and has more than 11,000 share accounts.

Home offices are at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast. Officers are Milton H. Prosperi, chairman of the board; Charles H. Kindle, president; Arthur C. Balser, vice president; Wilfred H. Blanz, secretary; Howard B. Kramer, treasurer; R. Lee Baxter assistant treasurer George A. Brennan, assistant secretary and Guy M. Neely, consultant appraiser. Directors include John E. Mergner, Chatham M. Towers, Thomas S. Sergeon, Charles A. Rossiter, Dr. William C. Farmer, Bernard J. Coyle and W. Oudley Spicknall.

Two Banks Pay Off

The Treasury Department announced yesterday that final dividends were authorized for two closed banks in the Washington area. A $30,100 payment was made to depositors of the First National Bank of Honaker, Va., and a $40,000 disbursement to depositors of the Citizens National Bank of Phillippi, W. Va., was authorized.

I. B. A. Nominations

Nominated for election as vice presidents of Investment Bankers Association are John S. Fleek, of Hayden, Miller & Co., Cleveland and John O. Stubbs, of Whiting, Weeks & Stubbs, Inc., Boston. Present vice presidents who have been nominated for reelection are Paul H. Davis, Chicago; Edward H. Hilliard, Louisville, Ky., and Joseph P. Ripley, New York.

Air Traffic Heavier

Revenue passenger miles flown by Eastern Air Lines in July totaled 11,619,521, a gain of 54 per cent as compared with July last year, according to Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, president and general manager. Representing an increase of 52 per cent, a total of 28,615 revenue passengers were carried last month.

Auto Makers Strain To Speed Assembly

Detroit, Aug. 5 (AP).—Despite the effort of the various car manufacturers to speed up the return to production, the assembly volume for August is "very uncertain," says Ward's Automobile reports, in its current issue.

"All manufacturers," says the trade publication, "are straining in an effort to resume production and build up field supplies against the possibility that the defense program may absorb more facilities than are now indicated. However, whether the starting dates can be advanced from a day to a week or more, as is hoped for in some case, is problematical. As a result, it is difficult to forecast output . . ."

Ward's notes that heavy duty trucks are moving better now than for some time past. "Amplification of construction, both public and private" it says, "is undoubtedly a factor in this development."

Failures Gain Slightly

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Business failures in the United States increased to 271 during the week ended August 1 from 233 in the preceding period, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. A year ago the total was 277.

World Sugar Futures Set New Bottom

Grains Also Weaken; Cotton Is Irregular Pending Crop News

By the Associated Press

Fresh liquidation dragged "world sugar" futures yesterday to the lowest prices since that type of contract was first introduced in 1937.

Buyers for future delivery at New York were skittish in face of big supplies of raw sugar and recent signs of weakness in refined. The domestic contract tended upward.

At Chicago wheat slipped ¼ to ⅜ of a cent a bushel in the sleepiest session in months. Corn lost ¼ to ⅜.

Cotton at New York closed 10 cents a bale lower to 5 higher. Traders were wary of getting in the market too deep in view of the Government crop report and loan announcement due Thursday.

Gains and losses in other major staples were practically a standoff. Higher were straits tin, wool tops, rubber and hides. Losers included copper, silk, cocoa, cottonseed oil and Santos coffee.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities, based on 1926 as 100, advanced to 89.59 from 89.41 Saturday.

Vast Food Surplus Available in U. S. For Europe Needs

By the Associated Press

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday the United States could, if necessary, export vast supplies of food to offset loss of production from Europe's war-fallowed fields.

In addition to taking care of domestic needs and exports to other parts of the world, the bureau said, the United States could send Europe 150,000,000 bushels of wheat, 400,000,000 bushels of corn, 100,000,000 bushels of barley, 350,000,000 pounds of pork, 500,000,000 pounds of lard, 250,000,000 of other edible fats, 500,000 pounds of dry beans and large quantities of fresh, dried and canned fruits and vegetables.

Reserve Reports $21,000,000 Drop In Bank Loans

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday a $21,000,000 decline in commercial, industrial and agriculture loans of banks in 101 leading cities in the week ended July 31.

This was the second drop in as many weeks, after a long period of consecutive increases.

Last week, principal declines were $15,000,000 in New York City, $5,000,000 in the Chicago district, and $4,000,000 in the Boston district. In the Philadelphia district, however, a $5,000,000 gain occurred.

Goodyear Sales Up $5,000,000 In Six Months

Net of $4,124,892 Equals $1.22 a Share; 25c Dividend Voted

By the Associated Press

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 5.—A $5,000,000 increase in net sales and a gain of more than a half million dollars in net profit over the corresponding period in 1939 were announced by Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., today for the first six months of 1940.

The company declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock and $1.25 on preferred stock, payable September 16 to stockholders of record August 15.

The six-month reports showed net sales of $101,055,607. Net profits, after all deductions, including foreign exchange fluctuations had been made, were $4,124,892, equivalent to $1.22 per share on common stock.

President P. W. Litchfield pointed out the company has no investment in Russia, Germany, France, or Italy. However, of the company's total assets of $191,000,000, a total of $40,776,000 is invested outside the United States and its possessions.

Largest of these foreign possessions is in the Netherlands Indies, where a manufacturing plant and a large rubber plantation are valued at $13,000,000. Litchfield said the company had other substantial investments in manufacturing plants in Canada, Latin America, Sweden, Great Britain and Australia.

Celanese Reports Leap in Earnings, Capacity Output

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Celanese Corporation of America reported net profit for the first half of 1940 totaled $4,522,580, equal after charges and taxes to $2.86 a common share, compared with $3,027,774, or $1.73 on common, in the comparable 1939 period.

Dr. Camille Dreyfus, president, told stockholders in the report, "the demand for your company's products continues in excess of its capacity to produce." Plants are at Cumberland, Md., and Pearisburg, Va.

Steel Rate Boost To 90.5% Seen

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Steel mills will boost operating schedules to 90.5 per cent of capacity this week, the highest since last December and up .1 of a point from last week, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations were set at 86.4 per cent and a year ago at 60.1 per cent.

Unitiated Overstress Value Of Registration With SEC

By Merryle S. Rukeyser
Economic Commentator

The lesson of a decade of depression is that so-called securities might more properly be described as "risks." Venture money plays a legitimate part in our national economy, but it is important that the practitioners be fully conscious of the hazards assumed.

As this writer pointed out at the time the Federal security reforms were under discussion by Congress, one danger is that Government supervision tends to lull the unthinking to sleep and to create the impression that, if you buy securities under Federal rules, you are not pursuing a risky course.

This psychological risk had previously been apparent in States which licensed security venders. The uninitiated were inclined to ascribe more significance to the license than a careful reading of the law warranted.

This whole subject recently came to a head in connection with the refusal of the Securities and Exchange Commission to revoke or suspend the registration of a dealer who had been tried on serious charges in a Federal court.

This securities vender had pleaded not guilty to the charges, but was found guilty by a petit jury. Sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for one year.

In explaining its reason for not revoking his registration as a broker and a dealer the SEC, in a release, pointed out:

"We believe, however, that in considering the question of public interest involved, weight should be attached to the findings and remarks of the presiding judge." The commission further stated: "It appears from the briefs that (the) judge . . . entertained serious doubt as to the guilt of the respondent. At the time the sentence was suspended (the) judge . . . stated that if he had been a member of the jury he might have voted 'guilty' as to a codefendant who was acquitted and upon whose guilt that of (the respondent) . . . apparently hinged, but that he would have voted 'not guilty' as to (the respondent) . . . It further appears that (the) judge . . . seriously considered setting aside the verdict, but that he refrained from doing so because that action would subject (the respondent) . . . to the added expense and inconvenience of a new trial.

"In view of the comments of (the) judge . . . and the legal safeguard against the misconduct of the respondent afforded by the suspended sentence, we do not believe that it would be in the public interest to revoke or suspend the broker-dealer registration of the respondent."

This tenderness toward a man whom a petit jury believed to be a crook stands in marked contrast to the severity with which the SEC enforces the law against reputable financiers with a high degree of trusteeship. In this case the commission evidently was more concerned with leaning over backwards to be perfectly fair toward a questionable vender than with protecting large numbers of investors who might be subject to exploitation by him in the future. In the circumstances, this operator is free to go out with the purity symbol of the Federal Government hanging around his neck.

This discussion is not concerned with the innocence or guilt of this individual, but with the broad underlying principle. The late Louis Proudfoot, card indexer of the manners and morals of pomoters, financiers and brokers, who operated with a high degree of accuracy, once told me that when he based his appraisal of a man on his record he was always right. His occasional blunders came when a former crook played on his sympathies and undertook to convince him that he had reformed.

The Market

Stocks and Bonds Continue Narrow Moves; Stores and Motors Firm; Aviations Soften

New York, Aug. 5.—Dullness and narrow price changes characterized trading in Wall Street today. In the case of bond trading on the big board the turnover of $2,985,000 was the smallest in about a year while the stock volume of 273,950 shares competed with some of the recent small days.

The composite average, showed no change and of the active stocks the only one to close as much as a point away from last week's final price was Worthington Pump & Machinery, which gained a point. Fractional fluctuations were the order of the day, and in most cases they were very small fractions. Aviations were soft. The best support was noted in the steel and manufacturing sections, with firmness in the stores and motors.

Tractions Buoyant

Tractions were in demand and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit was the day's most active stock, followed by Brooklyn & Queens Transit. Each gained a fraction, following good progress made last week, and each sold at a new high for the year.

Texas continued under pressure in the oil division and the entire petroleum section did little more than hold its own. The industry's troubles are those concerned with plenty rather than famine. Being one of the essential munitions of war, there is no lack of demand, but there is also overproduction in this country.

Week-end news was not considered decisive enough by the Street to exert any noticable effect upon security values. The results of one of the major Presidential polls was not discouraging, but on the other hand was not regarded as sufficiently convincing to sway the market. The immediate attention of the Street is rivited on the delay in Washington in determining the excess profits tax and the method to be used in amortizing extra expenses brought about by the defense program.

Future Is Clouded

Aside from the delay which this bookeeping controversy is inflicting upon the cause of defense, it is also making it very difficult for directors of corporations to plan ahead for the balance of the year. One case came to light today where a corporation, which is earning more money than it did a year ago, decided to defer dividend action until it can determine what it will eventually owe the Government. This was the Electrolux Corporation, a manufacturer of vacuum cleaners. This was the time for dividend action, but uncertainty over the form which the proposed Federal excess profits tax legislation will take, caused the directors to defer action.

Of course, in this case only a few thousand stockholders are inconvenienced, and that has never been regarded in official Washington as a catastrophe. When delay and indecision interfere with preparing the Nation's defense, however, it concerns a few million citizens. The delay and the indecision on the part of the Administration in making up its mind as to how profits are to be taxed and how costs incurred for defense expansion are to be amortized remain as the outstanding bottleneck in our production program.

Trade news today was featured by a small increase in the operating rate for the steel industry for this week. The rate is now 90.5 per cent of theoretical capacity, a new high since last December 11. Preliminary guesses before the week-end had been that a small recession would be recorded. Steel shares edged higher today, featured by the crucible issues, following announcement of the company's plan to revise its capital set-up. The preferred jumped 7¾ points and the common was up a small fraction.

Bonds Dull, Weak

A moderate degree of weakness cropped up in the bond list. But, while the dullness was nothing exceptional in recent days, the weakness was more out of the ordinary run of recent experience, which has seen the better grade and second grade issues rather consistently firm.

United States Government bonds were not immune to the price weakness and the intermediate and long term Treasurys were shaded 1-32 to 2-32.

Foreign bonds were mixed. German government 7s and 5½s—the Dawes and Young issues—were marked down ⅝ and ¾ point, respectively. Finland 6s of 1945 were driven downward 8 points to 42, or within 2 points of the low for the year. Norwegian issues gave ground from fractions up to 2 points.

The average of 30 bonds declined 0.10 point, with the better grade rails and utilities among the weakestissues. Some of the second grade rails which had scored pretty good gains in last weeks dealings, gave way slightly.

19 Steel Companies Show 300% Rise In First Half Nets

Cleveland, Aug. 5 (AP).—A 300 per cent rise in earnings for the first six months of 1940 was shown today in figures from 19 steel companies, representing 87 per cent of the industry's ingot capacity.

A compilation by Steel disclosed the companies netted $46,793,114 in the second quarter, against $11,450,492 in 1939's period. The figures for six months were $91,225,128 in 1940 and $22,340,862 in 1939.

This indicates the industry will earn more than 5 per cent on total capitalization this year, the magazine said, on the assumption that current operations will hold throughout the year as the defense program gets under way. This record has been exceeded only once since 1929—in 1937.

Gen. Motors Board Votes $1 Dividend

Same as Previous Payment; Personnel Changes Listed

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 5.—Directors of General Motors Corporation voted today a dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, payable September 12 to holders of record August 15.

The prevous common stock payment was $1 in June. In March 75 cents was paid. In 1939 three payments of 75 cents each were made, with a $1.25 year-end payment.

The payment will total over $43,000,000.

Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the board, announced the election of O. E. Hunt, vice president, to be a member of the corporation's policy committee.

Harlow H. Curtice, also a vice president and general manager of the Buick motor division, was elected a director of the company to succeed Seward Prosser, recently resigned.

C. L. McCuen, general manager of the Olds motor works division, was elected a vice president and transferred to the central office in charge of engineering activities.

Succeeding McCuen as Olds general manager will be S. E. Skinner, general manager of the Ternstedt manufacturing division who, in turn, will be succeeded by J. W. Jackson, works manager of Ternstedt.

F. C. Kroeger, general manager of the Delco-Remy division, was made general manager of the Allison division, being succeeded by O. V. Badgley, factory manager of Delco-Remy.

SEC Denies Plea Of Detroit Edison On 'Independence'

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission ruled yesterday that the $350,000,000 Detroit Edison Co., which supplies electricity to the Detroit area, was a subsidiary of the North American Co. system.

Detroit Edison had requested that it be declared an independent concern and not a subsidiary of the North American Co. or of American Light & Traction Co., the United Light & Power Co., the United Light & Railways Co., or Gardner & Brown.

The commission denied the application with respect to North American, dismissed it with respect to Gardner & Brown, which disposed of its holding since the action was begun, and granted the application with respect to the other concerns.

North American owns 19.28 per cent of the outstanding voting securities of Detroit Edison. American Light & Traction owns 20.27 per cent and is a subsidiary of United Light & Railways which is a subsidiary of United Light & Power.

South's Tobacco Markets Open This Week With Record Supply, Poor Export Outlook

By the Associated Press

First American tobacco markets of the season open this week with prospects clouded by a poor export outlook and a near-record supply.

Auctioneers will start their sales chants Thursday at markets in Georgia and Florida, the Southern border of the flue-cured belt.

Concerned over a sharp drop in exports last season as a result of the European war, Agriculture Department officials awaited the openings to see what kind of prices buyers would offer for the new crop. The price offers, they said, may have an important bearing upon proposed Government loans to producers, on surpluses.

The Agriculture Department said the new marketing season for flue-cured tobacco would open with a supply of more than 2,000,000 pounds on hand, or about the same as the record of the past season. Crop conditions on July 1 indicated a flue-cured crop of 677,000,000 pounds. This is about 480,000,000 pounds less than the record 1939 crop, but the decrease in current production was almost offset by an estimated increase of about 465,000,000 pounds in the surplus from past crops.

American stocks of flue-cured tobacco on July 1 were officially estimated at 1,410,000,000 pounds. Of this amount, 161,881,000 pounds were being held by the Commodity Credit Corporation for the option of British manufacturers. Whether the options will be taken up is not known.

The principal cause of the increase in domestic stocks, officials said, was a sharp decrease in British purchases. Exports to the United Kingdom during the past season totaled only 97,000,000 pounds, compared with normal exports of approximately 200,000,000 pounds. The British imposed a virtual embargo on the product in a move to conserve buying power in this country for war materials.

All exports of flue-cured tobacco totaled 252,000,000 pounds, compared with 362,000,000 in the previous season.

"No immediate improvement in the export situation as a whole is likely," the department said.

The department hopes, however, that British purchases will be larger this season. It said that the United Kingdom in order to maintain normal consumption, would require at least 140,000,000 pounds annually of flue-cured tobacco from the United States.

British Buyers Expected

Richmond, Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—The News Leader said today there were reports here that the Imperial Tobacco Co.'s buyers would attend the Georgia tobacco markets opening Thursday as the buying agents for the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The company's buyers would make sufficient purchases, the paper said, to offset the loss in purchases by the withdrawal of the Imperial and other British companies from the market because of the European war.

The paper added that indications were the Imperial would buy from 150,000,000 to 250,000,000 pounds of the bright tobacco crop for the Commodity Credit Corporation on the same basis as the Imperial bought last season, with the exception that it would not have option on the 1940 crop as was the case last year.

Tobacco Review

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 5.—With leaf tobacco receipts dropping off to 1,460 hogsheads, sales totaled 1,362 hogsheads. Prices held firm for all ripe tobaccos, while some grades of dull and dull crop are accumulating in sellers' hands.

Colonials Open Grid Drills September 9

G. W. Facing One of Most Difficult Schedules, To Start Week Earlier Than Usual; Sessions To Be Held Twice Daily on Polo Field Here

George Washington University's football squad, facing one of its most difficult schedules, will open practice a week earlier than usual this fall, Coach Bill Reinhart announced yesterday, selecting September 9 as the Colonials' first day of conditioning.

"We've got to prepare to meet three strong teams, Manhattan, Washington and Lee, and Kentucky, away from home in October, and I think we'll need all the preparation we can get for this schedule," Reinhart said. "Our last five games are at home, but none of them figures to be easy. I think an early start is in order."

Reinhart announced his departure for the Pacific Coast. He will be away three weeks and expects to spend most of this time at his old home in Oregon.

Thirty-eight Candidates

A squad of 38 candidates, including 17 letter men, 8 of them regulars last season, has been asked to report. Practice again will be held on the polo field. The schedule calls for two drills daily the first two weeks.

Principal men to be replaced are Bob Nowaskey, star end, and Sunny Jones and Duce Keahey, durable tackles. Two of this trio, Nowaskey and Keahey, have gone into pro football ranks, Nowaskey with the Chicago Bears and Keahey with the New York Giants.

Reinhart also will miss Billy Richardsn, ace passer, and Lud Urick, fullback, who were graduated, but his backfield shapes up as the best at George Washington since 1936. The quartet of Tom Grady, Walt Fedora, Murphy Booth and Sam Babich, which closed last season as first-string, returns intact. In addition, there are four others from the 1939 squad and several members of the new sophomore class who will be most helpful.

Pinnow Lost

The loss of Don Pinnow, crack passer of last season's strong freshman eleven, due to scholastic deficiencies, was something of a blow to Reinhart, however.

Key men returning for service in the line are Frank August, John Picco and Dan Douglas, ends; Tony Barauskas, John Clarey and Tim Swett, tackles; John Kokoski, Stan Ziobro and Floyd McGlinn, guards, and Mike Monchlovich, star center.

Graduates from the '39 frosh will form a strong bulwark in the line. Outstanding in this group are Henry Agusiewicz and Ellis Hall, guards; Dan Snyder, Enrico Seeno and Bill Slovanic, tackles; Adolph Biasini and Red Embrey, ends, and Bob Kranich and Willard Blackburn, centers.

Tough Schedule

Reinhart hopes the Colonials will pick up where they left off last season when they closed the campaign with successive victories over Kansas, Bucknell and West Virginia. The final tally was five victories and three defeats, all of the losses being by a single touchdown. The Colonials started slowly, but picked up rapidly after losing midseason battles to Georgetown and Clemson.

The schedule, however, is tougher this fall. Georgetown will be met in the final game, November 23, instead of in midseason, and Bucknell, Kansas and West Virginia are back on the slate, all to be met here. Wake Forest and Mount St. Mary's, the opener on September 27, complete a solid home card.

Manhattan, Washington and Lee and Kentucky, all of whom are to appear here in the future, comprise the foreign list.

The complete schedule:
*September 27, St. Mary's, at home.
*October 4, Manhattan, away; 12, Washington and Lee, away; 19, Kentucky, away; *25, West Virginia, at home.
*November 1, Wake Forest, at home; 9, Bucknell, at home; 16, Kansas, at home; 23, Georgetown, at home.
*Friday night games.

short putt for a birdie three and a 32.

Balestri won the Allied Trades Championship for the past three years, but the event has been merged with the championship this year and the Beaver Dam champ is eligible for the tournament proper.

Ficco, playing one of the best tournament rounds of his career, was more consistent with nines of 38—35—73. He started with four consecutive fives, three of them bogeys, but he dropped a 12-footer for a birdie deuce on the fifth, birdied the seventh with a 5-footer, went over on the eighth and dropped another 5-footer on the ninth for another birdie.

Coming back, he matched perfect figures with nine consecutive pars for a 35 and the 73. A printer on a local newspaper, Ficco plays little tournament golf, but is a high 70-shooter at East Potomac.

The boys all had much more trouble on the par 37 front nine than they did coming back, on the shorter and easier par 35 back nine. Scores ranged from eight to ten strokes lower on the return trip, and many of the better golfers cut ten shots off their first nine score. The biggest difference was A. Klobersteln, of Detroit, who was out in in 73 and then cut 22 shots off on the second nine for 51 and 124.

Largest single entry was from Washington, 27 players; while Baltimore sent 24 contestants and Cleveland 21.

tained from the Chicago White Sox last year, was ineffective at the start of this season and was sent to the minors. He came up again two weeks ago.

Walter Judnich hit his 20th home run of the season for the Browns with a man on base in the third inning of the game. The Browns added an error-tainted run in the fourth and another through Tommy Bridges' wildness in the fifth.

Schoolboy Rowe limited the Browns to six scattered hits in the opener, which the Tigers won without much effort. It was Rowe's tenth victory against two defeats.

Rudy York hit his 19th home run of the season and Dick Bartell his sixth for Detroit in this game, while George McQuinn walloped his twelfth for the Browns.

Printcraft Golf Body Reelects All Officers

The entire slate of international officers of the U. P. I. G. A. was reelected in the annual meeting at the Mayflower Hotel last night, including Harold W. Hough, Baltimore, as president.

Edgar A. Merkle, a former champion, was reelected vice president for another year. The District golfer was instrumental in bringing the tournament here this year.

Harry N. Heskamp, Cincinnati, as second vice president; Walter Faulhaber, Pittsburgh, third vice president, and Ezra B. Craft, Detroit, secretary-treasurer, were all reelected.

After the second round play and the women's tournament today, the day will be free to the visitors.

Tomorrow the wives, children and guests have a five-hour sightseeing trip scheduled while at night the entire crowd will go to the Lotus Restaurant for the evening.

The annual banquet and distribution of prizes will follow the final round of play on Thursday. The banquet, with an honorary guest list, will start at 6:30 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel.

a Southpaw. Four singles by Rollie Hemsley, Ben Chapman, Weatherly and Lou Boudreau and a fumble by Smith produced the tallies. They added two more in the fourth on doubles by Boudreau and Beau Bell, sandwiched around Hal Trosky's single.

After collecting a single run in the sixth the Indians turned the game into a rout with four runs in the eighth. This splurge included a triple by Weatherly, a double by Russ Peters and singles by Bell and Hemsley. Everybody but the pitcher knocked in at least one run in the 12-hit attack on Smith and his successor, Pete Appleton.

Fans Forget Pennant Races To Ponder Hershberger Tragedy

Bloodworth Borrows Trosky's Mitt for Debut At First, Becomes Attached to It, So Hal Plays Santa Claus

By Judson Bailey

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Aug. 5.—Baseball people have temporarily quit talking pennants to try to fathom the tragedy of Bill Hershberger . . . He was the friendliest player we ever knew and a few nights ago when we rode downtown on the subway with him he was cheerful and clowning . . . Maybe the Reds can win this flag "for Hershey" . . . Pewee Reese, Brooklyn's kid shortstop, had one string of 32 games in which he never failed to get on base . . . When Jim Bloodworth made his major league start as a first baseman for Washington last week, he borrowed Hal Trosky's big mitt—and liked it so well he coaxed Hal into letting him keep it.

The Philadelphia Athletics will play an extra night game this month . . . The weather was bad the first time they played Cleveland at night in Shibe Park, so the American League bosses okayed another night game for the Indians and A's August 28 . . . Next thing you know the A. L. will forget that seven-game limit altogether.

Jeff Heath, of the Indians, who got off at a fast clip this year, now is hitting around .220. . . . There seems to be an unusual amount of bunting, or trying to, with two out or with two strikes on the batter. . . . One way you can tell National League pitchers don't like to face Elbie Fletcher, of the Pirates, is that he has had more than 70 bases on balls. . . . Both times Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers has been ejected from ball games this year have been by Umpire Ziggy Sears. . . . Cincinnati now will have to depend a lot on the catching of Bill Baker, who was obtained last fall from Indianapolis and didn't start a game until July 28.

The best way you can tell this year's Yankee team isn't the same old championship club is not through hitting or pitching figures, but through the foolish things the boys do in the field. . . . Like forgetting how many outs have been made in an inning or throwing to wrong bases. . . . Joe Cronin is saying Jimmie Foxx right now is the best catcher in the American League. . . . Anyway, he's the best all-round player.

Johnny Mize, of the St. Louis Cardinals, never hit more than 22 home runs in any one of his seven years in the minors, and his average was 12, but in the majors he never has hit less than 19 and has been over 25 four times, including this year. . . . Bucky Harris wants to trade Pitcher Joe Krakauskas to the Browns for Outfielder Chet Laabs if the waivers can be put through. . . . The Washington man says he'd be willing to finish the season with six pitchers to get Laabs.

Today's Radio Highlights

11:30 a. m., WRC—In 1937 Joseph S. Daltry founded a light opera group devoted to the melodic wit of Gilbert and Sullivan. Now risen high from its office stool, it's joining the National Symphony Orchestra tomorrow night at the Watergate in "Trial by Jury" and "Pinafore" after a Sunday bow in "The Pirates." Mr. Daltry tells his story to Mary Mason.

11:30 a. m., WMAL—"Grow Your Own Food" urges a group of farm economists during the Farm and Home Hour.

1 p. m., WMAL—Janet Flanner, "Genet" of The New York; Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and Jessica Ogilvie of the hair-care firm are three of the weirdest sisters to form a radio duo. They're on the Streamlined Journal.

4, WOL and WMAL—Col. Louis Johnson, former Assistant Secretary of War, addresses the National Association of Broadcasters, now convening in San Francisco.

7:30, WMAL—Van Wyck Mason, traveler and author of the current historical novel, "Stars on the Sea," joins Kieran, Adams, Levant and Fadiman on Information Please.

8, WJSV—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox introduces Capt. Barbey, commanding the Midshipmen Reserve units on battle practice 100 miles off the Florida coast. The Navy breaks its curfew rule to offer this program to the West Coast at midnight, Florida time.

8, WRC—Underdog Note: Store managers challenge the slogan, "The Customer is Always Right" when they meet a team of women customers on the Battle of the Sexes.

9:15, WJSV—Gov. William H. Vanderbilt, of Rhode Island and United States Solicitor General Francis Biddle give their views on how the Federal and State governments can best cooperate to aid the new defense programs.

10:45, WRC—The United States Army is recruiting men.

Listen! with Glynn

Music lovers are in for a daily half-hour treat effective immediately. For WJSV's series "Masterworks on the Air" has returned and can be heard from 10:15 to 10:45 p. m. Mondays through Fridays.

The half hours are devoted to the playing of the world's finest music as recorded for the Columbia Recording Corporation by the world's best symphony orchestras.

On the subject, we were informed today that Columbia Records have engaged exclusively the services of America's oldest and youngest symphony orchestras. The first is the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, with John Barbirolli as conductor. The other is Leopold Stokowski's All-American Youth Orchestra. The New York Philharmonic, concededly without peer, was founded in 1842, has broadcast Sunday afternoons for 10 years over C. B. S. Stokowski's group of 100 players, ages 16 to 25, recorded several selections for Columbia before it went on its present South American tour.

Getting down from the heights for a moment, music lovers should note, too, that effective at once the price of Columbia's symphonic records has been halved. Meaning that the 12-inch records, formerly $2, now are $1, the 10-inch size, formerly $1.50, now 75 cents. Quite an item.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Puppet Show — BY MILTON CANIFF

WHAT IS THIS QUIBBLING? I AM THE INTENDED BRIDE OF THE CHINESE YOU PLACED IN CIVIL POWER HERE... THESE TWO ARE MY SERVANT AND MY CHAPERON!... WE CAME BY BOAT—SINCE OTHER TRANSPORTATION HAS BEEN HALTED BY YOUR ARMIES! IS OUR VISIT TO BEGIN THUS?
LET US THEN GO BEFORE THE CIVIL ONE FOR SOME CONFIRMATION OF ALL THIS!
YOU ALWAYS JUST WALK IN HERE AS IF I WERE NOT THE CHIEF PERSON...
ONE FORGETS—YOUR EXCELLENCY... TELL ME... WAS YOUR EXCELLENCY EXPECTING A VISITOR.... A YOUNG WOMAN?
I HAVE BEEN TOO LONG AMONG THE WESTERN PEOPLES TO RESTRAIN MY EMOTION!.... I HAVE COME. MY LOVE!
WH--
SPEAK CHINESE—AND DO NOT APPEAR SURPRISED!..... REMEMBER ME?

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

SILENCE! I DEMAND AN EXPLANATION FOR THIS IDIOTIC BUSINESS!
YES, SIR! WE, REPRESENTING THE PURPLE SHIRT BATTALION, HAVE COME TO PLEDGE OUR FULL SUPPORT TO YOUR CAMPAIGN FOR GOVERNOR!
HAIL, BLACKSTON!
JOHN! ARE THOSE MEN FRIENDS OF YOURS?
NO, AUNT MARY! THEY'RE THE MOST TREACHEROUS ENEMIES A MAN EVER HAD! LEONA, PHONE FOR LUKE SCREED!

DONALD DUCK — It's a Gift! — BY WALT DISNEY

MICKEY FINN — The Pressure Is On! — BY LANK LEONARD

YOU SURE TOOK LONG ENOUGH! DID'JA GET THAT PICTURE OF FINN I WANTED?
I'LL SAY I DID, MR. MUFF! BUT HE DIDN'T COME OUT OF HIS HOUSE UNTIL 'WAY PAST NOON—I'VE STILL GOT A CRAMP IN MY LEG FROM CROUCHING BEHIND A FENCE!
AIN'T IT A SWEETHEART, BOSS? AND HE DIDN'T EVEN KNOW WE TOOK IT!
IT'S PERFECT! HAVE A CUT MADE AND RUSH IT OVER TO OUR PRINTER! WE'LL START HANDING THEM OUT TONIGHT!
BUS STOP
"PHONEY PHIL" —He Never Worked and Never Will!
DO YOU WANT THIS DOPEY OLD TO REPRESENT THE 26TH DISTRICT? OF COURSE YOU DON'T!
VOTE FOR WILLIAM MUFF Sr.

DIXIE DUGAN — Destination Unknown — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

YOUR TRAIN LEAVES SOON—HURRY—YOU HAVEN'T GOT MUCH TIME!
WE HAVEN'T GOT MUCH CHOICE, MA
OH—DEAR—BUT—
IF I HADN'T GONE AHEAD AND ARRANGED FOR A VACATION FOR YOU MYSELF YOU NEVER WOULD HAVE GONE!
BUT—BUT—
IT'LL BE JUST LIKE ANOTHER HONEYMOON! —SMACK— BYE AND WRITE OFTEN!
SMACK BYE
UH-UH
BUT—BUT WHERE ARE WE GOING?
IT'S ON YOUR TICKETS!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Crack-Up — BY FRANK V. MARTINEK

HA! WINSLOW—HOW'D YOU LIKE THAT ONE?
DON! WHERE'D IT GET YOU?
MY SHOULDER! LOOK OUT, RED! THE SCORPION—BEHIND THOSE—ROCKS
SAVE YOURSELF! JUMP FOR COVER—BEFORE HE—MURDERS YOU ALL!
NOT UNTIL I—HEY! LOOK!
THE CLIFF'S TOPPLING! IT'S A LANDSLIDE!!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

YES, GENTLEMEN, THE FACT THAT ZORENA RETURNED THIS CHEST MEANS FAILURE—RUIN TO ME!
I DON'T FOLLOW YOU, SIR!
I SENT THE CHEST, FULL OF RARE SILKS AND LACES TO THE EMPRESS—HOPING THE GIFT WOULD INFLUENCE HER TO SIGN OVER THE KASBAR OIL EXPORTS TO MY COUNTRY. BUT SHE HAS SPURNED IT!
SO YOU WERE AFTER OIL, MAJOR BARCLAY? I SUSPECTED THAT!
MY COUNTRY NEEDS IT DESPERATELY—BUT, OBVIOUSLY, ZORENA HAS DECIDED TO FAVOR MY RIVAL, WATSIKI!
A DARK DAY FOR CIVILIZATION, MR. ROPER! YOU KNOW WHAT THE OIL WILL MEAN TO THE BOMBING PLANES AND TANKS OF WATSIKI'S GOVERNMENT!
I WISH WE COULD HELP YOU, SIR—BUT—!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

I WARNED YOU TO STAY AWAY, MOUNTIE. YOU'VE NO RIGHT ON MY PROPERTY!
PUT DOWN THAT GUN, BROWNING! I NEED YOUR MOTOR BOAT TO FOLLOW WOLF TOOTH!
DON'T SHOOT, FATHER!—
—LET THE SHARK DO HIS OWN KILLING!
